

Chapter 5 Neurophage Database is Being Fed (Track Digitizer Rises)

After all useful knowledge on the planet had been harvested for the Digitizer, he returned to the city where everything had begun.

It was time for Digivox-9 to absorb the knowledge the Digitizer had collected.

He possesses a kind of database, organized by the knowledge of different planets and life forms. Now the Neurophage Database is being established.

Through his long, spindly fingers, he draws in the digital streams of knowledge. As he does so, the back of Digivox-9's head swells like the body of a tick gorging itself on its host's blood.

Meanwhile, countless images flash through the mind of the massive Megacephalon in fractions of a second. What remains is filtered knowledge — intended to help Megacephalon maintain the planet's future balance and, if necessary, make him useful to Digivox-9 once again.

Once all the knowledge has been absorbed, Digivox-9 releases its anchorage and vanishes into the darkness, setting off toward its next planetary target.

Megacephalon is left behind, still flooded with racing images surging through his mind.

As the flood slowly subsides, the full horror of what has happened becomes clear to him once more. How far he has ventured from his familiar surroundings... only to cause absolute destruction.

Yet he cannot linger here for long. So he has no choice but to begin the journey back to the camp.