HELLO, SUMMER LEARNER!

How to use this book

This book has 12 weeks of summer practice. Each week gives you five days of activities that take about 20 minutes a day. You'll do a bit of math, a short reading, some writing, a vocabulary warm-up, and a fun bonus puzzle. Finish a week, check off the weekly goals, and give yourself a high-five.

Do a little every day

Twenty minutes beats an hour once a week.
Make it a summer habit.

Use a pencil

It's okay to erase and try again — smart learners do that all the time.

Read the instructions

Each section has a small helper note. Give it a quick look first.

Celebrate progress

Track finished days on the weekly opener.
Ten days = one victory lap.

Camp Begins

Maya hiked into camp on Monday morning. Pine trees rose on both sides of the trail, and the air smelled like wet bark. At the welcome tent she signed her name on the big sign-in sheet. Her counselor, Ms. Rivera, clapped twice and said, 'Circle up!' Maya squeezed into a spot on the log and finally started to smile. She had been nervous all week. Now camp felt real.

1. How did Maya feel at the start? Cite one clue.

2. How do you know Maya was nervous before camp?

3. What is the main idea of this paragraph?

 Your Turn to Write

Write a paragraph about a first day you remember. Start with a topic sentence.

Topic sentence 2 details closing line.
