Building on Red Lake's world-class mining history, Compton Mining Corp combines modern exploration techniques with deep geological expertise to unlock new potential.

COMPANY OVERVIEW

Compton Mining Corporation is focused on unlocking the full potential of the Red Lake region in Ontario, Canada, with over 3,000 hectares of highly prospective land. This region hosts several major mines and discoveries, including Evolution's Red Lake Mine and the Great Bear discovery. The company is advancing exploration of copper, zinc, gold, and silver resources, with key targets like a high-grade core of 490,000 tonnes at the Arrow Zone. With a strategic focus on high-potential geological trends, Compton is poised for growth in one of Canada's most mineral-rich mining districts.

Compton Mining Corporation is well-positioned to capitalize on the growing demand for copper, zinc, gold, and silver, as these critical metals continue to play a key role in global energy transition and industrial growth. With a strong foothold in the Red Lake region and significant exploration potential, the company stands to benefit from both resource development and rising market interest in high-value minerals.
