

Chapter 3 The Path to the First Destination (Track Digitizer's Path)

Having reached the bottom, he can already see the lights of the city, where humans unsuspectingly go about their daily routines.

He moves like a predator, silent and fluid, careful to remain undetected.

The first target: The laboratory where Megacephalon was created to be sent ruthlessly into war for the humans.

The perfect place to claim their knowledge. A vast amount of knowledge not only that of the Professor, but also from every single one of his lab assistants. A strong beginning for what is yet to come.

Remaining unnoticed with such an imposing appearance is no easy task, so he takes the path through back alleys, remote streets, and abandoned industrial zones.

He has no interest in ordinary civilians.

Inside Megacephalon, conflicting emotions stir. The thought of returning to the place where it all began fills him with fear... and untamable rage.

In the distance, he can already see the lights of the laboratory. The way is no longer far.

The Digitizer has a mission to fulfill and he will.

Once he reaches the gates, his gaze sweeps across the grounds to avoid triggering any alarms prematurely. Then he moves purposefully toward the doors.

Arriving there, he sends a scanning look straight through the walls.

Every single Neurophage as Digivox-9 calls the knowledge carriers must be located, so that none can escape their fate.

The door opens.

The path stands clear for what the Digitizer has come to do.