

INSPECTOR GENERAL DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE DEFENSE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE SYRACUSE POST OF DUTY 441 S. SALINA ST, STE 602 SYRACUSE, NY 13202-2400

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION

200701516W-25-JUL-2007-10SY-W1/E

20-NOVEMBER-2009

(b)(6),(b)(7)(C)
	DDRGG_294_4 PAGESD_ULSOKS
10000 2000000

DISTRIBUTION

Headquarters, Investigative Operations Directorate Northeast Field Office Pittsburgh Resident Agency

C-1

CLASSIFICATION:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY

WARNING

This document is the property of the Department of Defense Inspector General and is on loan to your agency. Contents may not be disclosed to any party under investigation nor may this document be distributed outside the receiving agency without the specific prior authorization of the Deputy inspector General for Investigations.

NARRATIVE

1.	On July 11, 2007, the reporting agent received a lead referral from Special Agent (c) (6)(6)(6)(7)
	DCIS Mid-Atlantic Field Office regarding the Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) initiated Operation Flicker. Operation Flicker is a nationwide investigation that has identified over 5,000 individuals that have subscribed to predicated child pornography websites. SA (D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)(D)( State that are employed by the Department of Defense/U.S. Military, that have subscribed to websites that contain child pornographic images or other material that exploit children via the internet.

- 2. In April 2006, the ICE/Cyber Crimes Center/Child Exploitation Section (ICE/C3/CES) initiated an investigation into a criminal organization operating a commercial child pornography website known as "Home Collection." The investigation has revealed that the same organization is operating numerous commercial child pornography websites. In addition, the organization utilizes various Pay Pal accounts to process the payments for access to the member restricted areas of these websites. The investigation is being worked jointly with ICE/C3/CES, ICE/RAC/Birmingham, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, the U.S. Department of Justice/Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, and the USAO for the Northern District of Alabama. ICE has designated this operation as PROJECT FLICKER.
- ICE/C3/CES has conducted over 60 undercover transactions at the advertising websites associated with this investigation. The investigation has identified that a specific criminal organization is operating approximately 18 different commercial child pornography advertising websites which provide access to approximately 18 child pornography member restricted websites.
- 4. Among the 5,000 names ICE identified under Project Flicker, several individuals used their .mil e-mail address, Fleet Post Office (FPO), or Army Post Office (APO) military zip codes. SA advised the U.S. Attorney's Office and ICE that the DCIS will assist in identifying any additional Department of Defense (DoD) affiliated individuals and provide any investigative assistance.

5.	SA (6)(6)(7)(C) conducted queried DoD databases to identify individuals that may be in possession of child pornographic material or access, and has forwarded the results of his queries to the respective DCIS office for consideration for possible DCIS case initiations.
	SA ((b)(6),(b)(7)(C) attached a spreadsheet for subjects of Operation Flicker in the state of New York that have a DoD affiliation. One subject identified on the spreadsheet includes an individual identified as (b)(6),(b)(7)(C)

6.	The reporting agent queried the Defense Employee Interactive Data Systems (DEIDS) and obtained the following information regarding (ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)(ID)
	(b)(6)(0)(7)(C)

- 3. ICE Cyber Crime Center. The list contained the name, e-mail address, telephone number, and postal address of each subject. Queries of subjects were conducted through Autotrack, the Joint Personnel Adjudication System, the Defense Central Index of Investigations, and the DoD Employee Interactive Data System to obtain additional identifying information and establish a DoD nexus. In total, 20 states and D.C. were vetted.
- 4. As a result of the database queries, 264 individuals affiliated with DoD were identified, including 39 individuals within the Eastern District of Virginia. Of those identified, 9 individuals possessed a Top Secret Sensitive Compartmented Information security clearance, 13 possessed a Top Secret security clearance, 8 possessed a NATO Secret security clearance, 42 possessed a Secret security clearance, and 4 possessed an interim Secret security clearance.
- The subject information containing DoD query results were divided by location and forwarded to the appropriate ICE and DCIS office for action.
- To date, 31 spin-off cases have been initiated and 52 subjects have been titled:
 - 200701274Z –
 - 200701277C i
 - 200701301F Sweeney, Daniel Joseph
 - 200701340S –
 - 200701341T Campbell, Cameron Morrison
 - 200701402H Kartes, Thomas Edward
 - 200701403I -

A-1

200701199X-29-MAY-2007-60DC-W1/F January 24, 2008 200701463Q - Jones, Paul Burnell 200701511R -200701512S - 200701516W – 200701517X -200701553H -200701558M - Operation Flicker 200701567V – Operation Flicker 200701571Z - Fitzpatrick, Leland Chace 200701596Y - 1 200701606N - Operation Flicker 200701619A -200701620B - Mullen, Shawn B. 200701623E - Lindimore, Shane Brewster 200701653I -200701665U -200701667W - Operation Flicker-50ES Targets 200701690T -200701691U -200701692V -200701756M -200701765V - Project Flicker-SDOH (Western Division)-WDKY-EDKY

- 3. ICE Cyber Crime Center. The list contained the name, e-mail address, telephone number, and postal address of each subject. Queries of subjects were conducted through Autotrack, the Joint Personnel Adjudication System, the Defense Central Index of Investigations, and the DoD Employee Interactive Data System to obtain additional identifying information and establish a DoD nexus. In total, 20 states and D.C. were vetted.
- 4. As a result of the database queries, 264 individuals affiliated with DoD were identified, including 39 individuals within the Eastern District of Virginia. Of those identified, 9 individuals possessed a Top Secret Sensitive Compartmented Information security clearance, 13 possessed a Top Secret security clearance, 8 possessed a NATO Secret security clearance, 42 possessed a Secret security clearance, and 4 possessed an interim Secret security clearance.
- The subject information containing DoD query results were divided by location and forwarded to the appropriate ICE and DCIS office for action.
- To date, 31 spin-off cases have been initiated and 52 subjects have been titled:
 - 200701274Z –
 - 200701277C i
 - 200701301F Sweeney, Daniel Joseph
 - 200701340S –
 - 200701341T Campbell, Cameron Morrison
 - 200701402H Kartes, Thomas Edward
 - 200701403I -

A-1

200701199X-29-MAY-2007-60DC-W1/F January 24, 2008 200701463Q - Jones, Paul Burnell 200701511R -200701512S - 200701516W – 200701517X -200701553H -200701558M - Operation Flicker 200701567V – Operation Flicker 200701571Z - Fitzpatrick, Leland Chace 200701596Y - 1 200701606N - Operation Flicker 200701619A -200701620B - Mullen, Shawn B. 200701623E - Lindimore, Shane Brewster 200701653I -200701665U -200701667W - Operation Flicker-50ES Targets 200701690T -200701691U -200701692V -200701756M -200701765V - Project Flicker-SDOH (Western Division)-WDKY-EDKY

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL
DEFENSE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE
ARLINGTON RESIDENT AGENCY
201 12th STREET SOUTH, SUITE 712
ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA 22202-5408

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION

200701199X-29-MAY-2007-60DC-W1/F

January 24, 2008

PROJECT: OPERATION FLICKER

SANJILI SANJILI DISTRIBUTION:

DCIS Headquarters, National Security Program (03NS)
Immigration and Customs Enforcement, Cyber Crimes Center
U.S. Attorney's Office, Eastern District of Virginia, Alexandria Division (AUSA G. Smagala)

www.ThePeteSantilliShow.c

b(6) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY
LAW ENFORCEMENT SENSITIVE

WARNING

This document is the property of the Department of Defense Inspector General and is on loan to your agency. Contains may not be discussed to any party under investigation nor may this document be distributed outside the receiving agency without specific prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

NARRATIVE:

- In April 2007, DCIS, Arlington Resident Agency received information from Assistant U.S. Attorney (AUSA) Gerald Smagala, U.S. Attorney's Office (USAO), Eastern District of Virginia (EDVA). AUSA Smagala provided information concerning a national investigation being conducted by ICE. ICE had identified over 5,000 individuals who subscribed to websites that were known to contain child pornography. ICE designated their operation as PROJECT FLICKER.
- 2. Several individuals identified under Project Flicker used their DoD/government e-mail address, Fleet Post Office (FPO) military address, or Army Post Office (APO) military address to register for the child pornography websites. AUSA Smagala requested that DCIS assist in the identification of individuals affiliated with the DoD. Initiation of a joint project into this matter was initiated to provide short term assistance to EDVA and ICE. As DoD subjects were identified, information was provided to the DCIS office within the appropriate area of responsibility for action deemed appropriate. Coordination was made throughout the project with the appropriate Military Criminal Investigative Organizations.
- 3. ICE Cyber Crime Center. The list contained the name, e-mail address, telephone number, and postal address of each subject. Queries of subjects were conducted through Autotrack, the Joint Personnel Adjudication System, the Defense Central Index of Investigations, and the DoD Employee Interactive Data System to obtain additional identifying information and establish a DoD nexus. In total, 20 states and D.C. were vetted.
- 4. As a result of the database queries, 264 individuals affiliated with DoD were identified, including 39 individuals within the Eastern District of Virginia. Of those identified, 9 individuals possessed a Top Secret Sensitive Compartmented Information security clearance, 13 possessed a Top Secret security clearance, 8 possessed a NATO Secret security clearance, 42 possessed a Secret security clearance, and 4 possessed an interim Secret security clearance.
- The subject information containing DoD query results were divided by location and forwarded to the appropriate ICE and DCIS office for action.

www.ThePeteSantilliShow.c

- 6. To date, 31 spin-off cases have been initiated and 52 subjects have been titled:
 - · 200701274Z -
 - 200701277C -
 - 200701301F Sweeney, Daniel Joseph
 - 200701340S –
 - 200701341T Campbell, Cameron Morrison
 - 200701402H Kartes, Thomas Edward
 - 2007014031 –

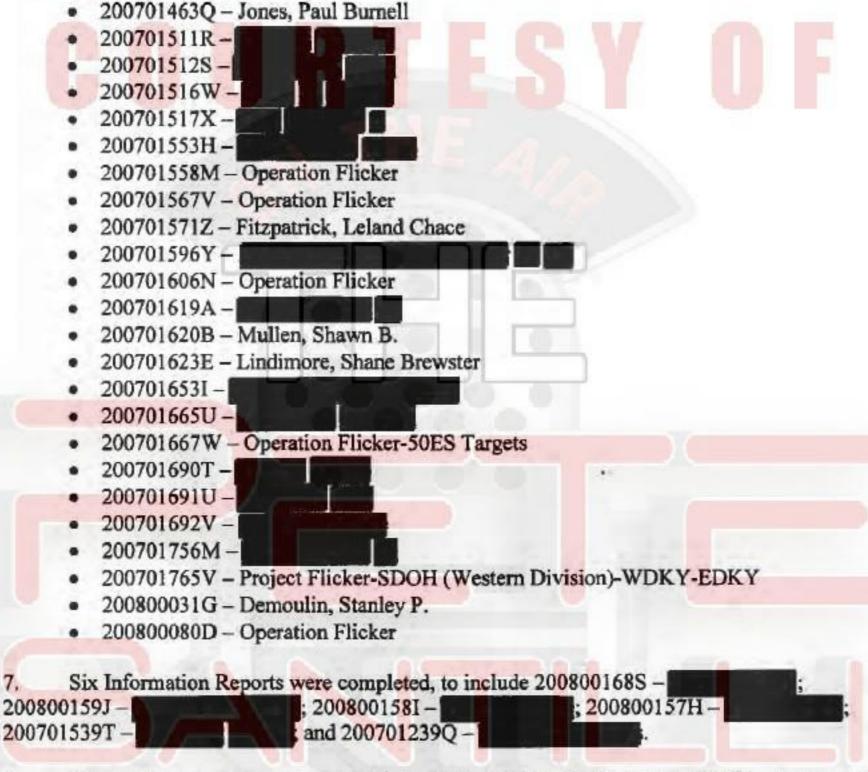

b(8) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY
LAW ENFORCEMENT SENSITIVE

WARNING

This occurrent is the property of the Department of Defense Inspector General and is on loan to your agency. Contents may not be disclosed to any party under investigation nor may this document be distributed outside the resoluted agency without specific prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

- 8. Two subjects were convicted of violating Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 2252A, Attempted Receipt of Child Pornography (200701402H Kartes, Thomas and 200701463Q Jones, Paul). Each subject received 60 months incarceration and 120 months probation. Five subjects are currently pending criminal prosecution in the USAO, EDVA.
- 9. Due to the short term nature of this project and the need to focus more resources on other DCIS investigative priorities, this project is closed as "finished." All cases generated from this project will be pursued to conclusion.

www.ThePeteSAntilliShow.co

b(8) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY
LAW ENFORCEMENT SENSITIVE

WARNING

This descreent is the property of the Department of Defense Inspector General and is on loan to your agency. Contents may not be disclosed in any party enter investigation nor may this document be distributed subject the resolution agency without specific prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

DEFENSE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE

Mid-Atlantic Field Office – Arlington Resident Agency

201 12th Street South, Suite 712

Arlington, Virginia 22202-5408

0 F

200701239Q-07-JUN-2007-60DC-W1/R (IR)

June 6, 2007

Dhan		SSN:
DPOB:	; UNK

INFORMATION REPORT/REFERRED: On May 29, 2007, the Defense Criminal Investigative Service (DCIS), Mid-Atlantic Field Office (MAFO), initiated a project based on information provided by Assistant United States Attorney (AUSA) Gerald Smagala, United States Attorney's Office (USAO), Eastern District of Virginia, Alexandria Division (DCIS Case Control Number 200701199X). AUSA Smagala advised that the Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) is conducting a national investigation that has identified over 5,000 individuals who subscribed to predicated child pornography websites.

Among the 5,000 names ICE identified under Operation Flicker, several individuals used their .mil e-mail address, Fleet Post Office (FPO), or Army Post Office (APO) military zip codes. AUSA Smagala requested that the DCIS assist in identifying any additional Department of Defense (DoD) affiliated individuals and provide any investigative assistance. Additional background information on Operation Flicker is included as Attachment 1.

The Reporting Agent (RA) utilized information contained within the DoD Employee Interactive Data System (DEIDS) and the Joint Personnel Adjudication Systems (JPAS) to identify DoD affiliated individuals. Among those identified, was Retired Navy Captain (O-6).

was flagged as a person	n of special interes	st because, according	to DEIDS, DEIDS and JPAS results are included as	Attachment 2.) 	The
The RA spoke with ICE Special briefed her on DCIS' joint efforts on Op DCIS can provide. can be cellular.	Agent (SA) peration Flicker, be reached by telep	welcon	n, Florida and med any assistance extension

Given the nature of the allegations, the potential for possibility of harm to the children, and the subject's location in the Tampa area, the MAFO is referring this case to the DCIS, Tampa Bay Resident Agency, for review and any action deemed appropriate.

b(6) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

WARNING

OFFICIAL LISE ONLY

This desement is the property of the Department of Defense Inspector General and is on loan to your agency. Contents may not be disclosed to any party under investigation of may this document be distributed outside the receiving agency without the spectre prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

The investigative databases contained in National Crime Information Center (NCIC), Defense Clearance and Investigations Index (DCII), Treasury Enforcement Communications System (TECS) were queried for relevant information concerning the subject. No criminal information was found in NCIC or TECS. However, there is a record within DCII. The DCII results are included as Attachment 3.

Attachments:

- 1. Project Flicker Summary
- 2. DEIDS/JPAS Results
- 3. DCII Results

Prepared by Special Agent DISTR: 03NS/20FO/20TB/20RL

Mid-Atlantic Field Office

/ICE SAC DC

b(8) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

the property of the Department of Defense Inspector General and is on loan to your agency may not be disclosed to any party under investigation and the distributed outside the receiving agency without the specific prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

INSPECTOR GENERAL DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE DEFENSE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE TAMPA RESIDENT AGENCY 400 North Tampa Street, Suite 1130 . Tampa, Florida 33602-4707

(Investigations)

200701277C-15-JUN-2007-20TB-W1/U

June 5, 2008

DISTRIBUTION:

National Security Program Manager

Southeast Field Office

Mid-Atlantic Field Office

Immigration and Customs Enforcement-Tampa

b(8) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY

This document is the property of the Department of Defense Inspector Central and is on loan to your agency. Contents may not be disclosed to any party under investigation nor may this document be distributed outside the receiving agency without the specific prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL DEFENSE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE ARLINGTON RESIDENT AGENCY 201 12th STREET SOUTH, SUITE 712 ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA 22202-5408

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION

200701199X-29-MAY-2007-60DC-W1/F

January 24, 2008

PROJECT: OPERATION FLICKER

EN	ECT	TO:	ID I	TTI	ON-
	-	BC I	18.1		16 PIN-

DCIS Headquarters, National Security Program (03NS)
Immigration and Customs Enforcement, Cyber Crimes Center (1998)
U.S. Attorney's Office, Eastern District of Virginia, Alexandria Division (AUSA G. Smagala)

b(6) b(7)(C)

CLASSIFICATION:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY

LAW ENFORCEMENT SENSITIVE

WARNING

This document is the property of the Department of Delegate Inspector General and is on loan to your agency. Contents may not be discussed to any party under investigation nor may this document by distributed outside the receiving agency without specific prior authorization of the Deputy Inspector General for Investigations.

200701199X-29-MAY-2007-60DC-W1/F

January 24, 2008

NARRATIVE:

- 1. In April 2007, DCIS, Arlington Resident Agency received information from Assistant U.S. Attorney (AUSA) Gerald Smagala, U.S. Attorney's Office (USAO), Eastern District of Virginia (EDVA). AUSA Smagala provided information concerning a national investigation being conducted by ICE. ICE had identified over 5,000 individuals who subscribed to websites that were known to contain child pornography. ICE designated their operation as PROJECT FLICKER.
- 2. Several individuals identified under Project Flicker used their DoD/government e-mail address, Fleet Post Office (FPO) military address, or Army Post Office (APO) military address to register for the child pornography websites. AUSA Smagala requested that DCIS assist in the identification of individuals affiliated with the DoD. Initiation of a joint project into this matter was initiated to provide short term assistance to EDVA and ICE. As DoD subjects were identified, information was provided to the DCIS office within the appropriate area of responsibility for action deemed appropriate. Coordination was made throughout the project with the appropriate Military Criminal Investigative Organizations.

OFFICIAL USE ONLY

DEFARTMENT OF THE TREASURY UNITED TATES CUSTOMS SERVICE

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION .

C-3	(3) (00)
20-64	-	745
1	OF	2
I Catt bear	100	_

	4300.0	ta 1271, Filipia (Special Agent Man	f haug s I		ASL -U-ACA
a. PitsE	34
FIMDERS
L CASE STATUS Zalsia Argan	Incom Report	Our Printing	Don- & Cary	X Inch & FA
04/13/87	02/05/87	s tuis .	700	IO ALIPOT NO	Ohrs From
IN PELATED CASE FILE AUG	ecas		1 700	1

2, U+3(+(L0+E0 LE+31 10	,
None			93
Tes	Sample Warrant	Francisco .	Marrier groupes	Desir Source	Saura Cobe
X STATE	Subserve Service	Salar dans	- Innove	Minimum (pa Continents)	□ ••~
The second second	68	$31

On Thursday, Pebruary 5, 1987, Senior Special Agent Harrold and I assisted the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) with two search warrants involving the possible sexual exploitation of children. During the course of the search warrants, numerous documents were discovered which appeared to be concerned with international trafficking in children, high tech transfer to the United Kingdom, and international transfer of currency.

SACIAL SALDAS	15. DISTAIRLETION	16. SIGNATURE ITHE Mover & Title		-
SAC/VA Beach RAC/Tallahas		Ramon J. Martinez, Special	Acent
CAGCA	SE	11 arragatorio (1-1/2/2)	-3000
E:E0:S0:G	SE	LINHOOD ROUNTREE, Resident	Anna in the
:1:S	RAC/DC	Resident Agent in Charge	Ngent in Charge	40

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY UNITED TATES CLOTO-SINEVIEL

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION CONTINUATION

4700-01 ISEL FARM ISSUE FROM PARTHERS

1. 7. 64	Vo		-	FAGES
•	2 (OF.	2
E. EALS 1
		1.0
ALMON.	I NUM	114
	1

DETAILS OF INVESTIGATION:

On March 31, 1987, I contacted Detective James Bradley of the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Police Department (MPD). I was to meet with Detective Bradley to review the documents seized, pursuant to two search warrants executed in February 1987. The meeting was to take place on April 2 or 3, 1987.

On April 2, 1987, I arrived at MPD at approximately 9:00 a.m. Detective Bradley was not available. I spoke to a third party who was willing to discuss the case with me on a strictly "off the record" basis.

I was advised that all the passport data had been turned over to the State Department for their investigation. The State Department in turn, advised MPD that all travel and use of the passports by the holders of the passports was within the law and no action would be taken. This included travel to Moscow, North Korea, and North Vietnam from the late 1950's to mid 1970's.

The individual further advised me of circumstances which indicated that the investigation into the activity of the PINDERS had become a CIA internal matter. The MPD report has been classified secret and was not available for review. I was advised that the FBI had withdrawn from the investigation several weeks prior and that the FBI Poreign Counter Intelligence Division had directed MPD not to advise the FBI Washington Field Office of anything that had transpired.

No further information will be available. No further action will be taken.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY LESD/TECS:

No action to be taken on the basis of this report.

DEPAR ENT OF THE TREASURY

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION

1	C-3
2 +466	15	F=GE1	_
1	OF	3
CASE ME	w1[4		_
	76	2279

	1,000-01	Bill stan Gives - Halland	120611
"FI	INDERS"		1 1/0
ASE SYATUS (Action Report	Inscrim Papers	Disp. Proping	X Comm & Cine	Index & Fra	Charg Resert
TEPDAT DATE	1 DATE ASSIGNED	B CLASS	S. PROGRAM CODE	10 REFORT NO
21287	021287	II	700	one
LADEVELOPED L(ADS)	10
None .	*			t (0.00
TYPE OF PEPORT		-	_		. —
Teri	Standa Warrans Etablishing	People Com	of insurance :	Secret Secret	Source Desiral
Emericative Footings	Subsect Sever	Burrana Resert	fatriand	Estimat	x conditions
E PLACE SECURE

This office was contacted by the Tallahassee Police Department on February 5, 1987, who requested assistance in attempting to identify two adult males and six minor children, all taken into custody the . previous day. The men, arrested and charged with multiple counts of child abuse, were being very evasive with police in the questions ging asked of them pursuant the children and their condition.

This agent contacted SS/A, Bob Harrold, RAC/Reston, Virginia, and . requested telephone numbers and names of police persons in area police departments in an attempt to follow-up on two leads which were a Virginia license number and that the children had commented about living in a Washington, D.C., commune.

Subsequently, this office received a telephone call from the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Police Department inquiring about the men and children. This office put the MPD and the TPD in contact with each other.

15. C1	STRIBUTION	residuated many $31	(13
RAC/JX; S	AC/TA: RAC/DC	Wester F. Kreitlow Distriction Special Agent
A/3E#	SE	Fredric D. Halduk
E:SD:G:P	SE	Resident Agent in Charge
СРРИ	Original	Office of Enforcement	965-7608
THER	N 2	227 N. Bronough St, Rm 6045 Tallahassee. Fl 32301	dtv 400A

CEPAR' TOTTHE TATASTRY

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION CONTINUATION

1700 de 1971, FBPH (Speniet Agent) Paridogne

1.8454 -			14	213
2	OF		3
3, EASE HUMB	4=			-
I. ALIGAT HE	-114	-	-	- one

DETAILS OF INVESTIGATION:

On Thursday, February 5, 1987, this office was contacted via telephone, by sergeant, Johnn VanMETER of the Tallahassee Police Department, Juvenile Division. Sqt. VanMETER requested assistance in identifying two adult males and six minor children ages 7 years to 2 years.

The adult males were tentatively identified by TPD as Michael HOULIHAN and Douglas AMMERMAN, both of Washington, D.C., who were arrested the previous day on charges of child abuse.

The police had received an anonymous telephone call relative two well-dressed white men wearing suits and ties in Myers Park, (Tallahassee), apparently watching six dirty and unkempt children in the playground area. HOULIHAN and AMMERMAN were near a 1980 Blue Dodge van bearing Virginia license number XHW-557, the inside of which was later described as foul-smelling filled with maps, books, letters, with a mattress situated to the rear of the van which appeared as if it were used as a bed, and the overall appearance of the van gave the impression that all eight persons were living in it.

The children were covered with insect bites, were very dirty, most of ne children were not wearing underwear and all the children had not seen bathed in many days:

The men were arrested and charged with multiple counts of child abuse and lodges in the Leon County Jail. Once in custody the men were somewh evasive in their answers to the police regarding the children and stated only that they both were the children's teachers and that all wer enroute to Mexico to establish a school for brilliant children.

The children tentatively were identified as Mary HOULIHAN, white female, age 7: Max LIVINGSTON, white male, age 6: Benjamin FRANKLIN, white male, age 4: HoneyBee EVANS, white female, age 3: B.B., white male, age 2: and John Paul HOULIHAN, white male, age 2. The children initially indicated that they lived in tents in a commune in the Washington, D.C., area and were going to Mexico to go to a school for smart kids.

This office contacted the Office of the RAC/DC and spoke with SS/A, Bob Harrold. This agent requested telephone numbers and names of police persons in area departments that might be aware of said activities described by the children and to follow-up on the leads which were the Virginia license number and a check on the men's names with local law enforcement.

DESTAL TELEVISIONS STATES

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION CONTINUATION

200-04 (37), Fallwidge of Park Honomeas)

3 OF	. 3
EAST WINDER .
ACPORT NUMBER	-

A short time later this office was contacted by Detective, Jim Bradley of the Washington, D.C., Metropolitan Police Department. Bradley indicated that the case here in Tallahassee appeared to be strongly related to a case he was currently working in the Washington, D.C. area.

He stated that the actions of the two men in custody in Tallahassee relative the children just might give his case enough probable cause for search warrants to search premises occupied by a cult group called the FINDERS.

This agent directed Bradley to telephone TPD and discuss with police directly any activities forthcoming relative the instant case.

At this time it was determined that there was no Customs violations found to exist and therefore, this case is being closed pending receipt of additional information.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY LESD/TECS: Create a permanent DRR/TECS record.

IDENTIFYING DATA/TECS-FIN QUERIES:

EDDNITTING DATA TECS-II COERIES:	* .
AMMERMAN, Douglas Edward `F-23B attached)	SUBSTANTIATED	NCIC: Negativ TECS: CMIR: CTR: FBA: Negativ PAIRS: Negativ
	2 T 1 T 1 T 1 W
HOWELL, James Michael (CF-23B attached)	SUBSTANTIATED	NCIC: Negative TDCS:
		-CMIR: "
N W 38 520	g. 1	CTR : Negative
		FBA: : : PAIRS: Negativ rata, negati
"FINDERS" (CF-238 attached)	ALLEGED	NCIC: NEGATIVE TECS: NEGATIVE
	590	CMIR; "
		CTR. : "
	* _ * _	FEA : "
The second secon		PAIRS: ".

To : Resident Agent in Charge

Date: 02/07/0

From : Special Agent

Subject: Customs cooperation/interest in Tallahassee/Washington HPD child abuse investigation.

On Thursday, 2/5/87, the duty agent, SS/A Bob Harrold, received a call from SS/A Walter Krietlow, USCS, Tallahassee, Plocida. SS/A Krietlow was seeking assitance in contacting an appropriate local police agency to coordinate a child abuse investigation in with the Tallahassee Police Department. SS/A. Krietlow further requested assistance in checking some names, addresses and a vehicle through the Customs Child Pornography Unit data base, and stated there was some suspicion of the subjects being involved in supplying children for the . production of child pornography. Purther, he was informed by the Tallahassee Police Department that the children may have been encoute to Mexico from the Washington, D.C. area. The possibility of Customs interest in the investigation due to possible violations of the Child Protection Act of 1984, and the alleged nexus with the U.S./Mexican Border were discussed " and agreed upon. SS/A Krietlow related the following . . . background information. SS/A Krietlow was contacted by the Tallahassee Police Department for assistance in identifying six children and two adults taken into custody in the Tallahassee area. U.S. Customs was contacted because the police officers involved suspected the adults of being involved in child pornography and knew the Customs Service to have a network of child pornography investigators, and of the existance of the Child Pornography and Protection Unit. SS/A Krietlow stated the two aduls were well dressed white males. They had custody of six white children (boys and girls), ages three to six ... years. The children were observed to be poorly dressed, bruised, dirty, and behaving like animals in a public park in Tallahassee. The police were notified by a concerned_citizen and all eight persons were taken into custody. The subjects were living out of a white 1979 Dodge van, Virginia license no. XBH 557. Upon being taken into custody, the adult white males refused to cooperate, one of whom produced a "business" card . with a name on one side and a statement on the other. The statement indicated that the bearer knew his constitutional rights to remain silent and that he intended to do so. Upon interviewing the children, the police officers found that they could not adequately identify themselves or their custodians. further, they stated they were enroute to Mexico co attend a school for "smart kids," SS/A Krietlow was further advised the children were unaware of the function and purpose of telephones, televisions and toilets, and that the children had stated they were not allowed to live indoors and were only given food as a reward.

able to observe and access the entire building. I saw large quantities of children's clothing and toys. The clothing consisting of diapers and clothes in the toddler to pre-school range. No children were found on the premises. 'There were several subjects on the premises. Only one was deemed to be connected with the Finders. The rest were renting living space from this individual. He was identified as Stuart Miles SILVERSTONE, DOB/061941, U.S. Passport No. 010958991. SILVERSTONE was located in a room equipped with several computers, printers, and numerous documents. Cursory examination of the documents revealed detailed instructions for obtaining children for unspecified purposes. The instructions included the impregnation of female members of the community known as Pinders, purchasing children, trading, and kidnapping. There were telex messages using MCI accountnumbers between a computer terminal believed to be located in. the same room, and others located across the country and in .. foreign locations. One such telex specifically ordered the purchase of two children in Bong Kong to be arranged through a contact in the Chinese Embassy there. Another telex expressed an interest in "bank secrecy" situations. Other documents identified interests in high-tech transfers to the United Kingdom, numerous properties under the control of the Finders, . a keen interest in terrorism, explosives, and the evasion of law enforcement. Also found in the "computer room" was a detailed summary of the events surrounding the arrest and taking into custody of the two adults and six children in Tallahassee, Plorida on the previous night. There were also a set of instructions which appeared to be broadcast via a . computer network which advised participants to move "the children" and keep them moving through different jurisdictions, and instructions on how to avoid police attention.

One of the residents was identified as a Chinese National. Due to the telex discovered referencing the Chinese Embassy in Hong Kong, he was fully identified for future reference: WANG/Gengxin, DOB/092747, POB/Tianjin, People's Republic of China Passport No. 324999, entered the U.S. on January 22, 1987, admitted until December 31, 1987. He is in the U.S. as a graduate student in the Anatomy Department of Georgetown University. His Visa was issued on November 10, 1986, in London, England, number 00143.

During the course of the evening, I contacted Sector 4 to . initiate a TBCS check on SILVERSTONE, and initiate an archives check on him for the last four years. I also contacted SS/A Holloran to keep him advised of the proceedings and asked for and received permission to contact SS/A John Sullivan of the CPPU to query some names through the CPPU data base. SS/A Holloran told me he would call Southeast Region Headquarters to keep them posted on the proceedings as well. I later contacted SS/A Sullivan for the stated purpose, and in the discussion that followed, I gave him some background on the purpose of the request. I advised him that the information was not for dissemination at Headquarters, that Region was being notified, and that Region would probably contact Headquarters later if Jeemed necessary. SS/A Sullivan assured me that the information would go no further until official notification was made by Region. No positive matches were obtained from the CPPU data base. I was later joined at the W Street address by SS/A Harrold. SS/A Harrold advised me that there were extremely large quantities of documents and computer equipment at the warehouse, and that HPD was posting officers inside the building there and sealing the building until morning, in which a second warrant for that premises would be obtained and executed. SS/A Barrold also advised me that the news media had been notified and had been waiting for the execution of the warrant at the 4th Street address.. Detective Bradley later stated that the MPD Public Information Officer had been contacted by a Tallahassee reporter. When it became apparent the PIO had no information on the search warrants, the reporter contacted local media representatives and a check of public ' records containing the affidavits for the search warrants disclosed the locations and purpose of the warrants. Detective Bradley surmised that someone on the Tallahassee Police Department was the original source of information for the press. I advised SS/A Holloran of the involvement of the press, and he stated that he would, in turn, relay the information to Region. SS/A Earrold and I assisted in the transport of the evidence seized pursuant to the warrant and cleared HPD after the press left the area.

" IT K".

On Friday, 2/6/87; I met Detective Bradley at the warehouse on . ith Street, N.E. I duly advised my acting group supervisor, SS/A Don Bludworth: I was again granted unlimited access to . the premises. I was able to observe numerous documents which described explicit sexual conduct between the members of the community known as finders. I also saw a large collection of photographs of unidentified persons. Some of the photographs were nudes, believed to be of members of Finders. There were numerous photos of children, some nude, at least one of which was a photo of a child "on display" and appearing to accent the child's genitals. I was only able to examine a very small amount of the photos at this time. However, one of the officers presented me with a photo album for my review. The album contained a series of photos of adults and children dressed in white sheets participating in a blood ritual. The citual centered around the execution of at least two goats. The photos portrayed the execution, disembowelment, skinning and dismemberment of the goats at the hands of the children. this included the removal of the testes of a male goat, the discovery of a female goat's "womb" and the "baby goats" inside the womb, and the presentation of a goats head to one of the children.

Further inspection of the premises disclosed numerous files relating to activities of the organization in different parts of the world. Locations I observed are as follows: London, Germany, the Bahamas, Japan, Bong Kong, Malaysia, Africa, Costa Rica, and "Europe." There was also a file identified as

Am 6

"Palestinian." Other files were identified by member name or 'project' name. The projects appearing to be operated for commercial purposes under front names for the Finders. There was one file entitled "Pentagon Break-In," and others which referred to members operating in foreign countries. Not observed by me but related by an MPD officer, were intelligence files on private families not related to the Finders. The process undertaken appears to have been a systmatic response to local newspaper advertisements for babysitters, tutors, etc. A member of the Finders would respond and gather as much information as possible about the habits, identity, occupation, etc., of the family. The use to which this information was to be put is still unknown. There was also a large amount of data collected on various child care organizations.

The warehouse contained a large library, two kitchens, a sauna, hot-tub, and a "video room." The video room seemed to be set up as an indoctrination center. It also appeared that the organization had the capability to produce its own videos. There were what appeared to be training areas for children and what appeared to be an alter set up in a residential area of the warehouse. Many jers of urine and faces were located in

I should also mention that both premises were equipped with satellite dish antennas. .

I discussed the course of action to be taken by HPD with Detective Bradley. He stated he was only interested in making the child abuse case(s). I was assured that all of the evidence would be available to U.S. Customs in furtherance of any investigative/criminal action pursued. MPD personnel were to begin around the clock review and sorting of the evidence until completed. Customs will have access after this is accomplished. This will include several U.S. Passports discovered during the search.

Upon leaving the 4th Street premises, I encountered a news media representative and was asked the reason behind U:s. Customs involvement in the investigation. I advised the reporter that I could not discuss anything and referred her to the RAC/DC. I left immediately thereafter.

There is no further information available at this time. It should take three to five days for all the information to be sorted, reviewed, logged by the HPD. I will naintain contact with Detective Bradley until the evidence is again accessible.

Respectfully submitted,

Special Agent, USCS

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office

(20985)

Copy No.

FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE

RESPECTING

IRAN

PART 11

January to December 1957

EP 1013/1

No. 4

POLITICAL REPORT ON IRAN FOR THE FOURTH QUARTER OF 1956

Sir Roger Stevens to Mr. Selwyn Lloyd. (Received January 22)

(No. 17. Confidential) Sir. Tehran,

January 18, 1957.

I have the honour to submit my report on events during the last quarter of 1956, which was remarkable for Iranian activity and initiative in the field of foreign affairs. The quarter began with Iran's election to the six-member executive group of the Suez Canal Users' Association. There followed State visits from Presidents Chamoun of the Lebanon and Eskander Mirza of Pakistan, and the holding of the Tehran conference of the Asian Baghdad Pact Powers. This conference undoubtedly did much to preserve the structure of the Baghdad Pact and helped to quieten anti-British opinion in Iraq and Pakistan as well as in Iran. Late November saw the expuision of a Saudi garrison from the Island of Arabi and its occupation by Iranian naval forces. In early December Iran, together with her three Asian Baghdad Pact Allies, officially requested the United States to consider joining the Pact. Lastly, in mid-December, Iran rather hurriedly suggested that a conference of Middle East Powers be held in Tehran to consider regional problems, a suggestion which came to nought owing to Egyptian-Syrian opposition:

 Otherwise, internal security was well maintained by the Military Government; and, after a show of fierce opposition, a U.S.$75 million International Bank loan for the Seven-year Plan Organisation was approved by Parliament.

Internal Affairs

EP 1013.1 No. 4

POLITICAL REPORT ON IRAN FOR THE FOURTH QUARTER OF 1956

Sir Roger Stevens to Mr. Selwen Lloyd. (Received January 22)

(No. 17. Confidential)

February, 18, 1957.

I have the horour to submit my report on events during the last quarter of 1956, which was remarkable for Iranian activity and initiative in the field of fereign affairs. The quarter began with Iran's election to the six-member executive group of the Suez Canai Users' Association. There followed State visits from Presidents Chamoon of the Lebanon and Eskander Mirzs of Pakislan, and the holding of the Tehran conference of the Asian Baghdad Pact Powers. This conference undoobtedly did much to preserve the structure of the Baghdad Pact and helped to quieten anti-British opinion in Iraq and Pakistan as well as in Iran. Late November saw the expulsion of a Saude garrison from the Island of Arabi and its occupation by Iranian navel forces. In early December Iran, together with her three Asian Baghdad Pact Allies, officially requested the United States to deroder joining the Pact. Lastly, in mid-December, han rather hurriedly suggested that a conference of Middle East Powers he held in Tehran to consider regional problems, a suggestion which came to nought owing to Egyptian-Syrian opposition.

 Otherwise, internal security was well maintained by the Military Government; and, after a show of Larce opposition, a U.S.$75 million International Bank loan for the Seven-year Plan Organisation was approved by Parliament.

Internal Affairs

- 3. Throughout the quarter, and particularly during the difficult weeks of the Suez crisis, internal security was well maintained. There was no doubt that the British action in Egypt stirred up anti-British feelings and a souse of outrage at the Angle-French attack on other Moslems in the country at large, and that it stimulated and focussod the emotional anglophobia which colours the views of many middle class and educated Iranians. But fortunately the authorities, and particularly the Military Government in Tehran, blocked virtually all means of communication between the anti-British intellectuals and the potentially anti-British masses; and, so, the head was denied opportunities to articulate any anti-British movement of the budy. The extremist politicisus and mullahs, exemplified by the demogagues Buga'i and Kashani, were placed under temporary restorat as snow as they attempted to start unti-British agitation; a budding pro-Egyptian students' movement was immediately and effectively nipped by the University Rector, Dr. Eghal; the Government-controlled radio followed a contious line, and the authorities were able to discourage the holding of any public meetings. During the first days of the crisis some freedom was allowed the Press, which adopted a generally ant-British tone, but the reits were tightened after the Ambassador and Press Officer had expressed their concern to the Prime Minister and Minister of the Interior respectively about sensational headlines. Throughout the crisis period the Shah and his Government clearly realised that if at a result of our action in Egypt anti-British or pro-Egyptian demonstrations got out of hand, it might spell the end of a regime which has staked its future on the Baghdad Pact including inter altoassociation with Britain. In this connexion, the Tehran conference of the four Asian Bughdad Pact Powers during the first week of November provided the Government with a splendid opportunity to create a diversion. The Shah, in reply to a telegram sent by the leading Shi'n divine, the aged Burujerdi, enquiring what was being done to help Egypt, was able to point out that the four-power communique calling on the Beitish and French for an immediate cosse-lice had been quickly followed by the bease-fire itself.
- 4. Action against the Tudeh Party continued. It has by now been reduced to a precarious and fragmentary underground existence, but there is evidently some life left in the cells. During October a military tribunal sentenced four party members to death and eight others to heavy terms of imprisonment, while in December arrests of Tudeh members were made in Februa and Tabriz. Brain washing of prisoners with a Tudeh background continued, and on the Shah's birthday some 50 of those

Internal Affairs

- 3. Throughout the quarter, and particularly during the difficult weeks of the Suez crisis, internal security was well maintained. There was no doubt that the British action in Egypt stirred up anti-British feelings and a sense of outrage at the Anglo-French attack on other Moslems in the country at large, and that it stimulated and focussed the emotional anglophobia which colours the views of many middle class and educated Iranians. But fortunately the authorities, and particularly the Military Government in Tehran, blocked virtually all means of communication between the anti-British intellectuals and the potentially anti-British masses: and, so, the head was denied opportunities to articulate any anti-British movement of the body. The extremist politicians and mullahs, exemplified by the demagogues Baqa'i and Kashani, were placed under temporary restraint as soon as they attempted to start anti-British agitation; a budding pro-Egyptian students' movement was immediately and effectively nipped by the University Rector, Dr. Eqbal: the Government-controlled radio followed a cautious line, and the authorities were able to discourage the holding of any public meetings. During the first days of the crisis some freedom was allowed the Press, which adopted a generally anti-British tone, but the reins were tightened after the Ambassador and Press Officer had expressed their concern to the Prime Minister and Minister of the Interior respectively about sensational headlines. Throughout the crisis period the Shah and his Government clearly realised that if as a result of our action in Egypt anti-British or pro-Egyptian demonstrations got out of hand, it might spell the end of a régime which has staked its future on the Baghdad Pact including inter alia association with Britain. In this connexion, the Tehran conference of the four Asian Baghdad Pact Powers during the first week of November provided the Government with a splendid opportunity to create a diversion. The Shah, in reply to a telegram sent by the leading Shi'a divine, the aged Burujerdi, enquiring what was being done to help Egypt, was able to point out that the four-power communiqué calling on the British and French for an immediate cease-fire had been quickly followed by the cease-fire itself.
- 4. Action against the Tudeh Party continued. It has by now been reduced to a precarious and fragmentary underground existence, but there is evidently some life left in the cells. During October a military tribunal sentenced four party members to death and eight others to heavy terms of imprisonment, while in December arrests of Tudeh members were made in Tehran and Tabriz. Brain washing of prisoners with a Tudeh background continued, and on the Shah's birthday some 60 of those

SECRET

56622 D

4. Action against the Tudeh Party continued. It has by now been reduced to a precarious and fragmentary underground existence, but there is evidently some life left in the cells. During October a military tribunal sentenced four party members to death and eight others to heavy terms of imprisonment, while in December arrests of Tudeh members were made in Tehran and Tabriz. Brain washing of prisoners with a Tudeh background continued, and on the Shah's birthday some 60 of those considered clean were amnestied. Some evidence accumulated that former members of Musaddeq's nationalist Iran Party were handing together for mutual co-operation and future political action. But they are moving cautiously and do not yet appear to present more than a petential threat to the régime or to British interests. However an edition of their clandestine journal the Rah i Musaddeq appeared containing a bitter attack on Her Majesty's Government's Egyptian policy and suggesting that the Iranian Government's attitudes had been arranged merely to please Sir Anthony Eden and Her Majesty The Queen.

SECRET

56622

5. In Parliament, interest centered on a show of rather fierce opposition from both houses to a bill approving a U.S.$75 million loan from the International Bank to the Seven-year Plan Organisation (S.Y.P.O.), to be used for financing development projects during the next two or three years. This opposition drew together, although for different reasons, conservative supporters of the regime and its nationalist and radical critics. It also has helped to give something of a rough shape to a corporate personality in the 19th Mailes which, however, remains as weak in leadership as in principle. A main cause of hostility to the loan lay in the fact that it was negotiated by Abdul Husain Ebtehai, the Seven-year Plan Organisation director who is, unhappily, detested by nearly everyone. Other sources of opposition were the traditional Iranian distrust of foreign loans and suspicion that this loan would lead to foreign supervision, claims that the loan was too large and would demand too heavy an amortisation, and fears that the loan, because tied to no particular project, would be frittered away on further plans and paper schemes. However, it was generally known that the Shah supported the bill and that when he cracked the whip it would be passed by Parliament. He did so just before Christmas, and almost immediately the bill was passed by both houses with only a few votes against. But in the preceding month Parliament, by digging its heels in and demonstrating hostility towards the loan, was able to make a passive and tunically Iranian show of protect against Ehtahai the Coverement and anticonsidered clean were amnestied. Some evidence accumulated that former members of Musaddeq's nationalist Iran Party were banding together for mutual co-operation and future political action. But they are moving cautiously and do not yet appear to present more than a potential threat to the régime or to British interests. However an edition of their clandestine journal the Rah i Musaddeq appeared containing a bitter attack on Her Majesty's Government's Egyptian policy and suggesting that the Iranian Government's attitudes had been arranged merely to please Sir Anthony Eden and Her Majesty The Queen.

5. In Parliament, interest centered on a show of rather fierce opposition from both houses to a bill approving a U.S.$75 million loan from the International Bank to the Seven-year Plan Organisation (S.Y.P.O.), to be used for financing

VIA

SUBJECT Special Research, Eluebird

General Problem

For the past several months Bluebird has been endeavoring to ascertain by research, study, instruction and some practice what value (if any) can be derived from SI and H techniques when applied to war and specific Agency problems. These broad problems; using known SI and H techniques, may be classified as follows:

- A. Can accurate information be obtained from willing or unwilling individuals.
- B. Can Agency:-personnel (or persons of interest to this agency) be conditioned to prevent any outside power from obtaining information from them by any known means?
- C. Can we obtain control of the future activities (physical and mental) of any given individual, willing or unwilling by application of SI and H techniques? . F-
- D. Can we prevent any outside power from gaining control of future activities (physical and mental) of agency personnel by any known means?

Bluebird believes that A (above) can be answered in the affirmative. using SI and H techniques. Bluebird is not fully satisfied with results to date, but believes with continued work and study remarkable and profitable results can be obtained regularly.

lionever, B. C. and D (above) are as yet unanswereable although Eluebird is of the opinion that there is a worthwhile chance that all three may at some future date be answered affirmatively. This opinion is supported generally

i

TOP SECRETSPECIAL HANDLING NOFORN

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY Directorate of Operations October 18th, 1964

MESCRANDOS POR THE DIRECTOR OF THE CIA

Subject After action report of Operation CRANGO (TS)

INTECHNICITION

- D Operation SURAD was part of the overall operation CLEANSWEEP, aimed at eliminating domestic opposition to estivities undertaken by the Central Intelligence Agency's Special Activities Division, in main regard to Operation SHILLOTERS.
- 2 Couration CUMICO tex approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Department of Defence and the office of The President of The United States as a covert domestic action to be under taken within the limits of Weshington DC as outlined by Secret Executive Order 57.

BACKGROUND

5) Following the publishing of the Server Consission, forcer special agent Mary Pincipst Never (Operation NOCKINGER), Operation SIRES) sho was warried to Cord Names (Operation NOCKINGER), Operation SULLIGHTED threatened to disclose the details of several Special Activities Divisions' Operations, including, but not limited to Operation SIRES, and Operating SULLIGHTES.

TOP SECRETSPECIAL HANDEING NOFORN

SACRETROUND COME

- 4) It was document necessary by senting Directorate of Operations announce to initiate Operation CHESCO on an estimation of Operation CHESCOPER on Newspaper 20th, when Early Pinnish News threshound to report her knowledge of Operation CHILLOTHES and the details of her work in Operation SURES from her affair sith the former President.
- 5) Special Activities Division operate were given the green light for CACACO directly after directly brising President Johnson on the exhaution. The situation report was forwarded to the Department of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff; sho both approved of the parameters of the operation, as outlined under article C of secret executive order 57 (see attached copy of article).

PLANNING STACKS

- 6) S needers of the Special activities Division handpicked by operation lead William King Herrey began planning for the operation on October 3nd, with planned execution before October 15th
- 7) The OA of the operation was set as the neighborhood of Gampetons along the Potonac Elver, where the operators sould chapter, take cote or routines, and eventually carry out the operation.
- So After noting Mayor's routines, School Sody Reid was picked as the operation's print man also would intersect Mayor on her nightly salk on Oriober 12th, with land William King Harvey providing long range support if recomming from across the Chesapsake and Onio canal (see illustration & for detailed map).
- 3) Edward Reid was placed to be dressed in the manner of a honeless block man, due to his rescablence to local trasp Cater found out to be named Raymond Crossp) who inhabite the AO and the path that Reid was planted to intersect Keyer

2

TOP SECRET SPECIAL HANDLING NOFOR'

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Project ARTICHOKE

ARTICHOKE is the Agency cryptonym for the study and/or use of "special" interrogation methods and techniques. These "special" interrogation methods have been known to include the use of drugs and chemicals, hypnosis, and "total isolation," a form of psychological harassment.

A review of available file information obtained from Office of Security resources failed to reflect a comprehensive or complete picture of the ARTICHOKE program as participated in by the Office of Security. Fragmentary information contained in a variety of files previously maintained by the Security Research Staff (SRS) reflected several basic papers which described, in general terms, the program known as ARTICHOKE. Information contained therein indicated that prior to 1952, the Office of Security had studied the use of drugs and chemicals in "unconventional interrogation." These studies were evidently coordinated with the Agency unit which was then called OSI. OSI at that time apparently was the coordinating unit within CIA.

One paper reflected that an Office of Security team as early as 1949-50 experimented with drugs and hypnosis under a project called BLUEBIRD. This paper also reflected that by 1951 actual interrogations utilizing drugs were conducted by a combined team of Office of Security and Office of Nedical Services personnel, but few details were available.

File information indicated that in 1952, overall responsibility for Project ARTICHOKE passed from OSI to the Office of Security. References to operational use of drugs as an aid to interrogation since that time were found in various files, but few details concerning these experiments were reflected. A memorandum, subject title: Project ARTICHOKE, dated 21 November 1952, by Mr. Sheffield EDWARDS, reflected transfer of control of Project ARTICHOKE from OSI to the Office of Security. The memorandum indicated that I&SO (Office of Security) should call upon the research and support facilities of the CIA Medical Staff and the Office of Technical Services as required. Responsibility for the evaluation of foreign intelligence aspects of the project were to remain with OSI.

The unit within the Office of Security which apparently coordinated Project ARTICHOKE activities was SRS, with Mr. Mr. Details of Office of Security involvement in individual Project ARTICHOKE operational utilizations were found in very few instances. A reference in an SRS log (1951-67) reflected, however, that SRS had been involved in the experimentation and use of hypnosis "from the start." In the same reference, it was stated that "SRS has examined and investigated numerous unusual techniques of interrogation including psychological harassment and such matters as 'total isolation'." The SRS log referred to above, which covered a period from 1951 to 1967, indicated that, as of 1967, the term ARTICHOKE is not in general use now, and drug interrogation is conducted from the recommendation of an Agency committee of which the Chief, SRS, is the Office of Security representative." No record was found which reflected when or if overall responsibility for Project ARTICHOKE was transferred from the Office of Security to any other Agency component.

One of the few areas where detailed information was available was concerned with hypnotic experimentations. A log of hypnotic experiments conducted by Office of Security personnel was reviewed. The log reflected that numerous (probably several hundred) experiments with hypnotism were conducted in Agency buildings, apparently utilizing the staff employee volunteers as subjects. In some instances, representatives from Agency components other than the Office of Security. were present. The log reflected hypnotic experimentations during 1951, 1952, and 1953. It could not be determined from available file information when the hypnotic experiments actually began or were caused to be ceased. No record was located which reflected hypnosis utilized as an actual operational tool in the field. In connection with hypnotism, it appears that SRS utilized an Agency employee, one as an informant in various societies dealing with hypnotism to keep abreast of current developments in the field.

- (c) A series of cables between and Headquarters in 1955 requested ARTICHOKE interrogations for nine persons. No disposition in this instance was found, however, a transmittal slip affixed to the materials dated in 1960 indicated that the ARTICHOKE interrogations probably did not actually take place in formal at that time.
- (d) A memo contained in the security file of was dispatched to an article in June 1952 to conduct ARTICHOKE interrogations on process. No further reference to this operation was noted, and no disposition could be found.
- operation in plantage of drugs were utilized in the interrogation which took place intervaluate. Again, details of the operation were not available. However, an interview with the Office of Security representative who participated in the interrogation revealed that a form of LSD was used in this instance. In this case, approval was granted by Headquarters for the ARTICHOKE interrogation. A memorandum dated 6 July 1960, signed by Mr. The company Deputy Director of Security, reflected that approval for use of drugs in this case was granted at a meeting of the Drug Committee on 1 July 1960 and cabled to the drugs of the Drug Committee on 1

As stated earlier, little detail was available in file information concerning the conduct of actual cases utilizing Project ARTICHOKE techniques: It appears obvious, however, that the few cases noted above were only a small part of the actual utilization of ARTICHOKE techniques in the field. For one thing, almost no information was available for the period prior to 1952, so that Project BLUEBIRD experiments and operations were not noted specifically. In addition, annual reports of accomplishments found in SRS log materials reflected a substantial amount of activity in the Project ARTICHOKE area. The review for 1953-1954 stated in part that SRS had "dispatched an ARTICHOKE team for permanent location in an overseas area." The review for 1954-1955 stated in part that SRS conducted numerous ARTICHOKE experiments and "prepared and dispatched an ARTICHOKE team to an overseas area to handle a number of sensitive cases."

"total isolation" as an interrogation aid. A memorandum pertaining to this subject, dated 21 March 1955, was written by Mr. March of SRS to the Director of Security. The paper discussed "total isolation" techniques as an operational tool of potential. Another paper (a sterilized version, probably written by an element of the Department of Defense) dated 16 March 1955, reflected the results of "total isolation" experiments on six volunteers, all members of the U.S. military. No reference was found to any additional experiments in this field, nor was any reference found which reflected actual use of this technique in an operational situation.

As far as the experimentation and/or utilization of various drugs is concerned, references to a few instances were located, but little detail was available, and it was clear from the files that much of the detailed information probably was maintained by Agency units other than the Office of Security, i.e., the Office of Medical Services and the Office of Technical Services.

Among the instances where details were located in which drugs were used in an operational environment under the auspices of Project ARTICHOKE, were the following:

- (a) In 1954 three subjects were interrogated by a Project ARTICHOKE team utilizing drugs of an unspecified nature. The three subjects were identified as the subjects were identified as the subjects were identified as the subject of the interrogations in a memorandum dated 13 January 1955, with a cover sheet signed by Mr. The interrogations took place in Francis, and the memorandum mentioned injections of "solution #1" and "solution #2," but these drugs were not further identified. It was noted in the memorandum that the cases were handled "under straight drug techniques -- hypnosis or narco-hypnosis was not attempted."
- (b) A memorandum dated 20 January 1959 to Mr. Remarkable from Mr. Remarkable indicated that a field request had been made for a "P-1 interrogation." The writer make identified a "P-1 interrogation" as one using LSD. Approval was granted on 27 January 1959 by the initials
 The state of the st

Review of file materials consistently reflected that the Office of Security exercised caution in the utilization of drugs under the ARTICHOKE Program. Although it is apparent that SRS for a number of years was engaged with certain other Agency components in research and operational work with hallucinogenic drugs, the work was apparently conducted under strict controls. As previously stated, no information pertaining to when or if control of Project ARTICHOKE was transferred from the Office of Security to another Agency component was located. Apparently, SRS at one time maintained an inventory of ARTICHOKE materials. which contained numerous drugs of all types including LSD-25. A memorandum dated 14 October 1957 requested authorization for SRS to transfer ARTICHOKE materials and apparatus to Dr. Estate of Medical Services. The memorandum was written by Mr. And approval to transfer the materials was granted by Mr. 2007 on 17 October 1957.

God John

In the review of file information contained in SRS. materials, one incident which occurred in November 1953 appears worthy of note. Although it was not clear from file information whether or not the incident occurred under the auspices of Project ARTICHOKE, the incident did involve use of LSD in an experimental exercise. One Frank OLSON, a civilian employee of the Department of the Army, committed suicide a week or so after having been administered LSD by an Agency representative. Details concerning this incident apparently will be reported in a separate memorandum, but it appears that the drug was administered to several unwitting subjects by a Dr. GOTTLIEB, at that time a branch chief in TSS (now OTS). A short time after the LSD was administered. the subjects were told that they had been given LSD. the day following the experiment, OLSON began to behave in a peculiar and erratic manner and was later placed under the care of a psychiatrist. A few days later, OLSON crashed through a window in a New York hotel in an apparent suicide.

A memorandum dated 1 December 1953 from the IG Staff. caused the impoundment of all LSD materials. Information contained in the above mentioned files reflected that the drug had been administered without the prior knowledge or approval of the Office of Security or the Office of Medical Services.

JAN 22 1954

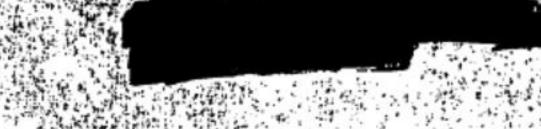

Senior Representative

· 我们在我的世

SUBJECT . GENERAL . Security .

SPECIFIC ARTICHOKE Report

- 1. Herewith report of ARTICHCKE Team on first assignment. Considering the speed with which we had to operate, I believe it went extremely well. . We were ready when called upon for support, even though the operation did not materialize.
- I have left blank certain identifying information which is known to

ENCLOSURE: Report of ARTICHOKE Team (3 copies)

22 January 1954

Distribution:

1. 2 & 3 - Addressee

Jamuary to 15 Jamuary 1954. The purpose of the visit was to give an evaluation of a hypothetical problem, namely: Can an individual of  descent be made to perform an act of attempted assassimation involuntarily under the influence of ARTICHCKE?

2. PROBLEM:

a. The essential elements of the problem are as follows:

(1) As a "trigger mechanism" for a bigger project, it was proposed that an individual of  descent, approximately 35 years old, well educated, proficient in English and well established socially and politically in the * Government be induced under ARTICHOKE to perform an act, involuntarily, of attempted assassination against a prominent  politician or if necessary, against an American official? The SUBJECT was formerly in has since terminated and is now employed with the Government. According to all available information, the SUBJECT would offer no further cooperation with Access to the SUBJECT would be extremely limited, probably limited to a single social meeting. Because the SUBJECT is a heavy drinker, it was proposed that the individual could be surreptitiously drugged through the medium of an alcoholic cocktail at a social party, ARTICHCKE applied and the SUBJECT induced to perform the act of attempted assassination at some later date. All the above was to be accomplished at one involuntary uncontrolled social meeting. After the act of attempted assassination was performed, it was assumed that the SUBJECT would be taken into custody by the  Government and thereby "disposed of," Other than personal reassur Mans of security involving the project, techniques, personnel and disposal of the SUBJECT were not indicated. Whether the proposed. act of attempted assassination was carried out or not by the SUBJECT was of no great significance in relation to the overall project.

3/3

3. CONCLUSIONS:

- a. In answer to the hypothetical question, can an individual of  descent be made to perform an act of attempted assassination, involuntarily, under ARTICHOKE, according to the above conditions, the answer in this case was probably "No" because of the limitations imposed operationally as follows:
- (1) The SUBJECT would be an involuntary and unwitting SUBJECT.
 - (2) We would have none, or, at most, very limited physical control and custody of the SUBJECT.
 - (3) Access to the SUBJECT is strictly limited . to a social engagement among a mixed group of both cleared and uncleared personnel
- 4. The final answer was that in view of the fact that successful completion of this proposed act of attempted assassination was insignificant to the overall project; to wit, whether it was even carried out or not, that under "crash conditions" and appropriate authority from Headquarters, the ARTICHOKE Team would undertake the problem in spite of the

ADDENDUM:

Two main problems presented itself in relation to answering the above hypothetical question.

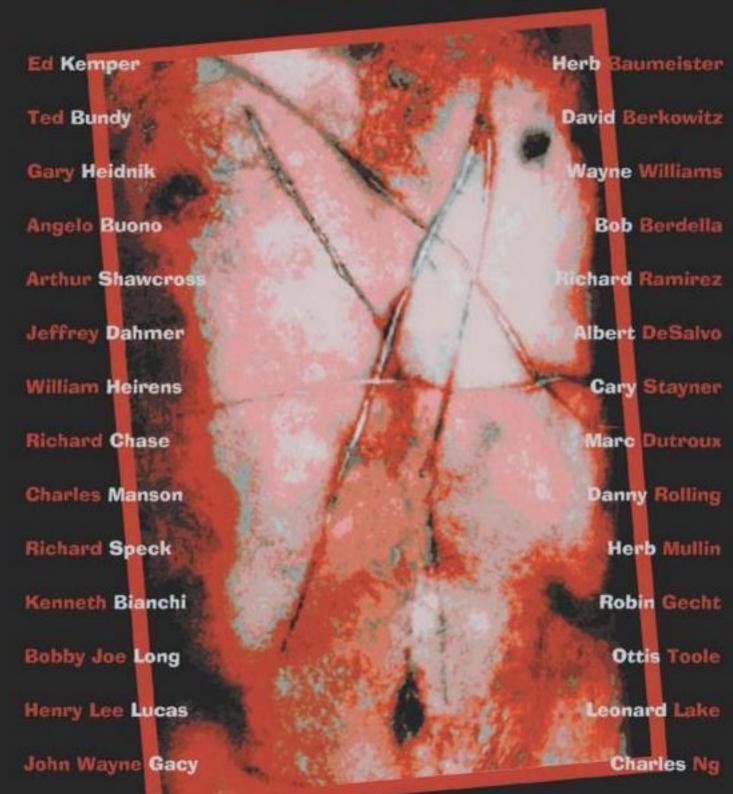

a. Security: Insufficient consideration was given to the fact that any leakage of ARTICHOKE through performance of the proposed problem would jeopardize the entire future application and proposed activity of the ARTICHOKE Team in the

b. It was the unanimous opinion of all ARTICHCKE members that unless the ARTICHCKE Team had more detailed access to the operational plan it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to carry out the assigned mission.

* simulated only

I This would be made available where and if required -

The Politics of Serial Murder

David McGowan

Codeword Projects Identified by the Central Intelligence Agency

In testimony on August 3, 1977, before a joint session of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and the Senate Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research, the Director of Central Intelligence reported that the Central Intelligence Agency had located a number of boxes of documents, consisting largely of financial records, relating to experiments using human subjects in which drugs were tested for mind-control and behavior-modification purposes. The Director testified that it appeared that three of the projects described by these documents -- projects designated MKSEARCH, MKOFTEN and MXCHICKWIT -- were Department of Defense programs with which the Central Intelligence Agency had had some contact. The Director also described three other projects -- designated MKULTRA, MKDELTA and MKNAOMI -- which were primarily Central Intelligence Agency projects but which might have had some Department of Defense involvement.

It appears from the available documents that these projects cover subject matters as follows:

- MKDELTA: This was apparently the first project established by CIA in October, 1952, for the use of biochemicals in clandestine operations. It may never have been implemented operationally.
- MKULTRA: This was a successor project to MKDELTA established in April, 1953, and terminating some time in the late 1960's, probably after 1966. This program considered various means of controlling human behavior. Drugs were only one aspect of this activity.
- MKNAOMI: This project began in the 1950's and was terminated, at least with respect to biological projects, in 1969. This may have been a successor

OUTLINE OF LEECTLE H CAGES

In a general request for volunteers volunteered for H experimentation and were originally tested on 21 May 1951. Poth girls were, at this time, nineteen years of age.

A On 9 January 1962, in a group of volunteers.

initially thated in the H techniques along with a group of volunteers.

A lat this time, was beenty years of ago.

In each instance, all volunteers on the initial contact were given a brief discussion of H. were given a very concrat picture of Security's interest in the work and were given a very cointed leature on the mesonsary security essential to these operations.

In each instance, after the above explanations had been made, all subjects were tested in the following manner:

- A. Falling back test
- P. Hand and arm levitation test
- C. Separal relaxation procedure with explanation.

responded successfully to the falling back and britation tests but on the relaxation or sleep induction tests were not everly successful. However,

On Saturday, April 27, 1996, Colby died in what appears to have been a boating accident near his home in Rock Point, Maryland. There was speculation that Colby's death was due to foul play or suicide. The Maryland state coroner, however, ruled that Colby had suffered either a heart attack or a stroke due to a discernible plaque build-up in his arteries, and had fallen into the water and drowned. [7] Most of Colby's family and his biographer viewed a suicide as completely inconsistent with his character. However, in a biographical documentary developed by Colby's son Carl Colby, he speculated that Colby had simply, ...had enough of this life."[8][9]

[edit]

>>16499696

"During World War II, I worked this technique with a vulnerable Marine lieutenant I'll call Jones. Under the watchful eye of Marine intelligence I split his personality into Jones A and Jones B. Jones A, once a 'normal' working Marine, became entirely different. He talked communist doctrine and meant it. He was welcomed enthusiastically by communist cells, and was deliberately given a dishonorable discharge by the Corps (which was in on the plot) and became a card-carrying party member. All I had to do was hypnotize the whole man, get in touch with Jones B, the loyal American, and I had a pipeline straight into the Communist camp."

-GH Estabrook

Estabrooks was a Rhodes scholar, chairman of the department of psychology at Colgate University and one of the earliest MKULTRA researchers

Lost And Alone With No Body

Project MKNAOMI

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

MKNAOMI was the code name for a joint Department of Defense/CIA research program lasting from the 1950s through the 1970s. Unclassified information about the MKNAOMI program and the related Special Operations Division is scarce. It is generally reported to be a successor to the MKDELTA project and to have focused on biological projects including biological warfare agents—specifically, to store materials that could either incapacitate or kill a test subject and to develop devices for the diffusion of such materials. [1][2][3][4][5]

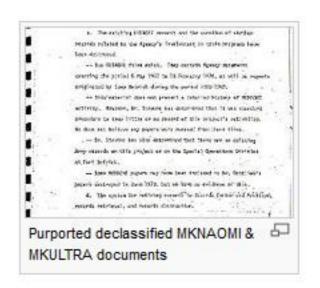

During the first twenty years of its establishment, the CIA engaged in various projects designed to increase U.S. biological and chemical warfare capabilities. Project MKNAOMI was initiated to provide the CIA with a covert support base to meet its top-secret operational requirements. The purpose was to establish a robust arsenal within the CIA's Technical Services Division (TSD) and of which was to consist of various lethal and incapacitating materials. This would enable the TSD to serve as a highly maintained center for the circulation of biological and chemical materials. [citation needed]

Surveillance, testing, upgrading, and the evaluation of special materials and items were also provided by MKNAOMI so as to ensure that no defects and unwanted contingencies emerged during operational conditions. For these purposes the U.S. Army's Special Operations Command (SOC) was assigned to assist the CIA in the development, testing, and maintenance procedures for the biological agents and delivery systems (1952). Both the CIA and SOC also modified guns that fired special development, testing, and maintenance procedures for the biological agents and delivery systems (1952). Both the CIA and SOC also modified guns that fired special darts coated with biological agents and various poisonous pills. The darts would serve to incapacitate guard dogs, infiltrate the area that the dogs were guarding, and then awaken the dogs upon exiting the facility. In addition, the SOC was also designated to research the potentials for using biological agents against other animals and crops. [citation needed]

A 1967 CIA memo which was uncovered by the Church Committee was confirmed to give evidence of at least three covert techniques for attacking and poisoning crops that have been examined under field conditions. On November 25, 1969, President Richard Nixon abolished any military practice involving biological weapons and Project MKNAOMI was dissolved. On February 14, 1970, a presidential order was given to outlaw all stockpiles of bacteriological weapons and nonliving toxins. However, despite this presidential order, a CIA scientist was able to acquire an estimated 11 grams of deadly shellfish toxin from SOC personnel at Fort Detrick. The toxin was then stored in a CIA laboratory where it remained undetected for over five years. [6]

Coordinates: (38°57'06"N 77°08'48"W

This project began in 1971 and was terminated in 1973. It was carried out by the Edgewood Arsenal Research Laboratories and was funded by the Central Intelligence Agency. This project was a part of the project designated as MKOFTEN.

It appears from the available documents that Edgewood had been testing a number of incapacitating agents in its own programs without Central Intelligence Agency participation. Edgewood identified a compound designated as EA#3167 as particularly effective and tested it on animals. Edgewood also engaged in clinical testing on human volunteers at the Holmesburg State Prison in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, using prisoners as test subjects and at the Edgewood laboratories using military personnel as test subjects. It appears that all of the test subjects were volunteers and that stringent medical safeguards and tollowup procedures were used.

In 1971, the Central Intelligence Agency reviewed prior Edgewood work and identified EA#3167 as relevant to the MKOFTEN program. The Agency set up a joint effort with Edgewood to pursue further testing of this compound. In 1971, the Agency transferred to Edgewood $37,000 for this purpose. Most of the testing under CIA sponsorship was with animals. The primary effort was to determine whether EA#3167 could be used effectively if applied to the skin through some type of adhesive tape. There was only one experiment that involved human subjects. In June, 1973, two military volunteers were apparently tested using EA#3167. The documents do not give any details with respect to these tests.

"[T]he experimenters will be particularly interested in dissociative states, from the abaissement de niveau mental to multiple personality in so-called mediums, and an attempt will be made to induce a number of states of this kind, using hypnosis."

-From a declassified MK-ULTRA1 document

Levels of MONARCH Programming [12]

ALPHA. Regarded as ageneral or regular programming within the base control personality; characterized by extremely pronounced memory retention, along with substantially increased physical strength and visual acuity. Alpha programming is accomplished through deliberately subdividing the victims personality which, in essence, causes a left brain-right brain division, allowing for a programmed union of L and R through neuron pathway stimulation.

BETA. Referred to as asexual programming. This programming eliminates all learned moral convictions and stimulates the primitive sexual instinct, devoid of inhibitions, acata alters may come out at this level.

DELTA. This is known as akillera programming, originally developed for training special agents or elite soldiers (i.e. Delta Force, First Earth Battalion, Mossad, etc.) in covert operations. Optimal adrenal output and controlled aggression is evident. Subjects are devoid of fear; very systematic in carrying out their assignment. Self-destruct or suicide instructions are layered in at this level. THETA considered to the apsychica programming. Bloodliners (those coming from multi-generational Satanic families) were determined to exhibit a greater propensity for having telepathic abilities than did non-bloodliners. Due to its evident limitations, however, various forms of electronic mind control systems were developed and introduced, namely, bio-medical human telemetry devices (brain implants), directed-energy lasers using microwaves and/or electromagnetics. It is reported these are used in conjunction with highly-advanced computers and sophisticated satellite tracking systems.

OMEGA. A âself-destructâ form of programming, also known as âCode Green.â The corresponding behaviors include suicidal tendencies and/or self-mutilation. This program is generally activated when the victim/survivor begins therapy or interrogation and too much memory is being recovered.

GAMMA. Another form of system protection is through adeceptional programming, which elicits misinformation and misdirection. This level is intertwined with demonology and tends to regenerate itself at a later time if inappropriately deactivated.

Method and Components

The initial process begins with creating dissociation within the subject, usually occurring from the time of birth to about six years. This is primarily achieved through the use of electroshock (ECT) and is at times performed even when the child is in the motheras womb. Due to the severe trauma induced through ECT, sexual abuse and other methods, the mind splits off into alternate personalities from the core. Formerly referred to as Multiple Personality Disorder, it is presently recognized as Dissociative Identity Disorder and is the basis for MONARCH programming. Further conditioning of the victimas mind is enhanced through hypnotism, double-bind coercion, pleasure-pain reversals, food, water, sleep and sensory deprivation, along with various drugs which alter certain cerebral functions.

The next stage is to embed and compress detailed commands or messages within the specified alter. This is achieved through the use of hi-tech headsets, in conjunction with computer-driven generators which emit inaudible sound waves or harmonics that affect the RNA covering of neuron pathways to the subconscious and unconscious mind. aVirtual Realitya optical devices are sometimes used simultaneously with the harmonic generators projecting pulsating colored lights, subliminals and split-screen visuals. High voltage electroshock is then used for memory dissolution.

>>13745708 >>Project Monarch >A myth with no evidence
>When former CIA Director William Colby was asked directly, "What about monarch?" he replied angrily and ambiguously, "We stopped that between the late 1960s and the early 1970s."
Source: Anton Chaitkin, "Franklin Witnesses Implicate FBI and U.S. Elites in Torture and Murder of Children", The New Federalist

Anonymous 40r 05/04/13(Sat)21:35 No.13745778

Try harder next time, disinfo

Welcome About Me Write a Review Find Friends Messaging Talk Events Monarch Restaurant & Lounge 🔝 😭 📞 🔝 80 reviews 🗏 Rating Details Categories: American (New), Lounges [Edit] Hotel Zaza 5701 Main St Houston, TX 77005 Neighborhood: Museum District (713) 527-1800 http://www.hotelzaza.com/#houston/... 1 of 41 > Menu Add Photos View All Photos Make a Reservation Date & Time Party Size

After WWII, the U.S. Department of Defense secretly imported many of the top German Nazi and Italian Fascist scientists and spies into the United States via South America and the Vatican. The code name for this operation was Project PAPERCLIP.[4] One of the more prominent finds for the U.S. was German General Reinhard Gehlen. Hitlerâs Chief of Intelligence against Russia. Upon arriving in Washington D.C. in 1945, Gehlen met extensively with President Truman, General William âWild Billâ Donovan, Director of the Office of Strategic Services(OSS) and Allen Dulles, who would later become the stalwart head of the CIA. The objective of their brain-storming sessions was to reorganize the nominal American intelligence operation, transforming it into a highly-efficient covert organization. The culmination of their efforts produced the Central Intelligence Group in 1946, renamed the Central Intelligence Agency(CIA) in 1947.

Reinhard Gehlen also had profound influence in helping to create the National Security Council, from which the National Security Act of 1947 was derived. This particular piece of legislation was implemented to protect an unconscionable number of illegal government activities, including clandestine mind control programs.

The Evolution of Project MKULTRA

With the CIA and National Security Council firmly established, the first in a series of covert brain-washing programs was initiated by the Navy in the fall of 1947. Project CHATTER was developed in response to the Sovietâs âsuccessesâ through the use of âtruth drugs.â This rationale, however was simply a cover story if the program were to be exposed. The research focused on the identification and testing of such drugs for use in interrogations and the recruitment of agents.[5] The project was officially terminated in 1953.

The CIA decided to expand their efforts in the area of behavior modification, with the advent of Project BLUEBIRD, approved by director Allen Dulles in 1950. Its objectives were to;

- (1) discover a means of conditioning personnel to prevent unauthorized extraction of information from them by known means,
- (2) investigate the possibility of control of an individual by application of special interrogation techniques,
- (3) investigate memory enhancement and
- (4) establish defensive means for preventing hostile control of agency personnel.

years prior to the halt of Project ARTICHOKE, Project MKULTRA came into existence on April 13, 1953 along the lines proposed by Richard Helms, Deputy Director of Central Intelligence (DDCI) with the rationale of establishing a special funding mechanism of extreme sensitivity. second from the post war Nazi talent pool, were an invaluable asset toward the development of MKULTRA. The correlation between the concentration camp experiments and the numerous sub-projects of MKULTRA are clearly evident. The various avenues used to control human behavior under MKULTRA included radiation, electroshock, psychology, psychiatry, sociology, anthropology, graphology, harassment substances and paramilitary devices and materials substances and materials asset to materials as to give the use of MKULTRA abroad. MKULTRA/DELTA materials were used for harassment, discrediting or disabling purposes. sociology appears to be the most prominent and is still classified as TOP SECRET for security areasons. MONARCH may have culminated from MKSEARCH subprojects, such as operation SPELLBINDER, which was set up to create assessed assassins (i.e. amanchurian candidates) who could be activated upon receiving a key word or phrase while in a post-hypnotic trance. Operation OFTEN, a study which attempted to harness the power of occultic forces was possibly one of several cover programs to hide the insidious reality of Project MONARCH.

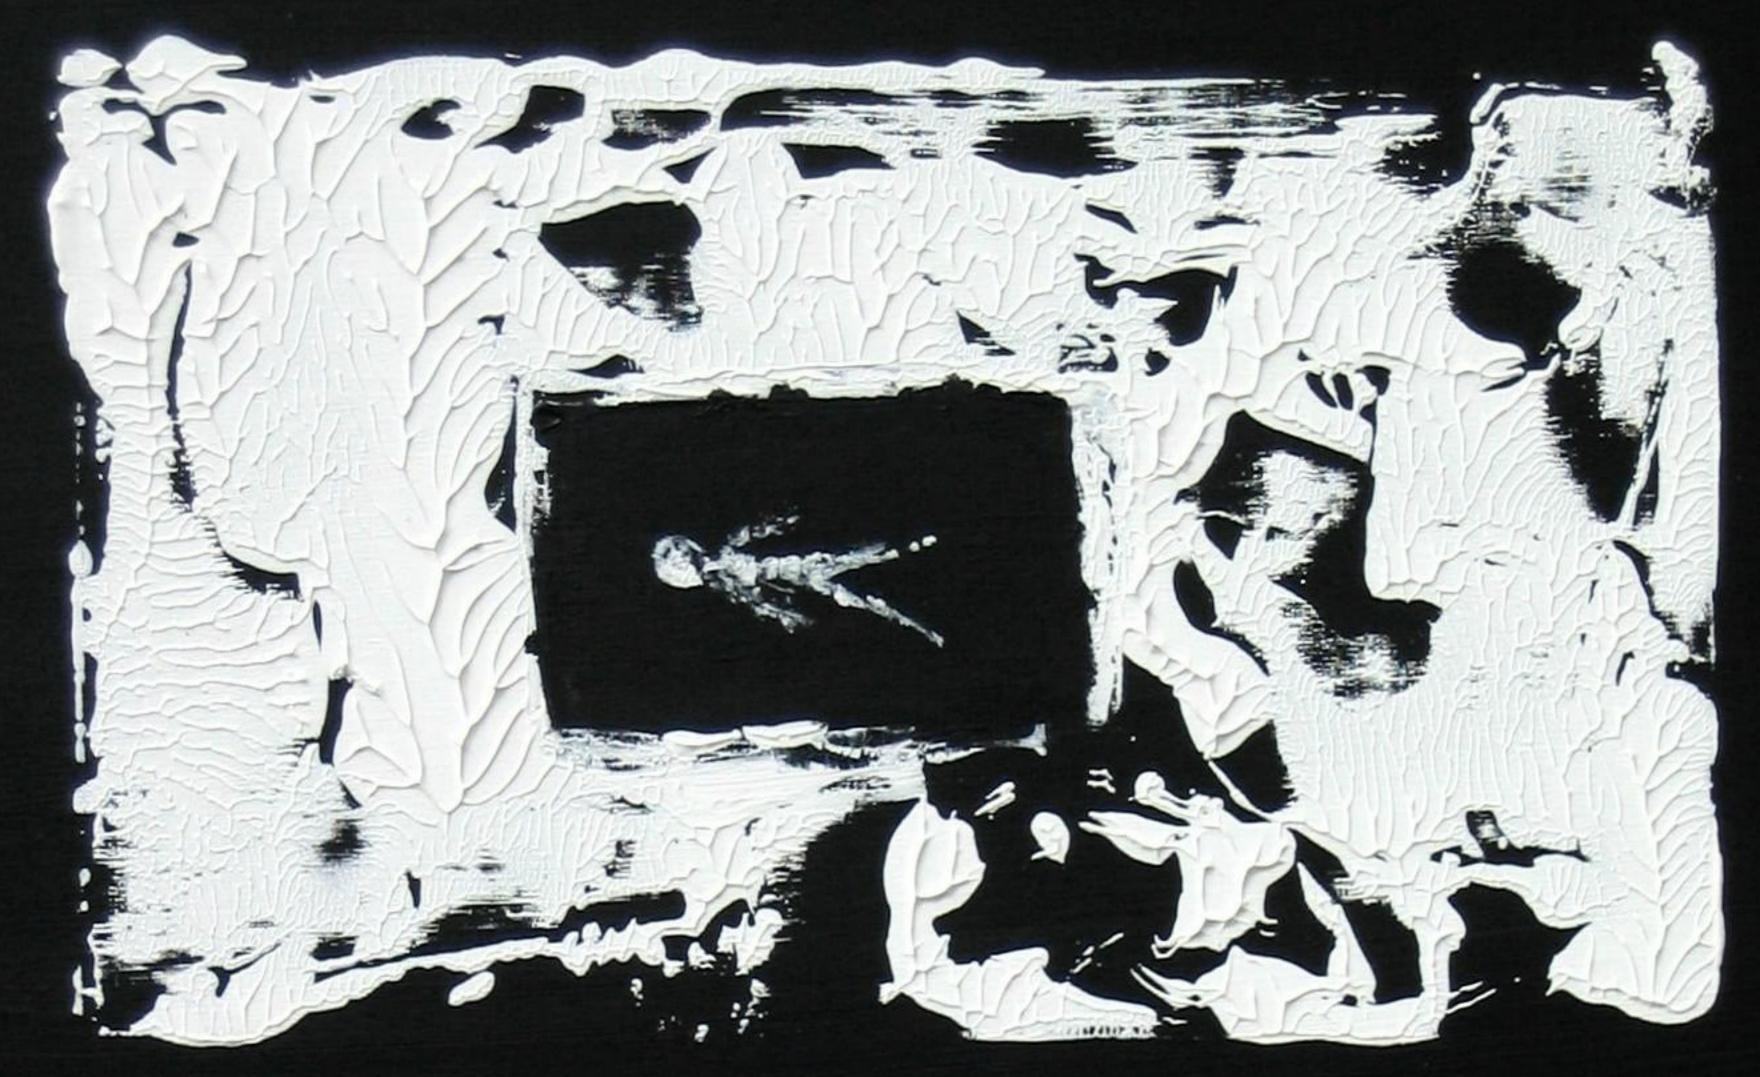

In August 1951, Project BLUE BIRD was renamed Project ARTICHOKE, which evaluated offensive uses of interrogation techniques, including hypnosis and drugs The program ceased in 1956. Three

Two emirzlied ant mage their altry expant from amid their and their amid point of their and their suld their authority and their and and a like is and a limit pronuments.

"You don't understand me. You are not expected to. You are not capable of it. I am beyond good and evil. Legions of the night, night breed, repeat not the errors of the Night Prowler and show no mercy."

-Richard "The Night Stalker" Ramirez

"There are other 'Sons' out there—God help the world."

—David "Son of Sam" Berkowitz

"What about your children? You say there are just a few? There are many, many more, coming in the same direction. They are running in the streets—and they are coming right at you!"

-Charles Milles Manson

"The really scary thing is that there are a lot of people who are not in prison, a lot of people who are not in prison, who were far more successful than I."

—Theodore Robert Bundy

"All across the country, there's people just like me, who set out to destroy human life."

—Henry Lee Lucas

Programmers and Places

Itâs difficult to figure out who the original programmer of this satanic project was, due to the substantial amount of disinformation and cross-contamination propagated by the âpowers that be.â The two that went by the color-coded name of Dr. Green are a Jewish doctor named Dr. Gruenbaum, who supposedly collaborated with the Nazis during WWII, and Dr. Josef Mengele, whose trademark of cold blooded and calculating brutality has not only scarred the souls of survivors from Auschwitz, but also a countless number of victims throughout the world. Mengeleâs direct involvement at the infamous Auschwitz concentration camp was suspiciously downplayed during the Nuremberg Trials, and consequently no intensified effort by the U.S. and itâs allies was directed toward his capture.[13] As a means to confuse serious investigators as to his whereabouts, U.S. officials would report Mengele being a non-threatening, recluse in Paraguay or Brazil, or that he was simply dead (the âAngel of Deathâ miraculously must have come back to life at least five different times).

His unprecedented research, at the expense of thousands of lives, undoubtedly was a significant bonus to U.S. interests, Besides using the pseudonym of Dr. Green, survivors knew him as Vaterchen (daddy), Schoner Josef (beautiful Joseph), David and Fairchild. A gracefully handsome man of slight stature, Mengele would disarm people with his gentle demeanor, while at other times, he would explode into violent rages. [14] Other characteristics remembered by survivors were the cadence of his shiny black boots as he paced back and forth and his I-love-you/I-love-you-notâ daisy game. When he pulled off the last daisy petal, he would maliciously torture and kill a small child in front of the other child he was programming. Distraught survivors also recalled being thrown naked into cages with monkeys, who were trained to viciously abuse them. Evidently, Mengele enjoyed reducing people to the level of animals. He also would purposely restrain his victims from crying, screaming, or showing any excessive emotion.

The victims of Resendez-Ramirez, for instance, ranged in age from 21 to 88 years, with a mix of males and females. The cause of death varied as well, with most being bludgeoned, though one was shot in the head, another stabbed, and yet another had a pick-ax buried in her head. Though not readily apparent, almost all of the weapons used for inflicting death—by both Lucas and Ramirez—had one thing in common: they are what are termed "weapons of opportunity." In other words, they are weapons that were acquired at the crime scene immediately before the murders were committed. Notably, this precisely mirrors the means by which the CIA has historically taught its assassins to kill. A CIA training manual entitled A Study of Assassination advises the would-be killer: "the simplest local tools are often the most efficient means of assassination. A hammer, axe, wrench, screwdriver, fire poker, kitchen knife, lamp stand, or anything hard, heavy and handy will suffice...All such improvised weapons have the important advantage of availability and apparent innocence...the assassin may accidentally be searched before the act and should not carry an incriminating device if any sort of lethal weapon can be improvised at or near the site." This

The Mafia assassination service known as Murder, Inc.—the brainchild of the Lansky/Luciano syndicate, which had extensive connections to U.S. intelligence agencies—had a remarkably similar philosophy. As Jay Robert Nash notes in Bloodletters and Bad Men: "Like most of Murder, Inc.'s assassins, Pittsburgh Phil never carried a weapon in case the local police picked him up on suspicion. He would cast about, once he had selected his murder spot, for any tool handy that advice has been taken to heart by a good number of 'serial killers.'

David McGowan • 101

would do the job." It should probably be noted here, while we're on the subject, that the man identified as Pittsburgh Phil, whose real name was Harry Strauss, was credited with killing at least 500 people in this manner from the late 1920s through 1940. This feat should put him at or near the top of any self-respecting serial killer list.

Henry Lee recounts in The Hand of Death that his training by the Hand of Death cult followed the same time-honored tradition. Of course, the FBI assures us that satanic cults and satanic crime do not exist in modern-day America. To put this assertion in its proper context, however, it is important to remember that this is the very same FBI that, during the reign of Murder, Inc., and for several decades thereafter, refused to acknowledge the existence of organized crime in America. It is also the same FBI that for years ignored and denied the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan in the early part of the twentieth century. The FBI, in other words, has a long history of denying the existence of indigenous groups devoted to terrorizing American society.

Other than utilizing weapons of opportunity, the most common means by which professional assassins carry out their 'contracts' is with a small caliber bullet fired at point-blank range to the head-typically with either a .22 or .25 caliber handgun. Inflicting such a wound is quick, efficient, relatively quiet, reasonably clean and, most importantly, highly lethal. Contrary to conventional wisdom, a small caliber round to the head is more often fatal than a larger caliber bullet, because the smaller projectile has enough velocity to make the initial penetration into the dense skull bones, but not enough to make an exit wound. Once inside the brain cavity then, the slug will tend to ricochet around the curved inner bone surfaces, causing considerable damage to the brain in the process. A larger caliber round, on the other hand, is much more likely to penetrate clean through the skull, making much more of a mess, though doing less damage to the brain. The smaller weapon then, when fired from very close range, is a much more efficient killing device. Such weapons are also very easy to conceal and are the easiest weapons to silence. And even without a silencer, the report from a .22 automatic is relatively quiet. Especially to a generation raised on a steady diet of sensationalized and highly stylized violence in the media-where every gun sounds like a cannon—a small-caliber gun report can easily be mistaken for any of a number of everyday big-city sounds.

There is another reason that these are often the weapons of choice for contract 'hits.' Small caliber slugs, particularly those from a .22 caliber weapon—are virtually impossible to trace or to match up to any particular gun. Literally millions of .22 caliber weapons are in homes all across the country, and it is far-and-away the most popular, mass-produced ammunition on the market. And a .22 caliber bullet that has punched through the skull and careened around the skull cavity is a professional assassin.

102 • Programmed to Kill

virtually guaranteed to be deformed to such an extent that a ballistics match will be impossible. Matching a flattened slug dug out of some victim's head to any particular gun then is something akin to finding the proverbial needle in the haystack. For this reason, and for those previously cited, a small caliber contact wound to the head—usually to the side of the head—has long been the mark of

SOURCE: UK National Archives Foreign/ Colonial Office Confidential Print Database

Iran. Further Correspondence Part XI 1957 http://0-

www.archivesdirect.amdigital.co.uk.oasys.lib.oxy.edu/ Contents/DocumentDetails.aspx?

documentid=414165&prevPos=414165&previous=3&sear chrequest=doc&pi=1

Pages 13-14:

http://0-

www.archivesdirect.amdigital.co.uk.oasys.li b.oxy.edu/Contents/PdfViewerPage.aspx? imageid=676510&searchrequest=doc&pi=1 &previous=3&prevpos=414165&searchmod e=true MEMORANDUM FOR: THE RECORD

SUBJECT

MKULTRA, Subproject No. 83

1. The purpose of Subproject No. 83 will be to support the editorial and technical survey activities of assigned to the part of the part o analysis. He has prepared a review of current attitudes towards handwriting analyses as reflected by scientific researchers in the technique; fringe or pseudo-scientific developments in the field; general attitudes of psychiatrists, psychologists and other behavioral scientists to the techniques; and attitudes of document analysts and law enforcement agencies to the method. He has isolated the various "schools" of handwriting analysis, both American and European, and has prepared a readable, accurate and informative document that can be made available to

He will also assist the project summaries; and conference notes.

Executive Secretary of the and will continue to work out of the offices. Additional space for his activity is necessary and is included in the summary budget attached. Accounting for money spent will be included in the regular addit.

- 6. The total cost of this subproject will be $25,000.00 for a period of one year beginning 1 May 195%. Charges should be made against Allotment 8-2502-10-001.
- 7. has been cleared for access to Top Secret material by the Agency.

TSS/Chemical Division

Approved for Obligation of Funds:

Research Director

Date: +36 24 1975

Attached:

Proposed Budget

2.4 Recommendations

Distribution: Original only potential consumers of handwriting analyses. More important, however, he has assembled data making it possible to design relevant and meaningful research into the usefulness and applicability of handwriting analyses to intelligence activities.

- 3. On the basis of the many contacts developed by it is now possible to undertake systematic research. During the next year will be responsible for the development of a research project on handwriting analysis. The recommendations for the design of this project, as developed by
 No. 2,
 - 4. In addition will begin to develop similar technical surveys on other controversial and misunderstood areas.

 These will include, though not necessarily in the next year:
 - a) a revision and adaptation of material already developed on deception techniques (magic, sleight of hand, signals, etc.)
 - b) psychic phenomena and extrasensory perception
 - c) subliminal perception
 - d) hypnosis
 - e) "truth serums"
 - f) expressive movements (body type, facial characteristics etc.)

Girl found dead at Sandringham died within days of going missing, claim police

A TEENAGER whose body was found on the Queen's estate died within days of her disappearance, detectives believe.

A TEENAGER whose body was found on the Queen's estate died within days of her disappearance, detectives believe.

Norfolk Police have identified the remains found at Sandringham as those of Latvian Alisa Dmitrijeva, 17, from Wisbech, who was last seen alive in King's Lynn on August 30.

Detective Chief Inspector Jes Fry said the force was now focusing its inquiries on a one-week window up to September 6.

Unconfirmed sightings and other evidence suggest she is unlikely to have lived beyond this date, he added.

Mr Fry said: "Now that we have identified Alisa, we can carry out more focused inquiries to establish what happened to her.

"We particularly want to speak to anyone who may have seen Alisa between midday on August 30 and midnight on September 6.

"We know she was in both the King's Lynn and Wisbech areas during this time, and want to hear from anyone who has any information about her whereabouts over the eight days."

Two men had already been interviewed as part of the investigation into Miss Dmitrijeva's disappearance, he said.

They are known to have picked her up in a P-registered green Lexus in the early hours of August 31. This is thought to be the last confirmed sighting of her.

The men - described as acquaintances of Miss Dmitrijeva - told officers they dropped her off at Asda in Wisbech but this has not been confirmed by examination of CCTV footage.

Mr Fry said it was likely that these men would be re-interviewed.

He said: "She clearly knew these men and trusted them. We believe she got into the car voluntarily."

He dismissed speculation that she had been a sex worker or that she had a drug habit.

He added: "There is no evidence of either at this stage."

Norfolk Police said Alisa moved to the UK from Latvia with her family in 2009.

A statement said: "She enjoyed a party lifestyle and spent time at internet cafes and parks when not at home.

"She enjoyed swimming outside and make-up, the latest fashions and going out with friends.

"She was a really confident girl with many friends."

Alisa was due to start a beautician's course at the College of West Anglia in King's Lynn shortly after her disappearance last year.

She was identified by analysis of a DNA profile and palm print which were matched against records taken by police investigating a previous matter.

Mr Fry said no further action was taken over that matter.

Officers are also investigating a report that Alisa had a boyfriend.

As well as appealing for any sightings, Mr Fry said he wanted to speak to anyone who was involved in organising any kind of function at or near Sandringham between August 30 and September 6.

He said: "There are thousands of visitors to Sandringham and we want to prioritise those who were involved in events in the area and then work our way through people who may have attended those events and may have seen something."

have attended those events and may have seen something."

He added: "We particularly want to speak to people within the Latvian, Lithuanian and Russian communities in the areas, and are working with local groups and individuals who may be able to assist."

In a statement, Alisa's family said: "We are devastated by the news of Alisa's death. We http://www.dailyrecord.co.uk/news/uk-world-news/girl-found-dead-at-sandringham-died-1113362

Mystery surrounds graves at boys' reform school

By Rich Phillips, CNN October 15, 2012 -- Updated 1036 GMT (1836 HKT) http://www.cnn.com/2012/10/1 3/us/florida-graves-mystery

School graves could hide 'evil' past

- STORY HIGHLIGHTS . In 2009, Florida determined that
- 31 boys buried at a reform school were fire, flu victims
- Today, investigators have found
- 18 more graves at the same site · The team believes there's
- another grave where black students may have been buried

the new findings

- The state has remained mum on
- home of a mystery that has been lost to time.
 - A small cemetery buried deep into the grounds of a now-defunct boys reform school dates back to the early 1900s. Rusting white steel crosses mark the graves of 31 unidentified former students.

Marianna, Florida (CNN) -- This Florida panhandle town is the Former students said the deaths were at the hands of abusive administrators, but a 2009 state investigation determined there was no evidence of criminal activity connected with any of the deaths or of abusive treatment.

But the investigation did not clear up the mystery over the fate of 50 other students who died at the school and whose bodies have not been accounted for.

In the wake of that investigation, more former students -who are now senior citizens -- have come forward with stories of abuse at the school, including alleged beatings, killings and the disappearance of students, during the 1940s, '50s and '60s.

Reform school guard, 85, denies beating boys

"These are children who came here and died, for one reason or another, and have just been lost in the woods," said Dr. Erin Kimmerle, an anthropologist from the University of South Florida who is leading a scientific search on the grounds of what used to be the Florida Industrial School for Boys.

Dr. Erin Kimmerle calls the investigation a humanitarian effort to identify and remember those who died.

team has located what she says appear to be 18 more remains than previously thought to have been buried there. After clearing the area, her team has determined that a total of 49 graves exist. All are unidentified.

Using ground-penetrating radar, Kimmerle's

"We found burials within the current marked cemetery, and then we found burials that extend beyond that," Kimmerle said.

Regarding the missing boys, "for the majority, there's no record of what happened to them. So, they may be buried here, they may have been shipped to their families. But we don't know," she said.

State and school records show that out of nearly 100 children who died while at the school, there are no burial records for 22 of them, according to Kimmerle. "When there's no knowledge and no information, then people will speculate and rumors will persist or questions remain," she said.

Kimmerle, who worked on an international forensics team that amassed evidence used in war crimes trials from the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia, called the Florida project a humanitarian effort for the families of the former students and for the community.

"It's about restoring dignity," she said.

The team laid a grid using ground-penetrating radar to create a three-dimensional digital image of the area. They had to clear underbrush and trees when it became apparent the cemetery extended well beyond the small fenced area.

"We found numerous anomalies throughout," said Rich Estabrook, a public archaeologist working on the team. "Many of them tend to be in rows, and somewhat symmetrical."

The team believes these so-called "anomalies" are graves because they are lined up in east-west configurations, the traditional way Christians are buried. Exhumations will have to be requested by family members.

Adding to the mystery, Kimmerle's team has determined, based on reports from former workers and students, that another cemetery exists on the 1,400-acre property. Those graves could contain the bodies of black students, buried in a different area because of segregation.

The team has petitioned to search the area, and the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice has agreed to work with the researchers "on how best to provide them access to the site."

But they'll have to move quickly because the state is in the process of selling the entire property.

The mystery surrounding the graves first made headlines in 2008 when Florida's then-governor Charlie Crist ordered an investigation after a group of men, known as "the White House Boys," came forward with stories of how they were beaten with leather straps by school administrators inside a small, white building on school property.

Robert Straley, who spent about 10 months at the school in the 1960s for allegedly stealing a car, said he was taken to the "white house" on his very first day.

Robert Straley says he endured 10 months of abuse at the reform school, hit you, you went down a foot into the bed, and so hard, I couldn't believe. I didn't know what they were hitting you with," said Straley. Former school administrator Troy Tidwell, a

"I came out of there in shock, and when they

one-armed man who was there at the time and who some former students accused of beating them, has said in a deposition that "spankings" took place at the school but denied anyone was ever beaten or killed.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement's report, issued in 2009, accounted for the 31 boys buried in the cemetery. Although each individual plot cannot be identified, the report said many were killed in a 1914 fire at the facility, while others died in a 1918 flu outbreak. Two dogs and a peacock also are buried there.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement report said poorly kept school records prevented officials from determining what became of the other 50 students; whether they were buried on the grounds or sent home to their families. It said most died as a result of accidents or illness, though two were killed by other students and one was shot by a deputy sheriff trying to run away.

One of those "White House boys" called the department's report a "whitewash."

"All they did was try to do their best to discredit us," Straley said. "They focused on that instead of focusing on an investigation."

The department has said it stands by the integrity of its report.

A Florida Department of Law Enforcement spokesman said officials could not comment on the research team's findings until they have had time to review the report.

Owen Smith was among the 31 students identified as having been buried in the cemetery.

"He had no ambition to do anything but play music," said his sister, Ovell Smith Krell, who was 12 when her brother ran away from home in 1940. She said he was headed for Nashville to become a musician, but never made it. He was arrested in a stolen car, and sent to the reform school.

He ran away from the school, but got caught, he told his sister in a letter a short time afterward.

A few months later, his family got a letter from the school, notifying them that Owen had run away for a second time.

"So far, we have been unable to get any information concerning his whereabouts," wrote Millard Davidson, the school's superintendent at the time. "We will appreciate your notifying us immediately if you receive any word from or concerning him," Davidson wrote. Owen's family decided to travel to Marianna, Florida, to find out what was going on, but just before leaving, there was a call from the school with word that Owen had been found dead. "They think he crawled under a house to try and get

I would take him and put him down with my mom and dad in their cemetery. I hope I get that chance.

Ovell Smith Krell, 83

now 83. She said her mother asked that Owen's body be taken to warm and that he got pneumonia and died," said Krell,

a funeral home. The family had to borrow a car for the trip and when they arrived in Marianna two days later, school officials allegedly told them that their son was already buried.

wouldn't be able to identify him ... they took him straight out to the school and buried him," she said.

"They said that the body was so decomposed, you

Owen's classmate told the family a different story. According to his sister, the boy said as he and Owen tried to cemetery," she said. "I hope I get that chance."

and there was three men shooting at him, with rifles." "I believe to this day that they shot my brother that night, and I think escape, "my brother was running out across a field, an open field, they probably killed him and brought him back to the school and buried him," she said.

With the completion of the anthropological search, it will be up to the families of the missing students to go to a state court to ask a judge to order exhumations. One family has already filed suit for the return of a relative's remains.

Krell said she only hopes to give her brother a proper burial. "I would take him and put him down with my mom and dad in their

More Graves Found at Notorious Reform School

October 19, 2012 4:49 PM By Bryan Lavietes

Recommend < 74 Send

TAGS > dozier school, george owen smith, marianna, reform school, white house boys

For more than a century, the Dozier School for Boys in Marianna, Fla., took in wayward youths in the hopes of reforming them and returning them to society. New scientific research shows that at least 49 of them ended up in a schoolyard graveyard instead.

The little plot of land known as the Boot Hill Cemetery adjacent to the now-defunct school features 31 crosses atop unmarked graves of the boys who died at the Dozier. However, records scientists in a search of the former school grounds. Using lasers and digital imaging, Kimmerle's team has so far found an additional 18 remains in the ground, bringing the total up to 49 graves. "We found burials within the current marked cemetery, show that nearly 100 boys died over the school's history, so many remain unaccounted for. Enter

Dr. Erin Kimmerle, a University of South Florida anthropologist, who is leading a high-tech team of and then we found burials that extend beyond that," Kimmerle said. She hopes some families who have no record of their lost sons will have a chance to find the truth behind their loss: "It's about restoring dignity," she said. A 2009 Florida state investigation experts believe the numerous corpses might have been the result of an influenza epidemic and a fire at the school.

But former Dozier inmates like Robert Straley argue the deaths at the school weren't the result of accident or illness: "From 1900 to 1910, God knows how many died! Because the conditions were even worse. The boys were in welded chains, they were beaten if they didn't do a man's work, which means they got beat every day, they were thrown in with the men at night and raped, bad food, sickness..."

In the nightmarish world of the Dozier School, the worst punishments were inflicted in the a concrete-block building known as the "White House." Robert Straley emerged from his time as a one of the so-called White House Boys to speak out against his experience.

Others weren't so lucky. The family of George Owen Smith

him and brought him back to the school and buried him," Krell said.

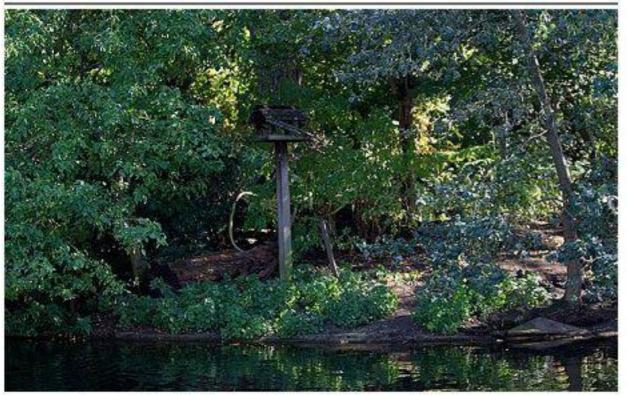

recently discovered that the boy's grave was one of those George Owen Smith. Family photo. marked with a dingy white cross. He had been sent to Dozier in the 1940's but died at the school. Smith's surviving sister Ovell Smith Krell recalled that a classmate of Smith's told her Owen had been gunned down trying to escape. "I believe to this day that they shot my brother that night, and I think they probably killed

The Dozier School was closed in 2011 as a direct result of state budget cuts, but the school had faced a string of abuse complaints throughout its history. In 1982, officials were reprimanded for hogtying boys, and a 2009 inspection concluded the school had a decades-long "culture of violence and abuse." The mistreatment began in the school's very early days: in 1903, it was discovered that administrators often shackled their young charges in leg irons.

http://www.trutv.com/library/crime/blog/ 2012/10/19/more-graves-found-atnotorious-reform-school/index.html

Royal family obsessive's body lay near Buckingham Palace for years

An American man who sent hundreds of letters to the Queen was driven by his obsession to set up home within sight of Buckingham Palace, on an island in St James's Park.

Human remains were found in March on this island in St James Park Photo: HEATHCLIFF
O'MALLEY

By Martin Beckford 6:40AM BST 03 Oct 2011

Follow < 6,348 followers

But somehow the camp set up by Robert James Moore went unnoticed until a tree surgeon uncovered the remains of his body, as many as three years after his death.

The details of his life – which has drawn comparisons with the famous case of a Frenchwoman who thought George V was sending her signals by moving the curtains at the monarch's London residence – emerged at an inquest at Westminster Coroner's Court last week.

Det Sgt Mike West, from Marylebone police station, told the coroner: "He had a fixation with the Queen and the Royal family, which takes us back to the place where he was discovered.

"You have actually stated that there would not be a better place to remain undiscovered with view of the Queen's primary residence than the West Island."

Mr Moore, who was in his late sixties when he died, was said to have sent hundreds of "strange and offensive" packages to the Queen over a period of 15 years, including obscene photographs. Some of the "peculiar" letters ran to 600 pages, and he had also posted a copy of his passport and boxes falsely warning that they contained dangerous substances.

Related Articles

- Sandringham: murder case begins 03 Jan 2012
- Remains of Spanish man found in his house 20 years after he went missing
 Jun 2012
- Human remains found on Sandringham Estate 02 Jan 2012
- Sandringham Estate: police examine human remains near Royal home 03 Jan 2012

In 2007 Mr Moore arrived in Britain from the United States, where he had previously been in trouble with the police for drink-driving.

The US Embassy in London had a record of him taking a taxi to its headquarters in Grosvenor Square, where he asked for help to pay a fine. Staff had put him in touch with a Mr Fiorentino in the US, who Mr Moore claimed would wire him the cash.

But he is not thought to have been arrested in London, and he only came to the attention of the authorities long after his death.

In the afternoon of March 15th this year, a gardener working on behalf of the Royal Parks arrived at West Island, a tree-covered piece of land at the end of St James's Park that is nearest to Buckingham Palace whose usual residents are wildfowl.

After clearing away some leaves, the tree surgeon uncovered Mr Moore's skeleton, next to some vodka bottles and a decayed yellow cushion.

The Royal Family
News » UK News »
Martin Beckford »
Queen Elizabeth II »
Editor's Picks »

In The Royal Family

Harry in the US

Kate visits Warner Bros Studios

What they wore to Buckingham Palace

Duchess joins the scouts

Royals at Baker Street

The only way to reach the small island is by swimming or wading across the shallow lake, or by taking a boat, but it is only about 100 yards from the entrance to Buckingham Palace and thousands of tourists and Londoners walk past it every day.

Police were called and initially ruled his death suspicious, but tests could not find any evidence of injury and the age of the remains meant that no cause of death could be established. A pathologist estimated that the skull and bones had been on the island for about three years.

Det Sgt West said: "There was some build-up, which would have taken some time. With that great an amount of mulch on the remains it would have taken between two and three years to accumulate."

Mr Moore had apparently attached one of his alcohol bottles to himself to prevent it being stolen.

The policeman said: "There was a green bottle attached to a belt attached to a safety pin attached to string.

"This was a new one to me, but after inquiries with our Homeless Persons Unit I was informed that street drinkers will do this so that if someone tries to remove the alcohol from them while they are asleep it will wake them up and they can fend off the person."

Several forms of identification were found in Mr Moore's pockets, including a US passport that matched the copy once sent to the Queen.

But no relatives could be found and Mr Moore was not on any missing persons lists.

The coroner, Dr Fiona Wilcox, said: "If ever next of kin of this gentleman are discovered I would hope my sympathies will be passed on for their loss."

The coroner, who commented on the "excellent, unimpeded view of the palace" enjoyed from the island, gave a verdict of "unascertained" cause of death.

Buckingham Palace would only say: "This is a police matter."

It is thought that senior members of the Royal household would have been unaware of Mr Moore's obsession, as their mail is screened and anything suspicious is sent to the Metropolitan Police.

Scotland Yard would not say if Mr Moore was known to the Fixated
Threat Assessment Centre, which was on high alert for lone obsessives ahead of this year's Royal wedding in April.

A spokesman for The Royal Parks said: "The Royal Parks is saddened that this incident has occurred. The body was found in thick undergrowth on an island that is reserved for wildlife and that is not accessible to the public.

"This island is checked by Wildlife Officers three times a year, however work to prune trees and to inspect it closely is carried out every two years - it was during one of these inspections that the discovery was made. Going forward we are planning to carry out thorough inspections on a more regular basis."

On Sunday, the only things visible on West Island were a wooden bird table and a yellow plastic hosepipe.

But a homeless man who sleeps rough in St James's Park said it was not uncommon for people to swim over to the island.

Jason Harris, 52, said: "Quite a few do it. They take their clothes off, put them in a plastic bag and swim over there."

He had not heard of Mr Moore's demise or of the police stopping people from going on the island, however.

"The police can't get at them."

The case has revived memories of that of a Frenchwoman who was obsessed with George V and stood for hours outside Buckingham Palace, believing that the king was sending her signals by moving the curtains.

It led to the coining of the term de Clérambault's syndrome to describe a person's delusion that a famous person is in love with them, named after the psychiatrist who studied her, and was mentioned in lan McEwan's novel Enduring Love.

UN sex-trafficking whistleblower feted in film

Rachel Weisz portrays the Nebraska cop who took a job in Bosnia and risked all to reveal a web of corruption

BY JONATHAN OWEN SUNDAY 23 JANUARY 2011

Send Recommend <336

in Share < 7 Q +1 < 1

PRINT | EMAIL | AAA

The true story of UN contractors' role in human trafficking and enforced prostitution is to be told in full for the first time in a new book by a former UN human rights investigator.

In The Whistleblower, published this week, Kathryn Bolkovac describes how she thought she was taking a well-paid job with DynCorp International, a private military contractor employed by the US State Department to recruit police officers to serve as UN peacekeepers in Bosnia, Instead, the former police officer from Nebraska sacrificed her career and fled from Bosnia in fear of her life.

DynCorp, based in Virginia, is one of the biggest contractors working for the US government. It has been paid billions of dollars to train police in Afghanistan and Iraq. The company vehemently denies Ms Bolkovac's allegations.

Her story has been made into a film, also called The Whistleblower and starring Rachel Weisz. The actress describes Ms Bolkovac as "a remarkable woman who has had the courage to tell the truth and stand up for the victims of sex trafficking, putting her own life on the line".

Ms Bolkovac recalls how DynCorp staff were suspected of buying weapons and trafficking girls as young as 12 from the Serbian mafia. Demoted and then fired, she was warned by a colleague that her life was in danger. In June 2001, she successfully sued DynCorp for unfair dismissal.

"It would be easy to attribute the misbehaviour to isolated incidents by a couple of bad apples," she writes. But the disappearance of files from human trafficking cases that implicated DynCorp personnel, the abrupt and unexplained cancellation of legitimate human rights investigations, men from around the globe getting away with buying and raping teenage girls – these are not isolated incidents and cannot be dismissed as the actions of rogue individuals."

Related articles

'Scandal' of child trafficking victims in care going missing slammed

Sex trafficking accused denies preying on 'out of control' young girls

Insight: Kathryn Bolkovac, whistleblower

World's first sex trafficking opera to premiere in UK

Oxford child sex ring trial: 14-year-old girl 'talked out of rape complaint' by friend who was 'seeing' her attacker

Ads by Google

AT&T® Official Site

iPhone 5, starting at $199. Shop for yours today at AT&T®.

att.com/iPhone5

MovAvi Screen Capture

Capture Games, Calls, Online Videos Get Free Trial Version

www.MovAvi.com

Windows 7 Driver Download

Windows 7 Drivers Latest Download, Microsoft Certified. (Recommended)

www.Windows-7.DriverUpdate.net

Suggested Topics

Human Rights

Employment

United Nations

State of Virginia

Ms Bolkovac cites allegations of sexual assault and human rights violations, many involving DynCorp staff, by UN peacekeepers in more than a dozen countries. She claims the use of private contractors has resulted in "the creation of a band of mercenaries – a secretive, unregulated, well-paid, under-the-radar force that is larger than the US army. Worse, the framework for recruiting, enticing and managing this band is severely and dangerously flawed."

Last night, a spokeswoman insisted that DynCorp "takes the issue of human trafficking extremely seriously". She added: "Authors produce the most compelling storylines possible, and that process requires a mix of fiction and fact ... Ms Bolkovac's limited first-hand knowledge of our predecessor company ended a decade ago. She has no basis for making comments about DynCorp International as it exists today; any current generalisations that are drawn from the book are unfounded."

'The Whistleblower' by Kathryn Bolkovac with Cari Lynn is published by

http://www.independent.co.uk/artsentertainment/films/news/un-sextraffickingwhistleblower-feted-in-film-2192045.html

Palgrave Macmillan

Drugs, the teenager found murdered on the Queen's estate and how the Baltic Mafia is terrorising one of Britain's oldest market towns

By SUE REID

UPDATED: 18:45 EST, 27 January 2012

Britain to start a new life.

eyes shining and a smile playing on her lips. A favourite picture from her family's album shows

She strikes a pose for the camera, her bright

Alisa Dmitrijeva a few weeks after she arrived in

The pretty Latvian teenager was excited about her future.

She enrolled at a college in Wisbech to study the English language and was soon popular among the huge numbers of fellow East Europeans living in the bustling Fenland town.

Alisa rode a bicycle around the cobbled streets, met her friends Erica and Zuzana in the local coffee shops and was often spotted at a lively nightclub where other Latvian youngsters congregate at weekends to dance and drink.

But now 17-year-old Alisa is dead; her body was found by a walker on New Year's Day in thick woodland on the Queen's Sandringham estate in

She had been murdered and her corpse was so badly decomposed that police forensic scientists were only able to identify it by using the DNA from her bones.

Her body had lain hidden since she vanished in late August last year from her home, a neat semi-detached house overlooking a park in Wisbech where she lived with her grandmother, Lidija, 62, father Olegs, 40, and little sister Victorija, aged ten.

Her mobile phone was missing and police are convinced that she hadn't run away because her passport and clothes were still in her room at

The end of Alisa's life was tragic but her death offers a terrifying window into a far wider problem that of the sinister Eastern European drug and crime rings nicknamed 'the Baltic Mafia' with which she became embroiled.

These gangs are taking over the English Fenland towns, terrifying local residents and ensnaring teenage girls such as Alisa.

More...

- . 'It left ME traumatised': Killer's plea for mercy after confessing to battering best friend to death 25 years
- . Sex predator who murdered his wife in Czech Republic allowed into UK to carry out knifepoint rape and string of attacks

Wisbech is a once-glorious and wealthy town boasting the oldest grammar school in the country, overlooking the banks of the River Nene. However, drug dealers operate among the Georgian terraces, the cobbled streets, and in the grounds of the magnificent early Norman St Peter and St

Even in daylight, drunks lie among the church's tombstones, and the churchyard is littered with empty beer cans covered in Slavic brand names.

Alisa Dmitrijeva's body was found by a walker on

New Year's Day in thick woodland on the Queen's

Sandringham estate in Norfolk

A fresh-faced Alisa, left, and some months later pictured holding a joint in her grubby fingers. She constantly begged for money from her family and sold almost everything she owned

A third of the town's 20,000 population is from Eastern Europe — renting poor quality accommodation from private landlords. In the streets, you hear a cacophony of foreign tongues.

Each of the separate Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish and Russian communities have their own supermarkets, off licences, clubs and pubs selling cut-price Eastern European alcohol.

This week the Mail visited the town after a flurry of letters from local residents in which they complained about a spate of murders, sex attacks and stabbings.

Our investigation coincided with a five-day police crackdown on violent crime in the area, which resulted in a series of drugs raids (when £40,000 of cannabis was found) with 25 people arrested for suspected offences ranging from knifings to burglary.

Significantly, Detective Inspector David Murphy said much of the extraordinary crime wave had been caused by drinking and fighting among the new migrants, many of whom have — up to now managed to escape justice by moving from one address to another so they are not caught.

As one Wisbech resident wrote to the Mail: "We are in a desperate situation, yet no politician will confront the issue for fear of being branded a racist.

'Yet, the mass of Latvians, Lithuanians, Polish and Russians into this small town has been astonishing to say the least.

'Local 18 to 25-year-olds are losing out in the jobs market. There's widespread drunken and anti-social behaviour. Shop-lifting and motoring offences are commonplace.

There have been five murders among the Eastern European communityliving here in the past two years. These new arrivals drink alcohol in public, urinate against parked cars or walls, and they are very intimidating and congregate in gangs.

'They originally came to work on farms here five years ago, but now own shops and cafes, clubs and restaurants. Drug-dealing and drug-taking is commonplace

'Please can somebody help to bring this to the attention of the public, the politicians and the police?'

http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2092886/Alisa-Dmitrijeva-Teenager-murdered-Queens-Sandringham-estate.html

The author of this letter also wrote to Immigration Minister Damian Green, Wisbech MP Steve Barclay and local councillors asking for help. He has yet to receive a reply from any of them.

He is not a lone voice. We spoke to many other town residents with countless stories of how the East European migrant influx had brought with it a culture of crime and anti-social behaviour.

They were all reluctant to let us use their full names for fear of reprisals.

But one lady of 63, living in once-quiet road near the town centre, has made her views known on a community website. She told the Mail how Wisbech has changed for the worse.

'We are afraid to go out after dark. This is not the town it used to be just a few years ago.

There have been two stabbings near here that I know of. In the park, one woman was sexually attacked by what the police said was a man with a foreign accent. A young teenager of only 13 or 14 was also sexually assaulted in daylight recently."

Indeed, many migrants are concerned about rising crime levels.

Young migrant Vadim Poloni, originally from Moscow, said it had become a dangerous town where people, of all nationalities, were scared of attacks.

'Sometimes I think it is rougher than in Russia,' because of drinking, like always, and because of drugs. Maybe it's just because some people don't understand each other.' So what of Alisa herself? What happened to he says. 'It's a bit tough here. There are troubles transform the girl who arrived in Wisbech in 2009 from a happy-go-lucky 15-year-old into a murder

To find out, we spoke to her friends in this country and in Riga, the capital of Latvia, where she was

What we have uncovered is an unedifying tale of how her life spiralled out of control as she turned into a drug-addicted wild child.

In Riga, friends say, Alisa was always laughing and happy, taking the bus to school with her friends.

After she arrived in the UK in late 2009, she studied for three months at a local school in Chatteris, eight miles from Wisbech, before transferring to the Wisbech campus of the College of West Anglia to study English language full-time.

However, she skipped classes and took last summer's exams only because her grandmother promised her a present if she completed them.

She constantly begged for money from her family, and sold almost everything she owned (including her bicycle for £10) to pay for cannabis, crystal meth, a highly addictive man-made psycho-stimulant, and ketamine, a powerful tranquilliser used by vets on horses.

Her drugs supplier was a dealer who used a two-door red sports car to sell drugs to teenagers in Wisbech's East European community.

Last year Alisa also started regularly travelling by train to Notting Hill in London, where she knew a Lithuanian dealer called Dainiukas who sold her drugs. He and the addicted Alisa may even have become lovers.

'She owed a lot of money to this Dainiukas,' said a male friend of Alisa. 'Her debts for drugs were mounting and had reached £15,000 when she went missing.

She wanted marijuana, crystal or ketamine and she couldn't pay for it straight away,' explained another of Alisa's friends from the Wisbech Latvian community.

Her best friend Erica added: 'I was telling her for a long time that if she kept doing things like this she would end up in trouble.

Alisa's corpse was so badly decomposed that police forensic scientists were only able to identify it by using the DNA from her bones. Her body had lain hidden since she vanished in late August last year from her home

While her friends and family were obviously concerned about Alisa, last summer she began to fall out with everyone around her.

She quarrelled with her mother, Anzela, who had come to East Anglia in 2008, a year before the rest of the family, to find a job and put down roots.

Anzela has since separated from Alisa's father, Olegs, and lives and works in Lincolnshire. She revealed that her daughter's behaviour altered completely when she arrived in England.

'Alisa started taking drugs. I know that,' says Mrs Dmitrijeva. 'I had no idea Wisbech had such serious crime problems. She changed so much from how she had been in Latvia that we started arguing.'

By last year, Alisa would ask to borrow money from her mother. Yet if Anzela offered to cook her a meal instead of handing over the requested £10, Alisa would flounce off, and it was after one such argument in July that the two last saw each other. That was a month before Alisa's disappearance.

Tellingly, despite the rift, Alisa would still send her mother emails and messages on social networking

Some, towards the end of her life, begged for help. One on Facebook, and posted a month before she disappeared, says simply: 'Mama, I need a doctor.'

In another message, again posted last year, she uses a common Latvian expression to ask forgiveness of her mother, which translates as: 'Mama, take me back inside your womb.' Sadly, it was probably already too late to save Alisa, who was embroiled in a spiral of drug addiction, and, almost certainly, in debt to criminal gangs in East Anglia and London. On Thursday, police investigating her murder began a new search of a remote beach car park in Snettisham in Norfolk

They say that Alisa may have been there in the early hours of August 31 last year and that she was last seen with two male acquaintances getting into a green Lexus car just after midnight that day.

The men were traced by detectives and said they had dropped off Alisa near an Asda store in

We have been told a different story by her friends. Many of them refuse to co-operate with the police because they — like the local Wisbech people — fear reprisals from drug and crime gangs.

One of Alisa's inner circle, who has not spoken to police, told the Mail: 'On that last day, Alisa was seen with three or four young men who, I think, were Lithuanian. Their faces didn't look exactly saintly. We think there is a 50 per cent chance they murdered her.

Another friend explained they had been warned off speaking publicly by their own community.

'Whoever talks about this could face reprisals. That's why so many of Alisa's friends have hidden away (from the police)."

Of course, these four men may have just been innocent acquaintances of Alisa, who had a reputation for changing her boyfriends 'like socks', according to one girl friend.

Wisbech. However, CCTV footage shows no evidence of her arriving there.

the Sandringham estate, 21 miles from Wisbech.

sparkled with good health.

Or were they up to something much more sinister, which ended with Alisa's life being snuffed out, either on a deserted Norfolk beach or in the heart of the Sandringham woods?

Perhaps, speculate some of her pals, she overdosed and died before her body was 'disposed of' on

Whatever the truth, one thing is certain from the photos collected by friends and family of Alisa's days in England. She arrived here a typical, innocent 15-year-old. Her skin was clear, her eyes

Yet, a little over a year later, pictures reveal a different Alisa. Then she was dropping out of classes, deep in debt, dependent on drugs and known for stealing from local Latvian stores.

In one haunting shot, Alisa has puffy eyes and is wearing a white swimsuit as she lies on the grass in the sunshine. She is smiling at the camera, but in her grubby left hand is a lighted cannabis joint.

What a terrible end for the teenager who had hoped for such a bright future in a new country — but whose life has become a symbol for how East European migration has fundamentally changed once-proud Fenland towns such as Wisbech.

Alisa's life spiralled out of control as she turned into a drug-addicted wild child

MailOnline

Vews Home | Arts | Headlines | Pictures | Most read | News Board

Home U.K. Home News Sport U.S. Showbiz Femail Health Science Money Right

Revealed: Prosecutor who failed to nail Penn State coach for 'sex abuse' vanished in 2005 and was declared 'legally dead' this

- Body of District Attorney Ray Gricar was never found but car abandoned and laptop dragged from river
- Gricar had a 'bitter taste in his mouth' about Penn State program
- Receivers coach Mike McQueary who witnessed Sandusky's alleged rape of child - but didn't tell police - allowed to stay in his job
- Head coach Joe Paterno fired amid riots on campus

By LAURIE WHITWELL and LOUISE BOYLE UPDATED: 00:36 EST. 11 November 2011

The district attorney who tried and failed to of sexual abuse emerged, has been missing since 2005 and was declared legally dead in Ray Gricar disappeared on April 15 six years ago after telling his girlfriend he was going for a His body was never found, only his abandoned car and his laptop which had been tossed in the Susquehanna River in Pennsylvania without its In 1998, Gricar had attempted to bring a case against Penn State former football defence coordinator Jerry Sandusky on child rape

The case of Sandusky, accused of years of abuse of boys that allegedly was covered up by school officials, has shaken the university and its football programme.

Last night, legendary head coach of Penn State Joe Paterno was fired amid allegations of a

When it came to the Sandusky allegations 13 years ago, friends and former co-workers said Gricar would never have backed down if he had

The lawyer's nephew Tony Gricar told The Patriot-News: 'People ask why Ray did not prosecute, and I have no problem saying, because he clearly felt he didn't have a case for a "successful" prosecution.

'One thing I can say is that Ray was beholden to no one, was not a politician.'

The DA had a 'bitter taste in his mouth' for the Penn State program and Coach Sandusky, added his Body never found: District Attorney Ray Gricar, who previously tried to bring charges of sexual abuse against Jerry Sandusky, disappeared in 2005 in Montour County District Attorney Robert Buehner Jr, a friend of the missing man, told the New York Times that if Gricar had committed suicide, he would have wanted his body found.

Barred: Former Penn State football coach Gerald 'Jerry' Sandusky is taken away in a police car after he is charged with sexually abusing eight young boys

A report written in 1998 on the charges levelled against Sandusky decided the claims were 'unfounded' - even after the DA had the mother of an alleged victim confront the football coordinator while police listened in.

Mr Beuhener told The Patriot News: 'You don't want to go after someone high profile unless you have

- We want Joe back! Thousands of Penn State students go on rampage after university fires Coach
- 'I didn't have the full story': Ashton Kutcher forced into embarrassing climbdown for tweeting Joe Paterno sacking had 'no class'
- ESPN commentator Matt Millen breaks down in tears while discussing Penn State sex abuse scandal... as number of victims DOUBLES

The latest twist in the scandal comes as it emerged that federal officials will investigate whether Penn State violated federal law by failing to report alleged sexual abuse by Sandusky.

In 2002, a graduate assistant told Penn State coach Joe Paterno that he witness Sandusky raping a 10-year-old boy in the showers of the football team's locker rooms.

There was no indication that Gricar was ever notified, reported the Patriot-Times.

Never seen again: DA Ray Gricar was pronounced legally dead in July after going missing six years ago. The only trace of him was his car and a laptop found in the Susquehanna River, Pennsylvania

It was also revealed that the graduate assistant who witnessed Sandusky's alleged rape will be allowed to stay on as receivers coach, the role he has worked up to since 2002.

Penn State are due to play Nebraska on Saturday and new interim coach Tom Bradley said Mike McQueary 'will be coaching', according to TMZ.

McQueary claims he witnessed Sandusky raping a little boy in the Penn State showers, when he was a 28-year-old graduate assistant. Although he reported what he had seen to Paterno he never called

Paterno was sacked with immediate effect last night for his role in the sex scandal amid riotous

Suspected cover-up: Assistant coach Mike McQueary (pictured with Joe Paterno), who allegedly witnessed Sandusky's rape of a young boy but did not go to the police, will be allowed to stay in his job at Penn State

'Mixed emotions': Penn State interim coach Tom Bradley has replaced Joe Paterno who lead the team for 46 years after he was fired following an alleged sex abuse cover-up

The college's Board of Trustees also forced the resignation of president Graham Spanier after the shocking allegations.

Mr Paterno, 84, had said he would retire at the end of the 2011 season but the trustees stepped in to tell the legendary coach he will never take charge of another game following the allegations of a

Assistant coach Tom Bradley has been named interim football coach while Penn State provost, Rodney Erickson will become interim president.

Bradley said it was with 'very mixed emotions' he was stepping into Paterno's shoes.

He told a press conference: 'We're obviously in a very unprecedented situation. I have to find a way to restore the confidence... it's with very mixed emotions and heavy hearts that we go through this. 'I grieve for the victims, I grieve for the families.'

Waving to the crowd: Joe Paterno and his, wife, Susan, stand on their porch to thank supporters gathered outside their home after the football coach was sacked famed coach had been sacked

Speaking at his house to a large gathering of students last night, Mr Paterno said: 'Right now, I'm not the football coach, and that's something I have to get used to." He then urged the students, who chanted 'We want Joe back!', to 'go study' and 'pray a little bit for those victims'. His wife Sue picked up a bouquet of flowers and addressed the crowd in tears, saying:

Mr Paterno later issued a statement, which read: 'I am disappointed with the Board of Trustees' decision, but I have to accept it."

Thousands of students flocked to the university's Old Main building, in University Park, State College, to voice their displeasure at the decision to oust the man who has been head coach for nearly half a

They chanted 'We love JoePa' and were described by onlookers as 'emotional'. Lampposts and street signs were torn down and fireworks set off.

Changes: People view a mural at State College where the image of Jerry Sandusky was painted over and replaced with an empty chair

Around 400 riot police attempted to clear the mob with tear gas used to control the crowd, which continued to prowl the streets into the early hours.

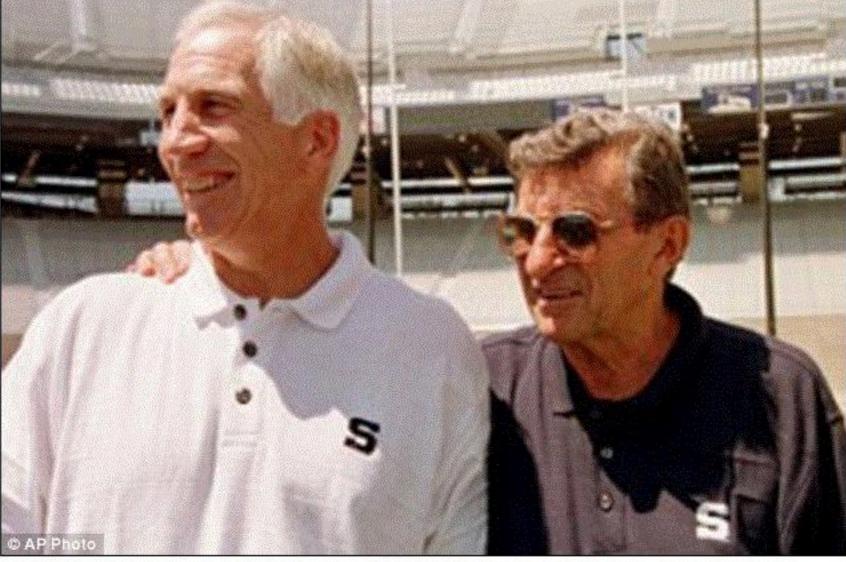

A mural honoring Paterno, called Inspiration, was partially painted over to cover an image of Sandusky's face. In Sandusky's place, the artist put a blue ribbon, which is a symbol for the campaign to end child abuse.

Michael Pilato, the artist who created the mural, told KDKA-TV that he received an email from one of the victim's mothers, asking him to paint over Sandusky.

'It's just a really sad day for me,' Pilato added.

'Thank you all for your support. We love you.'

Mr Paterno, one of the biggest names in American sports, had previously said in a statement that the situation was a tragedy and 'one of the great sorrows of my life'.

Former leaders: Jerry Sandusky (left) was the defensive line coach under head coach Joe Paterno (right) before Sandusky retired in 1999

http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2060027/Ray-Gricar-disappeared-2005tried-bring-sex-abuse-case-Penn-States-Jerry-Sandusky.html

Back in the day: Joe Paterno and the Penn State Nittany Lions before a game in 2004

The education department confirmed it is launching a probe into whether there were violations of a federal law called the Clery Act.

requires colleges and universities to publish and distribute information about criminal offences including sex offences - that are reported to school authorities.

Education Secretary Arne Duncan said in a statement: 'If it turns out that some people at the school knew of the abuse and did nothing or covered it up, that makes it even worse. Schools and school officials have a legal and moral responsibility to protect children and young people from violence and

Mr Paterno, in his 46th year as head coach of the Nittany Lions and winner of two national championships, has been criticised for not doing more to intervene when incidents of Sandusky's abuse came to light in 2002.

Conference: Steve Garban (left) and John Surma (right) announce that Penn State president Graham Spanier and football head coach Joe Paterno have been fired during the Penn State Board of Trustees meeting

'With the benefit of hindsight, I wish I had done more,' he added.

Two former university officials - athletic director Tim Curley and finance official Gary Schultz - were charged on Monday with failing to alert police after they were told that Sandusky had been seen sodomising a young boy in the football locker room shower in 2002.

They have also been charged with perjury in their statements to a grand jury.

They have stepped down from their positions at the university following an emergency meeting of the university's Board of Trustees. Lawyers for all three men have said their clients deny the charges and maintain their innocence.

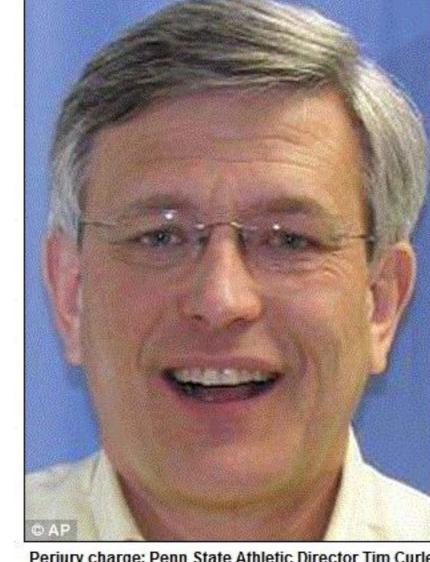

Mr Paterno's sacking comes as anticipation builds for Saturday, when Penn State is due to take an 8-1 record into its final home game of the season against the University of Nebraska. It was always likely to be the final game in 106,000-seat Beaver Stadium for Mr Paterno, who is in the last year of his contract and has become more frail in recent years. But he has now been denied of Under his leadership, Penn State has won 409 games, a record for a coach in major college football.

He set the record for wins when the Nittany Lions beat Illinois on October 29, just days before Sandusky was charged on November 5. The ugly sex abuse scandal has cast a pall over the sprawling campus of about 44,000 students at the State College, in central Pennsylvania, which is the flagship of about two-dozen Penn State campuses across the state. Tom Corbett, governor of Pennsylvania, termed Mr Paterno's retirement part of a string of bad days for Penn State.

Perjury charge: Penn State Athletic Director Tim Curley, left, and VP for finance and business Gary Schultz

Edit: Pedo smile alert!

'It is unfortunate that his retirement is taking place under the cloud that is going on. It is a sad day, It's been a sad day for a number of days,' Mr Corbett told reporters at a press conference in the state capital of Harrisburg.

Mr Corbett was the state's attorney general when authorities started their investigation into Sandusky, and would not discuss the details of the case, saying only that 'he who preys on a child is the worst person in the world'.

The grand jury report detailed alleged sexual assaults of eight boys by Sandusky over 15 years during his time as a Penn State coach and after his retirement in 1999.

Since then a ninth potential victim, a man now in his 20s, has come forward, and Pennsylvania police have set up a tip line for others to call. The number of accusers in the case has more than doubled. Sources told Fox 29 News that as many as 17 people have said they were victimised by Sandusky, up from the eight victims listed in a grand jury indictment Monday.

sexually abused several boys

Sandusky, 67, allegedly recruited his underage victims from 'The Second Mile,' a charity he founded to help underprivileged children, and subjected them to a pattern of escalating abuse.

The charity moved quickly this week to disassociate itself from Sandusky, who this week was also ordered not to spend time with his grandchildren without supervision

A preliminary hearing for Sandusky originally slated for today has been postponed until December 7. Sandusky, whose defenses were usually anchored by tough-guy linebackers - hence the moniker 'Linebacker U' - spent three decades at the school. The charges against him cover the period from

Sandusky, 67, was arrested on Saturday and released on $100,000 bail after being arraigned on 40 advances to touching to oral and anal sex. The young men testified before a state grand jury that they were in their early teens when some of the abuse occurred; there is evidence even younger children may have been victimised.

The allegations against Sandusky, who started The Second Mile in 1977, range from sexual Handcuffed: Eight young men have been identified as the targets of sexual advances or assaults by Sandusky from 1994 to 2009, prosecutors said

Sandusky's attorney Joe Amendola said his client has been aware of the accusations for about three years and has maintained his innocence.

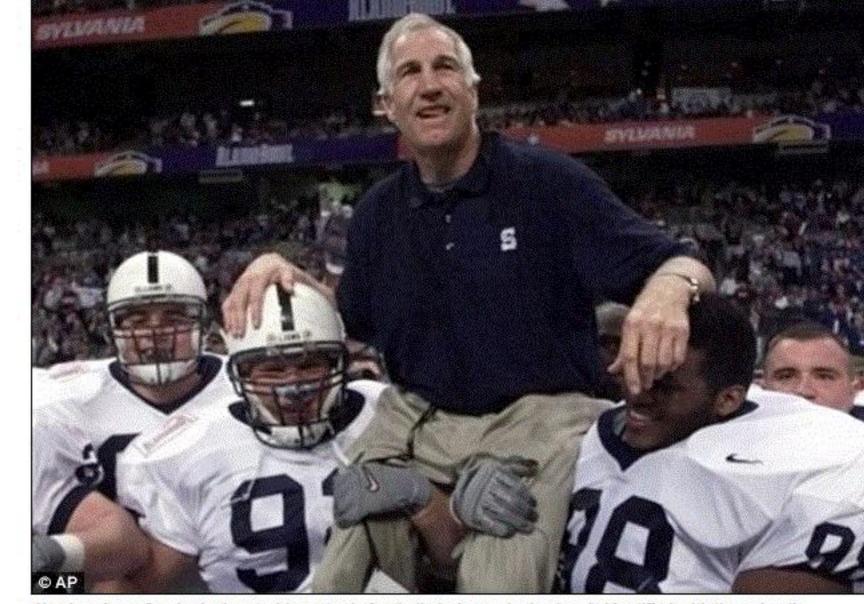

'He's shaky, as you can expect,' Mr Amendola told WJAC-TV after Sandusky was arraigned. 'Being 67 years old, never having faced criminal charges in his life and having the distinguished career that he's had, these are very serious allegations.

'He's very, very depressed. He's very upset. He's very distraught about the charges, the allegations.' Sandusky is charged with multiple counts of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse, corruption of minors, endangering the welfare of a child, indecent assault and unlawful contact with a minor, as well as single counts of aggravated indecent assault and attempted indecent assault. Prosecutors said all of the young men first encountered Sandusky through Second Mile and not through the university.

A grand jury report, which recommended charges, said the first to come to light was a boy who met Sandusky when he was 11 or 12. The boy received expensive gifts and trips to sports events from Sandusky, and physical contact began during his overnight stays at Sandusky's home, jurors said.

Sandusky was banned from the child's school district in Clinton County in 2009, after his mother reported alleged sexual assault to his high school. That triggered the state investigation that culminated in charges Saturday.

Heyday: Jerry Sandusky (centre) is a star in football circles as he is closely identified with the school's reputation as a defensive powerhouse.

The DC Madam's "Suicide"

WASHINGTON (CNN) - Euphemisms abound for prostitution, but spend a week combing through the phone records of the so-called "D.C. Madam," and it's clear that "call girl" is far and away the most apt. It is all service had more than 10,000 dients over 13 years.

Deborah Jean Palifrey, the "D.C. Madam," says her escon

From Justine Redman

Deborah Jean Palfrey is a California woman facing federal charges of running an illegal prostitution ring in the Washington area.

She contends it was an escort agency in the most

1007 2128 S 🔘

literal sense, and that any eroticism between her escorts and their customers was strictly "fantasy," That hasn't stopped exposed clients Sen. David Vitter, R-Louisiana, from admitting he "sinned"

and high-ranking State Department official Randall Tobias from resigning for "personal Which brings us to the phone calls. As part of her defense strategy, two weeks ago Palfrey

published scans of 12 years worth of her escort

agency's phone bills. The bills don't detail names only phone numbers dialed from Palfrey's accounts. Armies of researchers have deployed, doing reverse searches on these numbers in a bid to match them up to the phones' owners. When CNN's Larry King asked Palfrey on Tuesday how many well-known people's names she expects to turn up, Palfrey responded, "Well, Larry, I absolutely have no idea. We estimate statistically there are approximately 20 to 30 to 100 possibilities. And this is based upon a rough estimate of 10,000 clients who used the service over the past 13 or so years from 1993 to 2006." Watch Palfrey's lawyer tell CNN that there are more excert services in D.C. than McDonald's a

What have CNN's researchers found so far, apart from five instances of the apologetic Vitter's number? Quite a lot of doctors, actually, and people in the tech industry. Armchair sociologists will make of that what they will. Lots of lawyers, too, but of course in Washington it sometimes feels like everyone is a lawyer. Others run the gamut from the sports world to college professors.

Don't Miss . Senator linked to 'D.C. Madam' returns to work

Hustler said it released

But in many ways, it's a uniquely Washington picture that emerges. Noteworthy are the numbers traceable to private properties on Capitol Hill, in neighborhoods heavily populated by "Hill-types" (as they're known in Beltway jargon), be they members of Congress, staffers, or

Records indicate a handful of numbers have belonged to people working in federal government, a couple in local politics, and a couple more at government contractors.

"But the thing is, everybody's somebody in Washington," points out Anne Schroeder of The Politico, one of the first Washington journalists to seize on the scandal potential of Palfrey's case. "Whether you answer the phone for a senator, or for a lobbyist, or you're somebody's daughter's best friend. But unless you live here and know everyone, you don't know who they are."

The Washington Post makes an appearance. Was Palfrey contacting a client there? Calling in a news tip? The extension dialed was the one for placing advertisements in the paper. A spokesman for the Washington Post continues to investigate at CNN's request, but so far is unable to determine the nature of the call or whether the Post was one of the publications that ran ads for "Pamela Martin and Associates."

Palfrey has said that business was best when Congress was in session, and the phone bills support that. Of course, that doesn't mean the boost in clientele came specifically from representatives and senators.

When Congress is in session the city's population inflates, buzzing with lobbyists and activists and others who typically drift away when the politicians go home to their constituencies. "There's a reason why D.C. is called 'Hollywood for ugly people,' " Schroeder says. "Going out to fancy restaurants, drinking expensive whiskey, living the high life -- lobbyists kind of embody that. I think it's a well-known fact, or well presumed, that there are lobbyists who will call a call girl or call an escort service as a part of his business. It's not just lobbyists, but they embody that kind of lifestyle, and have that slick, fun

Nonetheless, the hefty load of numbers for homes in the leafy suburbs of Maryland and Virginia suggests that Palfrey had a solid base of local clients, too. In fact, more calls were made to Maryland and Virginia than to numbers with the District of Columbia area code (202).

While broad pictures like this are one thing, pointing fingers at clients is quite another. Documentation and paper trails are usually the jackpot of investigative journalism, but anyone who's struggled to decipher their own phone bill can begin to appreciate the difficulties of analyzing a four-foot high stack of somebody

Add to that the fact that a very high proportion of the calls are for cell phone numbers, and it's not a

numbers also can get recycled through customers so quickly that it can be extremely difficult to determine whose phone it was at the time Palfrey was calling it. For example, our eyebrows perked up when we came across a cell phone number for a popular local radio host. After expressing utter amazement that his number featured in the D.C. Madam's records and denying any connection to her, he initially told CNN that he'd had that phone number as far back as 2000 or 2001 but. he couldn't remember the exact date

The date was crucial. After calling his cell phone provider to check, the velvety-voiced host reported back that he'd opened his account in spring 2002 (the company refused to disclose this to anyone other than the customer). The call to his number was made in January 2001.

Providing he was telling the truth, he was off the hook. "At least I've got a funny story to tell my friends," he

http://www.cnn.com/2007/POLITICS/07/19/dc.mad am.records/

DC Madam Speaks

Twice on The Alex Jones Show, the most recent example being less than two months ago, Palfrey made clear her intention never to kill herself (Click here for MP3).

"No I'm not planning to commit suicide," Palfrey told The Alex Jones Show on her last appearance in March, "I'm planning on going into court and defending myself vigorously and exposing the government," she said.

"Not to be concerned, I have no intention of letting anyone buy me off or make any kind of a deal with me....and I'm not planning to commit suicide either," said Palfrey on a separate occasion.

Alex Jones also talked directly to Palfrey during show breaks and she re-stated her intention never to commit suicide and made it clear that if she was found dead to consider it murder. GCN Live radio board operators are also witnesses to these statements.

Though never confirmed directly, Palfrey strongly insinuated that both Dick Cheney and John McCain were possibly involved in the DC Madam scandal,

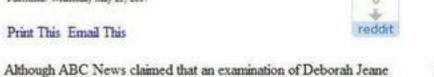

http://prisonplanet.com/audio/01050 8palfrey.mp3

'DC madam' lawyer: Cheney isn't not on phone records

Ron Brynaert

Print This Email This

Wayne Madsen."

Palfrey's phone records revealed that there weren't any more prominent ex-clients of the DC madam, that hasn't stopped the guessing games and rumour mills from working overtime. "Vice President Cheney isn t not on the phone records of the alleged D.C.

Madam, who is accused of running a high-price call-girl ring in Washington, the accused madam s lawver said on Tuesday," Emily Heil reports for Roll Call. "But then again, the veep isn to on the list, he said to not necessarily." Heil continues, "What s that? Montgomery Blair Sibley, lawyer to alleged madam Deborah Jeane Palfrey, tossed out the age-old 'can neither confirm nor deny' teaser line while appearing with his client at Nathan s in Georgetown for one of the restaurant s Qd: A Caf chatting sessions. But clearly, the headlinehyping Sibley was eager to fan the flames of the bizarre Cheney escort-service rumor, which has popped up in some far corners of the blogosphere." ♦ We are investigating some numbers in the McLean area ... and if that turns

A few weeks ago, DC gossip blog Wonkette gave "[t]hanks to the 700 people who sent in the latest 'anything so possible' rumor from angry local blogger

something up, he might be called as a witness,' Sibley said, referring to the Virginia neighborhood that the vice president once called home," Roll Call

"ABC News all but dropped the story when Cheney threatened to jam that prop phone three feet up the ass of Brian Ross," Wonkette mocked. "That s why the formerly explosive scandal story instead got seven minutes at the end of whatever ABC News show Friday night."

According to Roll Call, "Palfrey and Sibley expressed disappointment, too, over the shortage of boldfaced names in ABC s reporting on the phone records."

At his website, Madsen mentioned that CBS late night host David Letterman referred to the Cheney rumour.

"Here's a story we're working on now," Letterman said, according to Madsen's account. "Apparently, there are rumors coming out of Washington that Vice President Dick Cheney, when he was the CEO of Halliburton, used to go visit prostitutes. This could explain why one girl was paid two billion dollars. I mean, I was thinking about this and Cheney ... I mean, going to a prostitute, that's ... I mean, I can't believe a good-looking guy like that would ever have to pay for sex, you know what I'm saying?"

Wonkette explained why its staffers were "underwhelmed by this rumor."

"Because even if it s a fact, which it probably is, there s no way it would have any impact on Cheney s'career," Wonkette continued. "This is a draft-dodging half-human war criminal with a pregnant lesbian daughter who tells senators to fuck themselves and shoots his own friends in the face. Ordering an outcall hooker is positively innocent compared to the well-known things Cheney does

http://rawstory.com/news/2007/DC_mada m_lawyer_Cheney_isnt_not_0523.html

'D.C. Madam' commits suicide, police say

Palfrey had been convicted of running $2 million prostitution ring

Ap Associated Press updated 5/1/2008 4:46:16 PM ET

Print Font AA + -

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. - The woman convicted of running a high-end Washington prostitution ring that snagged a senator killed herself Thursday, police said, weeks after she was convicted on charges she vowed not to go to prison for.

The body of Deborah Jeane Palfrey, 52, was found in a shed near her mother's manufactured home about 20 miles northwest of Tampa. Police said she left at least two suicide notes and other writings to her family in a notebook, but they did not disclose their contents. The mother found Palfrey, who had apparently hanged herself with nylon rope from the shed's ceiling.

A man who answered a phone listed for Palfrey's mother declined to comment. But defense attorney Preston Burton, who represented Palfrey in her criminal trial that ended last month, said: "This is a tragic news and my heart goes out to her mother."

Palfrey's 76-year-old mother immediately called 911.

"Obviously the mother's very distraught, discovering your child in that state," said Capt. Jeffrey Young of the Tarpon Springs Police Department. Young added that Blanche Palfrey had no indication her daughter was depressed to the point of being suicidal. There's no early indication that alcohol or drugs were involved in the

Authorities said Blanche last spoke to her daughter earlier that morning, telling Deborah Palfrey she planned

Young said the FBI was notified about the death, "due to the ongoing cases we knew Ms. Palfrey had in the Washington area," but they are not investigating.

'This is a real bad tragedy' Advertise | AdCholdesTh Erwin Matthews, 73, who lives five houses down from Palfrey's mother in a Walden University community of mostly retirees, www.WaldenU.edu/Online said he and his girlfriend heard Study with an Online Blanche Palfrey screaming Further Your Career. A around 10:30 a.m. "She said: 'My daughter's hanging there by herself," Matthews recalled. "That's when everybody went running over there. This is a real bad tragedy."

Palfrey was convicted April 15 by a federal jury of running a prostitution service that catered to members of Washington's political elite, including Sen. David Vitter, a Louisiana Republican. She had denied her escort service engaged in prostitution, saying that if any of the women engaged in sex acts for money, they did so without her knowledge.

She was convicted of money laundering, using the mail for illegal purposes and racketeering.

But the trial concluded without revealing many new details about the service or its clients. Vitter was among possible witnesses, but he did not take the stand

Channing Phillips, the spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in the District of Columbia, said that under sentencing guidelines, Palfrey faced 57 to 71 months in prison. She was free pending her sentencing July 24.

"I am sure as heck am not going to be going to federal prison for one day, let alone, you know, four to eight years here, because I'm shy about bringing in the deputy secretary of whatever," Palfrey told ABC last year when she released phone records that revealed some of her clients. "Not for a second. I'll bring every last one of them in if necessary."

Prosecutors said Palfrey operated the prostitution service for 13 years.

Vitter: 'Very serious sin'

Vitter, a first-term senator who is married and has four children, has acknowledged being involved with Palfrey's escort service and has apologized for what he called a "very serious sin." But he avoided commenting further.

Besides Vitter, the trial also concluded without the testimony of military strategist Harlan Ullman or Randall Tobias, a former senior State Department official. Both men had been named among possible witnesses.

One of the escort service employees was former University of Maryland, Baltimore County, professor Brandy Britton, who was arrested on prostitution charges in 2006. She committed suicide in January before she was scheduled to go to trial.

Last year, Palfrey said she, too, was humiliated by her prostitution charges, but said: "I guess I'm made of something that Brandy Britton wasn't made of."

http://www.nbcnews.com/id/24408142/ns/us_news-

C

D.C. Madam: Suicide Before Prison

By Adam Zagorin/Washington Thursday, May 01, 2008 k Send to Kindle Deborah Jeane Palfrey, known as the "D.C. Madam," once implied that suicide was cowardice but, in the end, she seems to have chosen that same path herself. "She wasn't going to jail, she told me that very clearly. She told me she would commit suicide," author Dan Moldea told TIME soon after news broke of her body being found in Tarpon Springs, CHP SOMODEVILLA / GETTY

Deborah Jeane Palfrey

RELATED

Did Senator Vitter Get Hustled?

Follow @TIME

Print

note, was discovered by police in a storage area attached to her mother's mobile home. Palfrey contacted Moldea last year to provide her help writing a book. "She had done time once before [for prostitution]," Moldea recalls. "And it damn near killed her. She said there was enormous stress - it made her sick, she couldn't take it, and she wasn't going to let that happen to her again." Palfrey had been free pending her scheduled July 24 sentencing on a series of racketeering and money laundering charges as part of running a prostitution ring that had as clients many prominent

Florida, an apparent suicide. Palfrey's

body, along with a handwritten suicide

Washingtonians, including Senator David Vitter of Lousiana. She faced as many as 55 years behind bars (though sentencing guidelines could well have limited her prison time to a maximum of 71 months.)

When a former employee of Palfrey's, Brandy Britton, hanged herself before going to trial, Palfrey told the press, "I guess I'm made of something that Brandy Britton wasn't

Palfrey's trial, which concluded in mid-April with a conviction, is one of very few such cases prosecuted in the federal courts. Most prostitution violations are dealt with at the state or municipal level, and attract little publicity. In the Palfrey case, prosecutors obliged a string of obviously embarrassed clients and employees of the escort service to appear on the witness stand and testify under oath. Nearly all testified that they had engaged in sexual acts in exchange for money, a version of events that contradicted Palfrey's claims that she had been running a high-end sexual fantasy service - and that any actual sexual activity was against the rules, and clearly stated when employees were

Palfrey ran her operation - which covered the Washington D.C., Baltimore and northern Virginia area - by telephone from her home in California. Clients would contact her, often in response to advertisements in Washington newspapers and magazines, and she would set them up with women. According to court testimony, Palfrey would sometimes even contact clients for after-action reports to determine whether her employees were doing their job correctly and enthusiastically.

It was Palfrey's phone records that led to problems for prominent Washington figures once her prosecution got under way. She had thousands of pages, including 10,000 to 15,000 numbers of clients calling in to her California residence. Besides Sen. Vitter, others whose names appeared on those records included Randall Tobias, a senior State Department official in charge of foreign aid — who had publicly inveighed against prostitution and who quickly resigned after his name was made public. Harlan Ullman, a well-known military specialist at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington think tank, was also identified.

According to Moldea, who last year examined Palfrey's phone records and discovered the name of Vitter, a Republican, as a client of Palfrey's escort servie - Pamela Martin & Associates - the last time he saw Palfrey in person was less than week before her conviction on prostitution charges on April 15. "A friend and I met with Jeanne and we had a sushi lunch near the courtroom," he said. "She was upbeat and hopeful. She felt the prosecution had not made the case and that she was going to walk. She was hopeful to the end." But, when the jury came in with her conviction, she reportedly was taken aback. "When I heard that I knew that, for her, it was all over. There is no question in my mind that she took her own life."

Vitter remains a Senator and has not been censured, despite coming under intense public criticism. Of Palfrey, Moldea said, "I liked her. She was a good person, she was kind, funny, she had a sense of humor, and what she may have done in business, I bring no judgment to that. You have to remember that all those who worked for her service and those who used it - none of them were held to account, or punished. And now, she is

http://www.time.com/time/nation/article/0,859 9,1736687,00.html

"Suicide Notes"

the discourse in the treat my bence Sister. Myser The Stepped To Have Seen For Myser The Stepped Harson How Investigate the Stepped Harson How Investigate the Stepped Hard Louisian was the formal of the Sustain Hare Sustained How Throughout you like Formale Formale How. you place the grown for mon year to his was very time for mon year to his was very time for mon year to his was the was to the contract the cone I was a very fore for me of the Lener the hospital very the form in the Lener that the Lener that the Lener the tener with the lener to have the contract to the lener to have the lener to hav And from the form of the corner over the corner of the cor when we the Early obstackers

http://www.foxnews.com/sto ry/0,2933,354172,00.html

crime_and_courts/t/dc-madam-commits-suicide-police-say/ #.Ua8y7pz3g4k

The DC Madam's "Suicide"

WASHINGTON (CNN) - Euphemisms abound for prostitution, but spend a week combing through the phone records of the so-called "D.C. Madam," and it's clear that "call girl" is far and away the most apt. It is all service had more than 10,000 dients over 13 years.

Deborah Jean Palifrey, the "D.C. Madam," says her escon

From Justine Redman

Deborah Jean Palfrey is a California woman facing federal charges of running an illegal prostitution ring in the Washington area.

She contends it was an escort agency in the most

1007 2128 S 🔘

literal sense, and that any eroticism between her escorts and their customers was strictly "fantasy," That hasn't stopped exposed clients Sen. David Vitter, R-Louisiana, from admitting he "sinned"

and high-ranking State Department official Randall Tobias from resigning for "personal Which brings us to the phone calls. As part of her defense strategy, two weeks ago Palfrey

published scans of 12 years worth of her escort

agency's phone bills. The bills don't detail names only phone numbers dialed from Palfrey's accounts. Armies of researchers have deployed, doing reverse searches on these numbers in a bid to match them up to the phones' owners. When CNN's Larry King asked Palfrey on Tuesday how many well-known people's names she expects to turn up, Palfrey responded, "Well, Larry, I absolutely have no idea. We estimate statistically there are approximately 20 to 30 to 100 possibilities. And this is based upon a rough estimate of 10,000 clients who used the service over the past 13 or so years from 1993 to 2006." Watch Palfrey's lawyer tell CNN that there are more excert services in D.C. than McDonald's a

What have CNN's researchers found so far, apart from five instances of the apologetic Vitter's number? Quite a lot of doctors, actually, and people in the tech industry. Armchair sociologists will make of that what they will. Lots of lawyers, too, but of course in Washington it sometimes feels like everyone is a lawyer. Others run the gamut from the sports world to college professors.

Don't Miss . Senator linked to 'D.C. Madam' returns to work

Hustler said it released

But in many ways, it's a uniquely Washington picture that emerges. Noteworthy are the numbers traceable to private properties on Capitol Hill, in neighborhoods heavily populated by "Hill-types" (as they're known in Beltway jargon), be they members of Congress, staffers, or

Records indicate a handful of numbers have belonged to people working in federal government, a couple in local politics, and a couple more at government contractors.

"But the thing is, everybody's somebody in Washington," points out Anne Schroeder of The Politico, one of the first Washington journalists to seize on the scandal potential of Palfrey's case. "Whether you answer the phone for a senator, or for a lobbyist, or you're somebody's daughter's best friend. But unless you live here and know everyone, you don't know who they are."

The Washington Post makes an appearance. Was Palfrey contacting a client there? Calling in a news tip? The extension dialed was the one for placing advertisements in the paper. A spokesman for the Washington Post continues to investigate at CNN's request, but so far is unable to determine the nature of the call or whether the Post was one of the publications that ran ads for "Pamela Martin and Associates."

Palfrey has said that business was best when Congress was in session, and the phone bills support that. Of course, that doesn't mean the boost in clientele came specifically from representatives and senators.

When Congress is in session the city's population inflates, buzzing with lobbyists and activists and others

who typically drift away when the politicians go home to their constituencies. "There's a reason why D.C. is called 'Hollywood for ugly people,' " Schroeder says. "Going out to fancy

restaurants, drinking expensive whiskey, living the high life -- lobbyists kind of embody that. I think it's a well-known fact, or well presumed, that there are lobbyists who will call a call girl or call an escort service as a part of his business. It's not just lobbyists, but they embody that kind of lifestyle, and have that slick, fun

Nonetheless, the hefty load of numbers for homes in the leafy suburbs of Maryland and Virginia suggests that Palfrey had a solid base of local clients, too. In fact, more calls were made to Maryland and Virginia than to numbers with the District of Columbia area code (202).

While broad pictures like this are one thing, pointing fingers at clients is quite another. Documentation and paper trails are usually the jackpot of investigative journalism, but anyone who's struggled to decipher their own phone bill can begin to appreciate the difficulties of analyzing a four-foot high stack of somebody

Add to that the fact that a very high proportion of the calls are for cell phone numbers, and it's not a

numbers also can get recycled through customers so quickly that it can be extremely difficult to determine whose phone it was at the time Palfrey was calling it. For example, our eyebrows perked up when we came across a cell phone number for a popular local radio

host. After expressing utter amazement that his number featured in the D.C. Madam's records and denying any connection to her, he initially told CNN that he'd had that phone number as far back as 2000 or 2001 but. he couldn't remember the exact date

The date was crucial. After calling his cell phone provider to check, the velvety-voiced host reported back that he'd opened his account in spring 2002 (the company refused to disclose this to anyone other than the customer). The call to his number was made in January 2001.

Providing he was telling the truth, he was off the hook. "At least I've got a funny story to tell my friends," he

http://www.cnn.com/2007/POLITICS/07/19/dc.mad am.records/

DC Madam Speaks

Twice on The Alex Jones Show, the most recent example being less than two months ago, Palfrey made clear her intention never to kill herself (Click here for MP3).

"No I'm not planning to commit suicide," Palfrey told The Alex Jones Show on her last appearance in March, "I'm planning on going into court and defending myself vigorously and exposing the government," she said.

"Not to be concerned, I have no intention of letting anyone buy me off or make any kind of a deal with me....and I'm not planning to commit suicide either," said Palfrey on a separate occasion.

Alex Jones also talked directly to Palfrey during show breaks and she re-stated her intention never to commit suicide and made it clear that if she was found dead to consider it murder. GCN Live radio board operators are also witnesses to these statements.

Though never confirmed directly, Palfrey strongly insinuated that both Dick Cheney and John McCain were possibly involved in the DC Madam scandal,

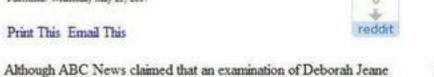

http://prisonplanet.com/audio/01050 8palfrey.mp3

'DC madam' lawyer: Cheney isn't not on phone records

Ron Brynaert

Print This Email This

Wayne Madsen."

Palfrey's phone records revealed that there weren't any more prominent ex-clients of the DC madam, that hasn't stopped the guessing games and rumour mills from working overtime. "Vice President Cheney isn t not on the phone records of the alleged D.C.

Madam, who is accused of running a high-price call-girl ring in Washington, the accused madam s lawver said on Tuesday," Emily Heil reports for Roll Call. "But then again, the veep isn to on the list, he said to not necessarily." Heil continues, "What s that? Montgomery Blair Sibley, lawyer to alleged madam Deborah Jeane Palfrey, tossed out the age-old 'can neither confirm nor deny' teaser line while appearing with his client at Nathan s in Georgetown for one of the restaurant s Qd: A Caf chatting sessions. But clearly, the headlinehyping Sibley was eager to fan the flames of the bizarre Cheney escort-service rumor, which has popped up in some far corners of the blogosphere." ♦ We are investigating some numbers in the McLean area ... and if that turns

A few weeks ago, DC gossip blog Wonkette gave "[t]hanks to the 700 people who sent in the latest 'anything so possible' rumor from angry local blogger

something up, he might be called as a witness,' Sibley said, referring to the Virginia neighborhood that the vice president once called home," Roll Call

"ABC News all but dropped the story when Cheney threatened to jam that prop phone three feet up the ass of Brian Ross," Wonkette mocked. "That s why the formerly explosive scandal story instead got seven minutes at the end of whatever ABC News show Friday night."

According to Roll Call, "Palfrey and Sibley expressed disappointment, too, over the shortage of boldfaced names in ABC s reporting on the phone records."

At his website, Madsen mentioned that CBS late night host David Letterman referred to the Cheney rumour.

"Here's a story we're working on now," Letterman said, according to Madsen's account. "Apparently, there are rumors coming out of Washington that Vice President Dick Cheney, when he was the CEO of Halliburton, used to go visit prostitutes. This could explain why one girl was paid two billion dollars. I mean, I was thinking about this and Cheney ... I mean, going to a prostitute, that's ... I mean, I can't believe a good-looking guy like that would ever have to pay for sex, you know what I'm saying?"

Wonkette explained why its staffers were "underwhelmed by this rumor."

"Because even if it s a fact, which it probably is, there s no way it would have any impact on Cheney s'career," Wonkette continued. "This is a draft-dodging half-human war criminal with a pregnant lesbian daughter who tells senators to fuck themselves and shoots his own friends in the face. Ordering an outcall hooker is positively innocent compared to the well-known things Cheney does

http://rawstory.com/news/2007/DC_mada m_lawyer_Cheney_isnt_not_0523.html

'D.C. Madam' commits suicide, police say

Palfrey had been convicted of running $2 million prostitution ring

Ap Associated Press updated 5/1/2008 4:46:16 PM ET

Print Font AA + -

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. - The woman convicted of running a high-end Washington prostitution ring that snagged a senator killed herself Thursday, police said, weeks after she was convicted on charges she vowed not to go to prison for.

The body of Deborah Jeane Palfrey, 52, was found in a shed near her mother's manufactured home about 20 miles northwest of Tampa. Police said she left at least two suicide notes and other writings to her family in a notebook, but they did not disclose their contents. The mother found Palfrey, who had apparently hanged herself with nylon rope from the shed's ceiling.

A man who answered a phone listed for Palfrey's mother declined to comment. But defense attorney Preston Burton, who represented Palfrey in her criminal trial that ended last month, said: "This is a tragic news and my heart goes out to her mother."

Palfrey's 76-year-old mother immediately called 911.

"Obviously the mother's very distraught, discovering your child in that state," said Capt. Jeffrey Young of the Tarpon Springs Police Department. Young added that Blanche Palfrey had no indication her daughter was depressed to the point of being suicidal. There's no early indication that alcohol or drugs were involved in the

Authorities said Blanche last spoke to her daughter earlier that morning, telling Deborah Palfrey she planned

Young said the FBI was notified about the death, "due to the ongoing cases we knew Ms. Palfrey had in the Washington area," but they are not investigating.

'This is a real bad tragedy' Advertise | AdCholdesTh Erwin Matthews, 73, who lives five houses down from Palfrey's mother in a Walden University community of mostly retirees, www.WaldenU.edu/Online said he and his girlfriend heard Study with an Online Blanche Palfrey screaming Further Your Career. A around 10:30 a.m. "She said: 'My daughter's hanging there by herself," Matthews recalled. "That's when everybody went running over there. This is a real bad tragedy."

Palfrey was convicted April 15 by a federal jury of running a prostitution service that catered to members of Washington's political elite, including Sen. David Vitter, a Louisiana Republican. She had denied her escort service engaged in prostitution, saying that if any of the women engaged in sex acts for money, they did so without her knowledge.

She was convicted of money laundering, using the mail for illegal purposes and racketeering.

But the trial concluded without revealing many new details about the service or its clients. Vitter was among possible witnesses, but he did not take the stand

Channing Phillips, the spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in the District of Columbia, said that under sentencing guidelines, Palfrey faced 57 to 71 months in prison. She was free pending her sentencing July 24.

"I am sure as heck am not going to be going to federal prison for one day, let alone, you know, four to eight years here, because I'm shy about bringing in the deputy secretary of whatever," Palfrey told ABC last year when she released phone records that revealed some of her clients. "Not for a second. I'll bring every last one of them in if necessary."

Prosecutors said Palfrey operated the prostitution service for 13 years.

Vitter: 'Very serious sin'

Vitter, a first-term senator who is married and has four children, has acknowledged being involved with Palfrey's escort service and has apologized for what he called a "very serious sin." But he avoided commenting further.

Besides Vitter, the trial also concluded without the testimony of military strategist Harlan Ullman or Randall Tobias, a former senior State Department official. Both men had been named among possible witnesses.

One of the escort service employees was former University of Maryland, Baltimore County, professor Brandy Britton, who was arrested on prostitution charges in 2006. She committed suicide in January before she was scheduled to go to trial.

Last year, Palfrey said she, too, was humiliated by her prostitution charges, but said: "I guess I'm made of something that Brandy Britton wasn't made of."

http://www.nbcnews.com/id/24408142/ns/us_news-

C

D.C. Madam: Suicide Before Prison

By Adam Zagorin/Washington Thursday, May 01, 2008 k Send to Kindle Deborah Jeane Palfrey, known as the "D.C. Madam," once implied that suicide was cowardice but, in the end, she seems to have chosen that same path herself. "She wasn't going to jail, she told me that very clearly. She told me she would commit suicide," author Dan Moldea told TIME soon after news broke of her body being found in Tarpon Springs, CHP SOMODEVILLA / GETTY

Deborah Jeane Palfrey

RELATED

Did Senator Vitter Get Hustled?

Follow @TIME

Print

note, was discovered by police in a storage area attached to her mother's mobile home. Palfrey contacted Moldea last year to provide her help writing a book. "She had done time once before [for prostitution]," Moldea recalls. "And it damn near killed her. She said there was enormous stress - it made her sick, she couldn't take it, and she wasn't going to let that happen to her again." Palfrey had been free pending her scheduled July 24 sentencing on a series of racketeering and money laundering charges as part of running a prostitution ring that had as clients many prominent

Florida, an apparent suicide. Palfrey's

body, along with a handwritten suicide

Washingtonians, including Senator David Vitter of Lousiana. She faced as many as 55 years behind bars (though sentencing guidelines could well have limited her prison time to a maximum of 71 months.)

When a former employee of Palfrey's, Brandy Britton, hanged herself before going to trial, Palfrey told the press, "I guess I'm made of something that Brandy Britton wasn't

Palfrey's trial, which concluded in mid-April with a conviction, is one of very few such cases prosecuted in the federal courts. Most prostitution violations are dealt with at the state or municipal level, and attract little publicity. In the Palfrey case, prosecutors obliged a string of obviously embarrassed clients and employees of the escort service to appear on the witness stand and testify under oath. Nearly all testified that they had engaged in sexual acts in exchange for money, a version of events that contradicted Palfrey's claims that she had been running a high-end sexual fantasy service - and that any actual sexual activity was against the rules, and clearly stated when employees were

Palfrey ran her operation - which covered the Washington D.C., Baltimore and northern Virginia area - by telephone from her home in California. Clients would contact her, often in response to advertisements in Washington newspapers and magazines, and she would set them up with women. According to court testimony, Palfrey would sometimes even contact clients for after-action reports to determine whether her employees were doing their job correctly and enthusiastically.

It was Palfrey's phone records that led to problems for prominent Washington figures once her prosecution got under way. She had thousands of pages, including 10,000 to 15,000 numbers of clients calling in to her California residence. Besides Sen. Vitter, others whose names appeared on those records included Randall Tobias, a senior State Department official in charge of foreign aid — who had publicly inveighed against prostitution and who quickly resigned after his name was made public. Harlan Ullman, a well-known military specialist at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington think tank, was also identified.

According to Moldea, who last year examined Palfrey's phone records and discovered the name of Vitter, a Republican, as a client of Palfrey's escort servie - Pamela Martin & Associates - the last time he saw Palfrey in person was less than week before her conviction on prostitution charges on April 15. "A friend and I met with Jeanne and we had a sushi lunch near the courtroom," he said. "She was upbeat and hopeful. She felt the prosecution had not made the case and that she was going to walk. She was hopeful to the end." But, when the jury came in with her conviction, she reportedly was taken aback. "When I heard that I knew that, for her, it was all over. There is no question in my mind that she took her own life."

Vitter remains a Senator and has not been censured, despite coming under intense public criticism. Of Palfrey, Moldea said, "I liked her. She was a good person, she was kind, funny, she had a sense of humor, and what she may have done in business, I bring no judgment to that. You have to remember that all those who worked for her service and those who used it - none of them were held to account, or punished. And now, she is

http://www.time.com/time/nation/article/0,859 9,1736687,00.html

"Suicide Notes"

the discourse in the treat my bence Sister. Myser The Stepped To Have Seen For Myser The Stepped Harson How Investigate the Stepped Harson How Investigate the Stepped Hard Louisian was the formal of the Sustain Hare Sustained How Throughout you like Formale Formale How. you place the grown for mon year to his was very time for mon year to his was very time for mon year to his was the was to the contract the cone I was a very fore for me of the Lener the hospital very the form in the Lener that the Lener that the Lener the tener with the lener to have the contract to the lener to have the lener to hav And from the form of the corner over the corner of the cor when we the Early obstackers

http://www.foxnews.com/sto ry/0,2933,354172,00.html

crime_and_courts/t/dc-madam-commits-suicide-police-say/ #.Ua8y7pz3g4k

http://www.wesh.com/news/16142638/detail.html

WESH.com

Building Manager: DC Madam's Death Not Suicide

POSTED: 8:54 pm EDT May 2, 2008 UPDATED: 9:27 pm EDT May 2, 2008

ORLANDO, Fla. -- The building manager of a Central Florida condo said he spent time talking to Deborah Jean Palfrey on Monday as she packed to go to her mother's house and she did not seem suicidal.

Deborah Jean Palfrey has many ties to Central Florida. For the past 12 years she's owned a condo at Park Lake Towers in Orlando.

Video: Manager Says D.C. Madam Death Not Suicide

The building manager, who did not want to show his face, talked with Palfrey Monday before she left for her mother's in Tarpon Springs. He strongly believes Palfrey's death was not a suicide.

"Jean Palfrey was a class act. She wore very good clothes. She was well educated. Her way out of this world certainly would not have been in an aluminum shed attached to a mobile home in Tarpon Springs, Florida," he said.

Palfrey was convicted of running a high-profile escort service for Washington's elite and faced a sentencing this summer that would likely lead to many years in prison. But she was found hanged Thursday at her mother's home and investigators said they have no doubt it was a suicide.

"A couple handwritten notes. At least one note was found inside residence indicating her intent to take her life," Capt. Jeffrey Young of the Tarpon Springs Police Department said of Palfrey's death.

Palfrey's building manager said she often told him she believed she was being followed and he thinks there may have been some former clients of her escort service who wanted her dead.

"She insinuated that there is a contract out for her and I fully believe they succeeded," her building manager said.

Palfrey's Lexus is still parked in the Park Lake garage and the staff said on Monday, she asked about making sure her condo fees would continue to be paid during what Palfrey anticipated would be six years in prison.

They said she left that day with some suitcases and a box.

"She had one white paper file box that she told me had some important paper with her and then she just kind of raised her eyebrows like you're supposed to think oh yeah, that's all the information that she had on her business in Washington," her building manager said.

Palfrey never denied running an escort service for 13 years, but she did deny any knowledge that any illegal sexual activity was occurring.

D.C. Madam: Suicide Before Prison

By Adam Zagorin/Washington Thursday, May 01, 2008

Deborah Jeane Palfrey, known as the "D.C. Madam," once implied that suicide was cowardice but, in the end, she seems to have chosen that same path herself. "She wasn't going to jail, she told me that very clearly. She told me she would commit suicide," author Dan Moldea told TIME soon after news broke of her body being found in Tarpon Springs, Florida, an apparent suicide. Palfrey's body, along with a handwritten suicide note, was discovered by police in a storage area attached to her mother's mobile home. Palfrey contacted Moldea last year to provide her help writing a book. "She had done time once before [for prostitution]," Moldea recalls. "And it damn near killed her. She said there was enormous stress - it made her sick, she couldn't take it, and she wasn't going to let that happen to her again." Palfrey sentencing on a series of racketeering and money laundering charges as part of running a prostitution had been free pending her scheduled July 24 ring that had as clients many prominent

CHIP SOMODEVILLA / GETTY

Deborah Jeane Palfrey

Washingtonians, including Senator David Vitter of Lousiana. She faced as many as 55 years behind bars (though sentencing guidelines could well have limited her prison time to a maximum of 71 months.)

When a former employee of Palfrey's, Brandy Britton, hanged herself before going to trial, Palfrey told the press, "I guess I'm made of something that Brandy Britton wasn't made of."

Palfrey's trial, which concluded in mid-April with a conviction, is one of very few such cases prosecuted in the federal courts. Most prostitution violations are dealt with at the state or municipal level, and attract little publicity. In the Palfrey case, prosecutors obliged a string of obviously embarrassed clients and employees of the escort service to appear on the witness stand and testify under oath. Nearly all testified that they had engaged in sexual acts in exchange for money, a version of events that contradicted Palfrey's claims that she had been running a high-end sexual fantasy service — and that any actual sexual activity was against the rules, and clearly stated when employees were hired.

northern Virginia area — by telephone from her home in California. Clients would contact her, often in response to advertisements in Washington newspapers and magazines, and she would set them up with women. According to court testimony, Palfrey would sometimes even contact clients for after-action reports to determine whether her employees were doing their job correctly and enthusiastically.

Palfrey ran her operation — which covered the Washington D.C., Baltimore and

It was Palfrey's phone records that led to problems for prominent Washington figures once her prosecution got under way. She had thousands of pages, including 10,000 to 15,000 numbers of clients calling in to her California residence. Besides Sen. Vitter, others whose names appeared on those records included Randall Tobias, a senior State Department official in charge of foreign aid — who had publicly inveighed against prostitution and who quickly resigned after his name was made public. Harlan Ullman, a well-known military specialist at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington think tank, was also identified.

According to Moldea, who last year examined Palfrey's phone records and discovered the name of Vitter, a Republican, as a client of Palfrey's escort servie - Pamela Martin & Associates - the last time he saw Palfrey in person was less than week before her conviction on prostitution charges on April 15. "A friend and I met with Jeanne and we had a sushi lunch near the courtroom," he said. "She was upbeat and hopeful. She felt the prosecution had not made the case and that she was going to walk. She was hopeful to the end." But, when the jury came in with her conviction, she reportedly was taken aback. "When I heard that I knew that, for her, it was all over. There is no question in my mind that she took her own life."

Vitter remains a Senator and has not been censured, despite coming under intense public criticism. Of Palfrey, Moldea said, "I liked her. She was a good person, she was kind, funny, she had a sense of humor, and what she may have done in business, I bring no judgment to that. You have to remember that all those who worked for her service and those who used it — none of them were held to account, or punished. And now, she is dead."

http://www.time.com/time/nation/article/0,859 9,1736687,00.html

DynCorp Owner Cashes Out Of Wartime Investment

💹 Nathan Vardi, Forbes Staff

+ Comment Now + Follow Comments

0 reddit

Robert McKeon, chief of New York private equity firm Veritas Capital, is on the verge of exiting the most lucrative deal of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. For all the talk about Blackwater and Houston oil industry firms connected to Dick Cheney, it took a Wall Street player to truly figure out how to play the war game.

DynCorp International, the Falls Church, Va., provider of services to the U.S. military, announced Monday that it has reached a $1.5 billion deal to be acquired by funds managed by Cerberus Capital Management. If the deal goes through, McKeon will have turned a $48 million personal investment in DynCorp into some $320 million for himself. McKeon's performance has apparently inspired Stephen Feinberg, chief of Cerberus, to also venture into this sector.

DynCorp has been a defining transaction for McKeon, a Bronx-born son of a Drake's cakes deliveryman who once headed private equity at Wasserstein Perella & Co. But the DynCorp deal has not been without controversy. As I reported last year, the deal became the subject of a fierce confrontation between McKeon and his former partner and close friend, Thomas Campbell. The duo spent years together building Veritas, focusing on the defense sector with help from retired generals like Barry R. McCaffrey and Anthony C. Zinni. Now McKeon and Campbell are locked in litigation, accusing each other in dueling lawsuits of deceit and betrayal. Campbell has moved on to start DC Capital Partners, a private equity shop that recently scored its own big exit by selling a company to IBM.

It was the litigation between Campbell and McKeon that shed light on the rich deal for DynCorp. McKeon signed a deal in 2004 to purchase DynCorp in a leveraged buyout. The deal, which closed in early 2005, looked like a sure thing and McKeon personally put up $48 million of the $100 million of equity needed to complete the purchase. Veritas' then current fund, limited in what it could front, made a $38 million investment and Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance contributed $14 million. After it went public, DynCorp's filings with the Securities & Exchange Commission did little to reveal the size of McKeon's personal stake because his share ownership was lumped in with the other investors. A footnote in a single 13D filing made in May 2006 was just about the only public disclosure of McKeon's big personal interest.

DynCorp emerged as a major player in battlefield contracting, benefiting from the troubles faced by KBR and Blackwater. Last year it won a big contract to support U.S. troops in Afghanistan. There have been some 240,000 contractor employees supporting U.S. missions in Iraq and Afghanistan, outnumbering the troops they serve, and contractors have collected some $100 billion of U.S. taxpayers expenditures on the war. But for investors, finding a way to play this sector in a big way has largely been elusive.

McKeon personally received a $5 million deal fee when the DynCorp purchase took place, court documents say. He took his initial $48 million investment off the table through a dividend associated with DynCorp's IPO. Last year private equity investors sold $177 million of DynCorp stock, probably givi McKeon about $80 million of proceeds. McKeon's remaining shares will cashed out if this new deal goes through for some $170 million. He also stands to get some $20 million more through performance fees associate with the exit of the Veritas fund from DynCorp.

The Telegraph

HOME » CULTURE » FILM

Home News World Sport Finance Comment Blogs Culture Travel Life Women
Hay Festival Film Music | Art | Books | TV and Radio | Theatre | Comedy | Dance | Opera
Film Reviews | Cinema Trailers | Coming Soon | Talking Movies | Interviews | DVDs | Film Life

What the UN Doesn't Want You to Know

In 1999, Kathryn Bolkovac went to Bosnia as part of a UN mission. She discovered terrible wrongdoing - and refused to stay silent about it. She tells Nisha Lilia Diu her incredible story, now the subject of a film starring Rachel Weisz.

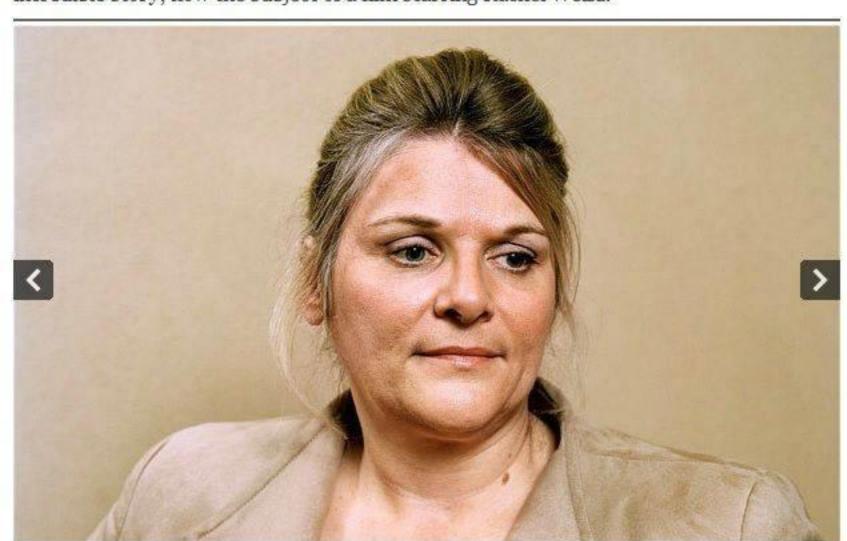

Image 1 of 5
Photo: DANA LIXENBERG

By Nisha Lilia Diu 4:42PM GMT 06 Feb 2012

Comment

'Do you want coffee? Baileys? Coffee and Baileys?' Kathryn Bolkovac pours a dash of liqueur into a black onyx mug. 'That's what I'm having.'

She's just home from work on this icy Friday evening in a small city near Amsterdam.

She has lived in Holland, with her Dutch husband, ever since her life was transformed by events so extraordinary they have been made into a film, The Whistleblower, starring Rachel Weisz.

Before going on a UN peacekeeping mission to Bosnia 13 years ago, Bolkovac, 51, was a police officer in Nebraska. She specialised in sex crimes, was nicknamed Xena: Warrior Princess, and had a 95 per cent conviction rate.

'It was actually higher than that,' she corrects me, settling on an L-shaped chocolate suede sofa. I tell her that in Britain the rape conviction rate is more like 6 per cent. She laughs, amazed.

'You have to get confessions. That's the trick – knowing how to interview people.'

But with 10 years on the street and two failed marriages behind her, it was time for a change.

She signed up with DynCorp, the private contractor providing American personnel for the UN mission in Bosnia. The war was only recently ended and the country's legal infrastructure was in disarray.

Bolkovac thought of 'all the good, meaningful work I was going to do', training Bosnian police officers and re-establishing law and order.

The first of several nasty shocks came before she'd even left: among the recruits at DynCorp's training week in Texas was a man from Mississippi. He'd been to Bosnia before and had had such a good time he was going again.

He told them all how scenic it was, adding, 'and I know where you can get really nice 12- to 15-year-olds'. Bolkovac was baffled, believing she'd misheard.

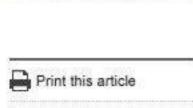

In Bosnia, where there were so many dead the Olympic football stadium had been turned into a cemetery, she threw herself into her work.

Soon Madeleine Rees, the head of the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, had recruited her to run a pilot project on violence against women.

While there, working in a police station with a hole in the floor for a lavatory, Bolkovac secured Bosnia's first conviction for domestic violence.

Then one day the body of a skimpily dressed Ukrainian girl came floating down the River Bosna. Soon after, a Moldovan girl was found wandering the river banks.

Bolkovac attempted to interview her but only understood one word, 'Florida', the name of a nightclub where she'd often see UN vehicles parked.

Share 732

Facebook 667

Twitter 53

Email Linkedin

in LinkedIn

Film

World News » Politics » Culture » Active » Nisha Lilia Diu »

In Film

The Dam Busters

The Great Gatsby world premiere

Quentin Tarantino his best cameo roles

Get your Gatsby on

'Jaws was my Vietnam': Steven Spielberg on his 28

http://www.telegraph.co.uk/culture/film/9041 974/What-the-UN-Doesnt-Want-You-to-Know.html When she arrived the club was deserted. She found stacks of American dollars and foreign passports in a safe and, behind a locked door, seven girls. 'Sheer terror,' says Bolkovac of the looks on the girls' faces. 'It was exactly as you see in the film: 'they're huddled, they're holding each other, they're on these bare, stained mattresses.' They were too afraid to talk. One of them pointed to the river outside. 'We don't want to end up floating.'

Dozens of girls began turning up at Bolkovac's station with 'eerily similar' stories:

They'd taken a job abroad as a waitress or cleaner or nanny - often at the insistence of their own families - but during the journey everything had gone wrong.

They were taken somewhere else altogether, forcibly stripped and sold to someone who humiliated, beat and raped them into dead-eyed submission. Now they were imprisoned in brothels in Bosnia.

'People ask me what's true,' says the film's director, Larysa Kondracki. 'But it's barely scratching the surface. We had to tone it down.'

The problem was so widespread, says Rees (now secretary general of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom), 'Kathy ended up having time to deal with nothing but trafficking.'

Girls who escaped were frequently found – sometimes grabbed outside safe houses – and brutally punished by their pimp, with the others made to watch. But that wasn't the only reason they wouldn't testify.

'They didn't expect [the police] to help them,' says Bolkovac.

She discovered numerous individuals in the Bosnian and UN police (which was made up of some 1,800 officers from 45 countries) who were not only using trafficked prostitutes but were on the traffickers' pay-roll.

They were paid to give warnings on raids, return girls who escaped or, when rescued girls were repatriated ('dumped somewhere on the border', according to Bolkovac), let the traffickers know where they could collect them so they could be 'recycled back into the system.

'Free access to the girls was an added perk.'

Bolkovac is fresh-faced and young-looking, with a thick ponytail of lightblonde hair, but she seems tired.

'I found it intolerable,' she says. The more she investigated, the more her UN colleagues turned against her.

'She'd been very popular and one of the lads,' says Rees. 'And you could see she was getting increasingly isolated in the cafeteria; people weren't sitting with her.'

Bolkovac's files went missing, her superiors pulled her cases, people warned her to back off.

Eventually, she wrote an email detailing everything she'd learnt and sent it to 50 senior mission personnel, with the subject 'Do not read this if you have a weak stomach or a guilty conscience'.

Four days later she was demoted, and a few months after that DynCorp fired her for falsifying her timesheets.

But Bolkovac had kept copies of all her files; her mantra, she says, has always been 'document, document, document'. She successfully sued DynCorp for unfair dismissal for making a protected disclosure – legal-speak for whistleblowing.

The tribunal stated, 'It is hard to imagine a case in which a firm has behaved in a more callous manner.'

Within hours of the ruling DynCorp settled a second whistleblowing case against it, offering an undisclosed sum to an aircraft mechanic from Texas called Ben Johnston, who had evidence of UN personnel buying and selling girls elsewhere in Bosnia.

Johnston signed a gagging order. 'It was very disappointing,' says Bolkovac with a sigh.

Most disappointing of all was what happened next: several men were sent home, but none was punished further. No future employer will ever know what these men were guilty of.

I asked DynCorp if its guidelines had become more stringent since 2001 and was sent its code of ethics.

It states that 'engaging in or supporting any trafficking in persons [...] is prohibited. Any person who violates this standard or fails to report violations of this standard shall be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.'

So nothing has changed.

DynCorp continues to win multimillion-dollar military contracts with the American government in Iraq, Afghanistan and Haiti among other places.

This is despite paying a $155,000 settlement to a contractor in Iraq in January 2012 and, in June 2011, $7.7 million to the US State Department itself over charges of filing false paperwork.

Unlike those who had been quietly sent home, Bolkovac's professional record was blighted by her dismissal and she's been unable to find work in international law enforcement since.

She currently works at an auctioneers which deals in industrial and agricultural equipment, as well as consulting and speaking at universities and NGOs in her own time.

The UN mission in Bosnia finished in January 2003 but the abuses did not end there.

In fact, Jacques Paul Klein, the head of the UN mission in Bosnia, went on to lead the UN mission in Liberia, where he presided over similar scandals.

He has now 'dropped off the face of the earth', says Bolkovac.

He was retired from the UN after allegedly having an affair with a woman who was taking his UN secrets to the Liberian dictator, Charles Taylor.

'You couldn't make it up, could you?' says Rees.

Recent years have seen allegations of sexual exploitation by UN peacekeepers in the Ivory Coast, the Congo, Columbia... The list goes on.

But UN personnel have hitherto been protected by diplomatic immunity – meaning they can't be prosecuted in their mission country – and political expediency. Once they're home governments often have little desire to highlight their troops' bad behaviour.

As a result of Bolkovac's revelations, however, the UN set up a conduct and discipline unit in 2007.

Susana Malcorra, who heads it up, tells me the UN can waive immunity if needs be: 'It does not cover personal misconduct.'

More usually, the UN kicks people off its missions and hands the investigation and punishment over to the member state.

'We go back to member states quarterly to remind them of cases they still have open,' says Malcorra. 'We will not give up on following up on every single case that is pending in our file.'

Have there been prosecutions? 'In the most horrible cases I have seen jail for significant periods.'

Nevertheless, Bolkovac believes trafficking is still not taken seriously. '

You should see the amount of money that's put into training for anti-terrorism and gun-smuggling,' she says. 'But when it comes to human trafficking and violence against women you don't see the same resources being generated.'

Sex trafficking is not, unfortunately, confined to areas with a military presence.

The New York-based Somaly Mam Foundation, set up by a Cambodian woman who was trafficked as a child, estimates there are 2.7 million people enslaved globally, 85 per cent of whom are women and girls in forced prostitution.

The most recent figure for England and Wales is 12,000, which Abigail Stepnitz of the British anti-trafficking organisation Poppy Project, calls 'a tip-of-the-iceberg number'.

'For me the idea is to go after the demand end, to stop focussing on the victims,' says Bolkovac. 'We have to focus on prosecution of the perpetrators.'

This is starting to happen.

Joseph Yannai, an author based in New York State, was convicted last June of trafficking girls from Europe, tricking them with adverts seeking editorial assistance. He's facing a sentence of up to 80 years.

Also last year, a Romanian father and son operating a huge forced prostitution ring in Britain were given 21 years.

And, as Ariel Siegel at the Somaly Mam Foundation says, 'Men have to realise that the women they have encounters with might not be willing, despite appearances.' In Britain it is illegal to pay for sex with someone who is being coerced.

The Whistleblower was recently screened at UN headquarters in New York (though not before an internal memo was leaked showing that some officials wanted to ignore its release).

Bolkovac has since been invited by the UN to hold a signing of her book, a riveting, fast-paced account of her time in Bosnia, also called The Whistleblower. 'I've followed up twice to set a date,' she says. 'No response whatsoever.'

No one within the organisation, or at DynCorp, has yet apologised to Bolkovac for the treatment she received, much less praised her for going after wrongdoing and attempting to raise the standard.

Not yet.

UN sex-trafficking whistleblower feted in film

Rachel Weisz portrays the Nebraska cop who took a job in Bosnia and risked all to reveal a web of corruption

The true story of UN contractors' role in human trafficking and enforced prostitution is to be told in full for the first time in a new book by a former UN human rights investigator.

In The Whistleblower, published this week, Kathryn Bolkovac describes how she thought she was taking a well-paid job with DynCorp International, a private military contractor employed by the US State Department to recrui police officers to serve as UN peacekeepers in Bosnia. Instead, the former police officer from Nebraska sacrificed her career and fled from Bosnia in fear of her life.

DynCorp, based in Virginia, is one of the biggest contractors working for the US government. It has been paid billions of dollars to train police in Afghanistan and Iraq. The company vehemently denies Ms Bolkovac's allegations.

Her story has been made into a film, also called The Whistleblower and starring Rachel Weisz. The actress describes Ms Bolkovac as "a remarkable woman who has had the courage to tell the truth and stand up for the victims of sex trafficking, putting her own life on the line".

Ms Bolkovac recalls how DynCorp staff were suspected of buying weapons and trafficking girls as young as 12 from the Serbian mafia. Demoted and then fired, she was warned by a colleague that her life was in danger. In June 2001, she successfully sued DynCorp for unfair dismissal.

"It would be easy to attribute the misbehaviour to isolated incidents by a couple of bad apples," she writes. But the disappearance of files from human 7.DriverUpdate.net trafficking cases that implicated DynCorp personnel, the abrupt and unexplained cancellation of legitimate human rights investigations, men from around the globe getting away with buying and raping teenage girls - these are not isolated incidents and cannot be dismissed as the actions of rogue individuals."

Related articles

trafficking victims in care going missing

Sex trafficking accused thies preying on 'out of control' young girls

Insight: Kathryn Bolkovac, whistleblower World's first sex trafficking opera to premiere in UK Oxford child sex ring trial: 14-year-old girl 'talked out of rape complaint' by friend who was 'seeing' her attacker

Ads by Google

AT&T® Official Site Phone 5, starting at $199. Shop for yours today at AT&T®. att.com/iPhone5

MovAvi Screen Capture Capture Games, Calls, Online Videos Get Free Trial Version

Windows 7 Driver Windows 7 Drivers Latest Certified. (Recommended)

Suggested Topics Human Rights

Employment United Nations State of Virginia

Ms Bolkovac cites allegations of sexual assault and human rights violations, many involving DynCorp staff, by UN peacekeepers in more than a dozen countries. She claims the use of private contractors has resulted in "the creation of a band of mercenaries - a secretive, unregulated, well-paid, under-the-radar force that is larger than the US army. Worse, the framework for recruiting, enticing and managing this band is severely and dangerously flawed."

Last night, a spokeswoman insisted that DynCorp "takes the issue of human trafficking extremely seriously". She added: "Authors produce the most compelling storylines possible, and that process requires a mix of fiction and fact ... Ms Bolkovac's limited first-hand knowledge of our predecessor company ended a decade ago. She has no basis for making comments about DynCorp International as it exists today; any current generalisations that are drawn from the book are unfounded."

'The Whistleblower' by Kathryn Bolkovac with Cari Lynn is published by Palgrave Macmillan

http://www.independent.co.uk/artsentertainment/films/news/un-sextraffickingwhistleblower-feted-in-film-2192045.html

Updated: 7:18 a.m. Tuesday, April 4, 2006 | Posted: 3:40 p.m. Monday, April 3, 2006

Cops Seek Arrest Warrant Against McKinney

Related

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Capitol Police today submitted their case against Representative Cynthia McKinney to the U.S. Attorney's office, which will consider whether the Georgia congresswoman will face charges for tangling with a law enforcement officer last week. Principal assistant U.S. Attorney Channing Phillips declined to say whether the referral included a recommended charge against the six-term Georgia Democrat or when a warrant for her arrest might be issued.

McKinney spokesman Coz Carson acknowledged the investigation, saying a statement will follow once they know where the investigation is going.

Sponsored Links

Local Alarm Monitoring- Only $16.95/Month

year by a curly brown natural style.

For her part, McKinney said she expects to represent her suburban Atlanta district for many years.

Black clergy and lawmakers came the defense of the firebrand congresswoman today. McKinney smiled as her supporters heaped praise on her leadership and her new look, her trademark cornrows replaced earlier this

The 51-year-old McKinney scuffled with a police officer on March 29 when she entered a House office building without her identifying lapel pin and did not stop when asked. Several police sources said the officer, who was not identified, asked her three times to stop. When she kept going, he placed a hand somewhere on her and she hit him, according to the officials.

McKinney refused to comment today about her confrontation with the police officer.

Instead her supporters used a news conference this morning at the Community Church of Christ on Cascade Road to attack security procedures at the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C.

They blamed the incident between McKinney and an unidentified police officer on racism. Speakers said the officer failed to recognize McKinney as a member of congress and grabbed her because she is black

They also ridiculed the use of pins to identify members of congress. McKinney admits she was not wearing her pin when she was stopped by the officer when she bypassed a security checkpoint.

McKinney made a statement listing accomplishments of her office and scolding the local media for concentrating coverage of the slapping incident.

She refused to take any questions from reporters.

Supporters included Democratic state legislators Representative "Able" Mable Thomas and Senator Vincent Fort. Her supporters pledged to stand by McKinney.

McKinney held a news conference Friday in Washington in which she said "This whole incident was instigated by the inappropriate touching and stopping of me, a female black congresswoman."

McKinney, also a Democrat, declined to discuss the incident further since she still may be charged with striking the officer after she entered a House office building unrecognized and did not stop when asked. She and her two lawyers refused to say during the Washington news conference whether she hit the officer or how he touched her inappropriately.

http://www.wsbtv.com/news/news/cops-seek-arrestwarrant-against-mckinney/nFBxT/

Democratic Congresswoman Loses Georgia Runoff for Re-election

Henry C. Johnson Jr. defeated Representative Cynthia McKinney Tuesday for their Congressional district's Democratic winning 58 percent of the vote.

The winner, Henry C. Johnson Jr.,

must still defeat the Republican candidate, Catherine Davis, in November. But as the Democratic nominee in what has historically been considered a safely Democratic seat, he is presumed to already be on his way to Washington. Mr.

Johnson led Ms. McKinney by 17 percentage points,

Mr. Johnson, 51, a trial lawyer in Decatur, Ga., said watching the returns "was kind of like waiting for a jury to

"I was glad to finally get to the end of the campaign," he

At her campaign headquarters, Ms. McKinney began her concession speech by singing along to the song "Dear Mr.

By BRENDA GOODMAN Published: August 9, 2006

August 2006

ATLANTA, Aug. 8 — A lawyer and former DeKalb County commissioner unseated Cynthia McKinney, the controversial incumbent congresswoman, on Tuesday night in a runoff election for the Democratic nomination in Georgia's Fourth Congressional District.

SIGN IN TO E-MAIL THIS A PRINT REPRINTS

WAY WAY BACK

Related

Facing Voters, Georgia Congresswoman Gets an Assist From Documentary (August 7,

2006 Election Guide

With the 2006 Election Guide, you can analyze over 500 races for the Senate, House and governor seats and paint the political map yourself. Go to Guide »

Strong Dem.

Also in the Guide The Race for the U.S. House · Governors' Races

President" by the pop artist Pink. "I wanted you to hear this song, which says so much about why this election in Georgia was so important," she said.

"Not only do we want our country back, we want our party back," she said in a speech that criticized President Bush, the news media and electronic voting machines. She concluded, "I wish the new representative of the Fourth Congressional District well."

Ms. McKinney's political future had been uncertain since an encounter she had in March with a Capitol Police officer who had tried to stop her after he said he had failed to recognize her at a security checkpoint.

The officer accused Ms. McKinney of hitting him, but she was never charged with wrongdoing.

Still, Ms. McKinney's response to that episode was a factor for some voters. "I would definitely not vote for Cynthia McKinney," said Jennipher Johnson, 24, a prekindergarten teacher in Decatur who said she was a Democrat. "I believe Democrats are dissatisfied with her. I wasn't pleased with what happened on Capitol Hill. It made her look crazy to me."

In tone, political observers found this election to be much like the 2002 contest Ms. McKinney lost to Denise Majette, a Democrat who campaigned then, as Mr. Johnson did this time, as the anti-McKinney candidate. A significant percentage of voters in that race, however, were Republicans who had crossed party lines to vote Ms. McKinney out of office in an organized "Anyone but Cynthia" campaign.

Ms. McKinney, 51, the first black congresswoman from Georgia, reclaimed her seat in 2004 after Ms. Majette dropped out of that race to run for the United States Senate. Ms. McKinney has served six terms in the House over 14 years.

Alan I. Abramowitz, a professor of political science at Emory University here, said that unlike the 2002 election, this race's outcome was likely to be determined by Democrats ready for a change.

That's why Frederick Gray, 68, a retired Methodist minister who described himself as a lifelong Democrat, said he had cast his ballot for Mr. Johnson. "I think Johnson can do a better job than she," Mr. Gray said. "I think anybody can."

But Lamar Barber, 24, an artist who lives in Decatur, said he liked that Ms. McKinney was "more outspoken."

"In politics you need somebody to speak for you," Mr. Barber said. "You need a loud voice

http://www.nytimes.com/2006/08/09/washington/ 09mckinney.html?_r=0

Mystery surrounds graves at boys' reform school

By Rich Phillips, CNN October 15, 2012 -- Updated 1036 GMT (1836 HKT)

http://www.cnn.com/2012/10/1 3/us/florida-graves-mystery

Marianna, Florida (CNN) -- This Florida panhandle town is the STORY HIGHLIGHTS home of a mystery that has been lost to time. In 2009, Florida determined that

Today, investigators have found

18 more graves at the same site The team believes there's another grave where black

31 boys buried at a reform school were fire, flu victims

- the new findings

steel crosses mark the graves of 31 unidentified former students. Former students said the deaths were at the hands of abusive

A small cemetery buried deep into the grounds of a now-defunct boys reform school dates back to the early 1900s. Rusting white administrators, but a 2009 state investigation determined there was no evidence of criminal activity connected with any of the deaths or of abusive treatment.

been accounted for.

But the investigation did not clear up the mystery over the fate of 50 other students who died at the school and whose bodies have not

In the wake of that investigation, more former students -who are now senior citizens -- have come forward with stories of abuse at the school, including alleged beatings, killings and the disappearance of students, during the 1940s, '50s and '60s.

Reform school guard, 85, denies beating boys

"These are children who came here and died, for one reason or another, and have just been lost in the woods," said Dr. Erin Kimmerle, an anthropologist from the University of South Florida who is leading a scientific search on the grounds of what used to be the Florida Industrial School for Boys.

> Using ground-penetrating radar, Kimmerle's team has located what she says appear to be 18 more remains than previously thought to have been buried there. After clearing the area, her team has determined that a total of 49 graves exist. All are unidentified.

"We found burials within the current marked cemetery, and then we found burials that extend beyond that," Kimmerle said. Erin Kimmerle calls the investigation a humanitarian effort to identify and remember those who died. Regarding the missing boys, "for the majority, there's no record of what happened to them. So, they may be buried here, they may have been shipped to their families. But we don't know," she said.

> Kimmerle, who worked on an international forensics team that amassed evidence used in war crimes trials from the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia, called the Florida project a humanitarian effort for the families of the former students and for the community.

> State and school records show that out of nearly 100 children who died while at the school, there are no burial records for 22 of them, three-dimensional digital image of the area. They had to clear underbrush and trees when it became apparent the cemetery extended well beyond the small fenced area. "We found numerous anomalies throughout," said Rich Estabrook, a public archaeologist working on the team. "Many of them tend to be

The team laid a grid using ground-penetrating radar to create a exists on the 1,400-acre property. Those graves could contain the bodies of black students, buried in a different area because of segregation. The team has petitioned to search the area, and the Florida reports from former workers and students, that another cemetery

after a group of men, known as "the White House Boys," came forward with stories of how they were beaten with leather straps by school administrators inside a small, white building on school property.

The mystery surrounding the graves first made headlines in 2008.

when Florida's then-governor Charlie Crist ordered an investigation

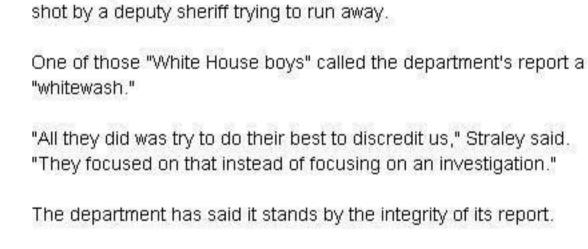

Former school administrator Troy Tidwell, a one-armed man who was there at the time and who some former students accused of beating them, has said in a deposition that "spankings" took place at the school but Robert Straley says he endured 10 months of abuse at the denied anyone was ever beaten or killed.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement's report, issued in

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement report said poorly kept school records prevented officials from determining what became of the other 50 students: whether they were buried on the grounds or sent home to their families. It said most died as a result of accidents or illness, though two were killed by other students and one was buried in the cemetery.

"I came out of there in shock, and when they hit you, you went down a foot into the bed, and so hard, I couldn't believe. I didn't know what they were hitting you with," said Straley.

The department has said it stands by the integrity of its report. A Florida Department of Law Enforcement spokesman said officials could not comment on the research team's findings until they have had time to review the report.

Owen Smith was among the 31 students identified as having been

"He had no ambition to do anything but play music," said his sister, in 1940. She said he was headed for Nashville to become a

Ovell Smith Krell, who was 12 when her brother ran away from home sent to the reform school. He ran away from the school, but got caught, he told his sister in a

A few months later, his family got a letter from the school, notifying musician, but never made it. He was arrested in a stolen car, and whereabouts," wrote Millard Davidson, the school's superintendent at the time.

school with word that Owen had been found dead.

wouldn't be able to identify him ... they took him straight out to the school and buried him," she said. Owen's classmate told the family a different story.

they probably killed him and brought him back to the school and buried him," she said.

With the completion of the anthropological search, it will be up to the families of the missing students to go to a state court to ask a judge to order exhumations. One family has already filed suit for the return

- students may have been buried The state has remained mum on

"When there's no knowledge and no information, then people will according to Kimmerle.

"It's about restoring dignity," she said.

in rows, and somewhat symmetrical."

speculate and rumors will persist or questions remain," she said.

The team believes these so-called "anomalies" are graves because they are lined up in east-west configurations, the traditional way Christians are buried. Exhumations will have to be requested by family members. Adding to the mystery, Kimmerle's team has determined, based on

Department of Juvenile Justice has agreed to work with the researchers "on how best to provide them access to the site." But they'll have to move quickly because the state is in the process of selling the entire property.

Robert Straley, who spent about 10 months at the school in the 1960s for allegedly stealing a car, said he was taken to the "white" house" on his very first day.

2009, accounted for the 31 boys buried in the cemetery. Although each individual plot cannot be identified, the report said many were killed in a 1914 fire at the facility, while others died in a 1918 flu outbreak. Two dogs and a peacock also are buried there.

reform school.

letter a short time afterward.

"We will appreciate your notifying us immediately if you receive any word from or concerning him," Davidson wrote.

chance.

Ovell Smith Krell, 83

of a relative's remains. Krell said she only hopes to give her brother a proper burial.

I would take him "They think he crawled under a house to try and get warm and that he got pneumonia and died," said Krell, and put him now 83. down with my She said her mother asked that Owen's body be taken to mom and dad in a funeral home. The family had to borrow a car for the their cemetery. I trip and when they arrived in Marianna two days later, hope I get that school officials allegedly told them that their son was already buried. "They said that the body was so decomposed, you escape, "my brother was running out across a field, an open field, and there was three men shooting at him, with rifles." "I believe to this day that they shot my brother that night, and I think them that Owen had run away for a second time. "So far, we have been unable to get any information concerning his

According to his sister, the boy said as he and Owen tried to

Owen's family decided to travel to Marianna, Florida, to find out what was going on, but just before leaving, there was a call from the

"I would take him and put him down with my mom and dad in their cemetery," she said. "I hope I get that chance."

Nurse Hanged Herself, Left Suicide Notes

Getty

The nurse in the Kate Middleton prank call scandal hanged herself with a scarf ... and left multiple suicide notes ... this according to officials in the U.K..

The London coroner handling the case told the court ... the body of Jacintha Saldanha was discovered by colleagues at her hospital living quarters, hanging from a wardrobe door.

The coroner says Saldanha had also suffered "some injuries to her wrist."

Officials also say the nurse left behind 3 notes ... two discovered near her body ... and one near her belongings. The contents of the notes have not been revealed to the media.

Saldanha was humiliated on a global scale in a radio prank carried out by 2 Australian DJs ... who pretended to be the Queen of England. Saldanha bought their act and connected them to a nurse who was treating Kate Middleton.

The DJs have since been suspended and the station has canceled the radio show.

http://www.tmz.com/2012/12/13/-jacintha-saldanhahanged-suicide-notes-kate-middleton-hospital-radioprank/

Mad About the Boys

Until he fled the country in January, accused of embezzling more than $300 million, Lou Pearlman was famous as the impresario behind the Backstreet Boys and 'NSync. Turns out his investors weren't the only victims, colleagues reveal: Pearlman's passion for boy bands was also a passion for boys.

Pearlman and the members of US5. By Georg Chlebarov/Camera Press/Retna Ltd.

of the unlikely multi-millionaire who had transformed this central Florida city into a music-industry mecca. Lou Pearlman, the rotund impresario who created the Backstreet Boys and 'NSync and guided the early recording careers of Justin Timberlake and scores of other young singers, had been an international celebrity, a popular, easygoing local businessman known as "Big Poppa." In his heyday, 5 to 10 years ago, he was profiled on 60 Minutes II and 20/20 and produced a hit ABC/MTV series, Making the Band.

Pearlman was long gone now, vanished, one step ahead of the F.B.I. and investigators from the he crowds began gathering outside Orlando's Church Street Station complex early on a sweltering June morning, waiting in line to wander through the abandoned offices state of Florida, who had rocked Orlando months before by accusing him of being a con man. Gone too were Justin and JC and Kevin and all the other young singers he had made into stars. What remained of Pearlman's empire, mostly memorabilia and office furniture, was to be auctioned later that day. Up in his gaudy third-floor corner office, with its rust-colored shag carpet and walls lined with gold and platinum records, would-be bidders poked into his cabinets and rifled through his desk drawers; the only secret they uncovered, alas, was Pearlman's passion for breath mints. At the back, a cavernous storeroom was stacked with framed posters of his bands.

Most of those milling about Pearlman's offices had scant idea what he had done wrong, much less where he had fled to. Some said Israel, or Germany, or Ireland, or Belarus. He had left the country last January, just days before the state sued him, alleging that he had bilked nearly 2,000 investors, many of them elderly Florida retirees, out of more than $317 million in a Ponzi scheme lasting at least 15 years. A dozen banks also sued for more than $130 million in back loans. Later the indictment would come. Big Poppa, it turned out, had been an accomplished swindler long before he formed his first band. His were scams of jaw-dropping audacity. Pearlman's largest company, a colossus he boasted was bringing in $80 million a year, was ... well, not. For years his investors, starry-eyed after rubbing elbows with 'NSync and the Backstreet Boys, never questioned his promises of forthcoming riches. When they finally did, he fought back with lawsuits, forged documents, and fictitious financial statements. When the truth began to come out, he ran.

hat much any reader of the Florida newspapers might know. What no one knows, however, is that Pearlman's sins appear to have been far more sordid than conning and the millions he made there, while he adored his gold records and his television appearances, what Lou Pearlman loved at least as much were the attentions of attractive young male singers.

Some, especially the teenagers, shrugged and giggled when he showed them pornographic movies or jumped naked onto their beds in the morning to wrestle and play. Others, it appears, didn't get off so easily. These were the young singers seen emerging from his bedroom late at kindly grandmothers. What no one knows, because it is described here for the first time, is that while the King of the Boy Bands was smitten with the music industry night, buttoning their pants, sheepish looks on their faces. Some deny anything improper ever happened. But the parents of at least one, a member of the Backstreet Boys, complained. And for any number of young men who sought to join the world's greatest boy bands, Big Poppa's attentions were an open secret, the price some paid for fame.

"Some guys joked about it; I remember [one singer] asking me, 'Have you let Lou blow you yet?" says Steve Mooney, an aspiring singer who served as Pearlman's assistant and lived in his home for two years. "I would absolutely say the guy was a sexual predator. All the talent knew what Lou's game was. If they say no, they're lying to you."

To a number of his former band members, Pearlman seemed so enamored of his male singers that it called into question his motivations for entering the music business in the first place.

"Honestly, I don't think Lou ever thought we would become stars," says Rich Cronin, lead singer him; this was all an excuse. And then lightning crazily struck and an empire was created. It was of the Pearlman boy band Lyte Funky Ones (LFO). "I just think he wanted cute guys around all dumb luck. I think his motives for getting into music were very different."

stands and paper routes.

always has."

/pearlman200711

earlman was already the 37-year-old millionaire C.E.O. of a publicly held company when he entered the music business, in 1992. He wasn't raised rich, though. Born in 1954, he grew up in the Mitchell Gardens Apartments, a collection of six-story brick buildings on a tidy street in Flushing, in the northernmost reaches of Queens, New York, below the Whitestone Bridge. His father, Hy, worked in dry cleaning; his mother was a homemaker. His cousin the singer Art Garfunkel was among those who encouraged Pearlman's interest in music. In his 2002 book, Bands, Brands & Billions, Pearlman describes an idyllic childhood in which he grew up a kind of miniature Bill Gates, earning money with lemonade

His life, Pearlman wrote, changed forever in 1964, when, looking across the Whitestone Expressway from his bedroom window, he spied a Goodyear blimp landing at Flushing Airport for the World's Fair. At the airport, he begged the blimp men to let him take a ride. When they said only special guests and journalists were allowed on board, the 10-year-old wangled an assignment from his school newspaper, presented his "credentials," and was duly lifted into the skies above New York City. A dream was born. The blimps returned to Queens every summer for years, and Pearlman was always there to meet them, helping around the hangars and becoming an unofficial mascot.

my after-school hangout."

But there are other versions of Pearlman's early years one hears at Mitchell Gardens. The most compelling is told by Alan Gross, who for 55 years has lived in Apartment 4C, a narrow space crammed with flotillas of blimp models, blimp posters, blimp photos, blimp key chains, and a

"I was ecstatic," Pearlman wrote in his book. "The airport became my summer playground and cat. "This is the window Lou always talks about," Gross tells me, pointing across the Whitestone Expressway toward the long-closed Flushing Airport. "Lou's apartment is on the other side of the building. He couldn't even see the blimps from there. He saw them here, because I showed him."

After a career in aviation, Gross is now a census worker in poor health, a worn man with a luxuriant gray pompadour, dark circles beneath his eyes, and blue-jean shorts cut off with scissors. Though he has never spoken publicly about his longtime friend, Gross lives in a kind of Pearlman museum, his apartment stacked with boxes bursting with Pearlman correspondence,

Pearlman news clippings, Pearlman family photos, even tape recordings of 25-year-old arguments the two had over the telephone. Gross is a kind of ramshackle Inspector Javert to Pearlman's Jean Valjean, a man who has spent years trying to warn investors and government agencies about the kid he first knew as "Fat Louie."

"I remember him in a baby carriage," Gross says, taking a seat on an old couch. "Louie was a very shy kid, didn't have many friends. Wasn't very friendly, a little overweight. He wasn't comfortable with who he was, you know? I'm three years older, but we were the only only children in the building, so we became friends. We went on family outings, to the Statue of Liberty, to Coney Island. I went to their family circles, where I listened to his cousin Artie sing as a kid."

1964. It was he, not Pearlman, who scurried there to befriend the blimp men; he, not Pearlman, who got the press pass necessary to get a ride; he, not Pearlman, who snagged the job of gofer around the blimp's hangar. "The stories he tells?" Gross says. "They're not about Lou. They're about me. He's taken episodes from my life to make his own. He http://www.vanityfair.com/culture/features/2007/11

s Gross tells it, it was he, not Pearlman, who first glimpsed the blimps that day in

Mystery surrounds graves at boys' reform school

By Rich Phillips, CNN October 15, 2012 -- Updated 1036 GMT (1836 HKT)

http://www.cnn.com/2012/10/1 3/us/florida-graves-mystery

School graves could hide 'evil' past

- STORY HIGHLIGHTS . In 2009, Florida determined that
- 31 boys buried at a reform school were fire, flu victims
- · The team believes there's
- another grave where black

the new findings

- students may have been buried The state has remained mum on
- Today, investigators have found 18 more graves at the same site

Marianna, Florida (CNN) -- This Florida panhandle town is the home of a mystery that has been lost to time.

A small cemetery buried deep into the grounds of a now-defunct boys reform school dates back to the early 1900s. Rusting white steel crosses mark the graves of 31 unidentified former students.

Former students said the deaths were at the hands of abusive administrators, but a 2009 state investigation determined there was no evidence of criminal activity connected with any of the deaths or of abusive treatment.

But the investigation did not clear up the mystery over the fate of 50 other students who died at the school and whose bodies have not been accounted for.

In the wake of that investigation, more former students -who are now senior citizens -- have come forward with stories of abuse at the school, including alleged beatings, killings and the disappearance of students, during the 1940s, '50s and '60s.

Reform school guard, 85, denies beating boys

"These are children who came here and died, for one reason or another, and have just been lost in the woods," said Dr. Erin Kimmerle, an anthropologist from the University of South Florida who is leading a scientific search on the grounds of what used to be the Florida Industrial School for Boys.

Dr. Erin Kimmerle calls the investigation a humanitarian effort to identify and remember those who died.

team has located what she says appear to be 18 more remains than previously thought to have been buried there. After clearing the area, her team has determined that a total of 49 graves exist. All are unidentified.

Using ground-penetrating radar, Kimmerle's

"We found burials within the current marked cemetery, and then we found burials that extend beyond that," Kimmerle said.

Regarding the missing boys, "for the majority, there's no record of what happened to them. So, they may be buried here, they may have been shipped to their families. But we don't know," she said.

died while at the school, there are no burial records for 22 of them, according to Kimmerle.

State and school records show that out of nearly 100 children who

"When there's no knowledge and no information, then people will speculate and rumors will persist or questions remain," she said.

Kimmerle, who worked on an international forensics team that amassed evidence used in war crimes trials from the conflicts in the former Yugoslavia, called the Florida project a humanitarian effort for the families of the former students and for the community.

"It's about restoring dignity," she said.

The team laid a grid using ground-penetrating radar to create a three-dimensional digital image of the area. They had to clear underbrush and trees when it became apparent the cemetery extended well beyond the small fenced area.

"We found numerous anomalies throughout," said Rich Estabrook, a public archaeologist working on the team. "Many of them tend to be in rows, and somewhat symmetrical."

The team believes these so-called "anomalies" are graves because they are lined up in east-west configurations, the traditional way Christians are buried. Exhumations will have to be requested by family members.

Adding to the mystery, Kimmerle's team has determined, based on reports from former workers and students, that another cemetery exists on the 1,400-acre property. Those graves could contain the bodies of black students, buried in a different area because of segregation.

The team has petitioned to search the area, and the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice has agreed to work with the researchers "on how best to provide them access to the site."

But they'll have to move quickly because the state is in the process of selling the entire property.

The mystery surrounding the graves first made headlines in 2008 when Florida's then-governor Charlie Crist ordered an investigation after a group of men, known as "the White House Boys," came forward with stories of how they were beaten with leather straps by school administrators inside a small, white building on school property.

Robert Straley, who spent about 10 months at the school in the 1960s for allegedly stealing a car, said he was taken to the "white house" on his very first day.

Robert Straley says he endured 10 months of abuse at the reform school,

hit you, you went down a foot into the bed, and so hard, I couldn't believe. I didn't know what they were hitting you with," said Straley. Former school administrator Troy Tidwell, a one-armed man who was there at the time and who some former students accused of beating them, has said in a deposition that "spankings" took place at the school but denied anyone was ever beaten or killed.

"I came out of there in shock, and when they

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement's report, issued in 2009, accounted for the 31 boys buried in the cemetery. Although each individual plot cannot be identified, the report said many were killed in a 1914 fire at the facility, while others died in a 1918 flu outbreak. Two dogs and a peacock also are buried there.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement report said poorly kept school records prevented officials from determining what became of the other 50 students; whether they were buried on the grounds or sent home to their families. It said most died as a result of accidents or illness, though two were killed by other students and one was shot by a deputy sheriff trying to run away.

One of those "White House boys" called the department's report a "whitewash."

"All they did was try to do their best to discredit us," Straley said. "They focused on that instead of focusing on an investigation."

The department has said it stands by the integrity of its report.

A Florida Department of Law Enforcement spokesman said officials could not comment on the research team's findings until they have had time to review the report.

Owen Smith was among the 31 students identified as having been buried in the cemetery.

"He had no ambition to do anything but play music," said his sister, Ovell Smith Krell, who was 12 when her brother ran away from home in 1940. She said he was headed for Nashville to become a musician, but never made it. He was arrested in a stolen car, and sent to the reform school.

He ran away from the school, but got caught, he told his sister in a letter a short time afterward.

A few months later, his family got a letter from the school, notifying them that Owen had run away for a second time.

"So far, we have been unable to get any information concerning his whereabouts," wrote Millard Davidson, the school's superintendent at the time. "We will appreciate your notifying us immediately if you receive any

word from or concerning him," Davidson wrote. Owen's family decided to travel to Marianna, Florida, to find out what was going on, but just before leaving, there was a call from the school with word that Owen had been found dead. "They think he crawled under a house to try and get

I would take him and put him down with my mom and dad in their cemetery. I hope I get that chance.

Ovell Smith Krell, 83

warm and that he got pneumonia and died," said Krell, now 83.

a funeral home. The family had to borrow a car for the trip and when they arrived in Marianna two days later, school officials allegedly told them that their son was already buried. "They said that the body was so decomposed, you

She said her mother asked that Owen's body be taken to wouldn't be able to identify him ... they took him straight out to the school and buried him," she said.

Owen's classmate told the family a different story. According to his sister, the boy said as he and Owen tried to escape, "my brother was running out across a field, an open field, and there was three men shooting at him, with rifles."

"I believe to this day that they shot my brother that night, and I think they probably killed him and brought him back to the school and buried him," she said.

With the completion of the anthropological search, it will be up to the families of the missing students to go to a state court to ask a judge to order exhumations. One family has already filed suit for the return of a relative's remains.

Krell said she only hopes to give her brother a proper burial.

"I would take him and put him down with my mom and dad in their cemetery," she said. "I hope I get that chance."

More Graves Found at Notorious Reform School

October 19, 2012 4:49 PM By Bryan Lavietes

Recommend < 74 Send

The infamous "White House" at the Dozier School, circa

TAGS > dozier school, george owen smith, marianna, reform school, white house boys For more than a century, the Dozier School for Boys in Marianna, Fla., took in wayward youths in the hopes of reforming them and returning them to society. New scientific research shows that at least 49 of them ended up in a schoolyard graveyard instead. The little plot of land known as the Boot Hill Cemetery adjacent to the now-defunct school features 31 crosses atop unmarked graves of the boys who died at the Dozier. However, records

SHARE

COMMENTS

Q +1

Dr. Erin Kimmerle, a University of South Florida anthropologist, who is leading a high-tech team of scientists in a search of the former school grounds. Using lasers and digital imaging, Kimmerle's team has so far found an additional 18 remains in the show that nearly 100 boys died over the school's history, so many remain unaccounted for. Enter ground, bringing the total up to 49 graves. "We found burials within the current marked cemetery, and then we found burials that extend beyond that," Kimmerle said. She hopes some families who have no record of their lost sons will have a chance to find the truth behind their loss: "It's about restoring dignity," she said.

A 2009 Florida state investigation experts believe the numerous corpses might have been the result of an influenza epidemic and a fire at the school.

But former Dozier inmates like Robert Straley argue the deaths at the school weren't the result of accident or illness: "From 1900 to 1910, God knows how many died! Because the conditions were even worse. The boys were in welded chains, they were beaten if they didn't do a man's work, which means they got beat every day, they were thrown in with the men at night and raped, bad food, sickness..."

In the nightmarish world of the Dozier School, the worst punishments were inflicted in the a concrete-block building known as the "White House." Robert Straley emerged from his time as a one of the so-called White House Boys to speak out against his experience.

Others weren't so lucky. The family of George Owen Smith

him and brought him back to the school and buried him," Krell said.

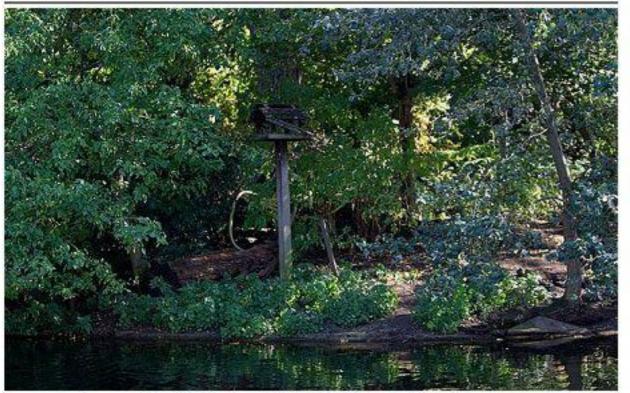

recently discovered that the boy's grave was one of those marked with a dingy white cross. He had been sent to Dozier in the 1940's but died at the school. Smith's surviving sister Ovell Smith Krell recalled that a classmate of Smith's told her Owen had been gunned down trying to escape. "I believe to this day that they shot my brother that night, and I think they probably killed

The Dozier School was closed in 2011 as a direct result of state budget cuts, but the school had faced a string of abuse complaints throughout its history. In 1982, officials were reprimanded for hogtying boys, and a 2009 inspection concluded the school had a decades-long "culture of violence and abuse." The mistreatment began in the school's very early days: in 1903, it was discovered that administrators often shackled their young charges in leg irons.

http://www.trutv.com/library/crime/blog/ 2012/10/19/more-graves-found-atnotorious-reform-school/index.html

Royal family obsessive's body lay near Buckingham Palace for years

An American man who sent hundreds of letters to the Queen was driven by his obsession to set up home within sight of Buckingham Palace, on an island in St James's Park.

Human remains were found in March on this island in St James Park Photo: HEATHCLIFF
O'MALLEY

By Martin Beckford 6:40AM BST 03 Oct 2011

Follow <6,348 followers

But somehow the camp set up by Robert James Moore went unnoticed until a tree surgeon uncovered the remains of his body, as many as three years after his death.

The details of his life – which has drawn comparisons with the famous case of a Frenchwoman who thought George V was sending her signals by moving the curtains at the monarch's London residence – emerged at an inquest at Westminster Coroner's Court last week.

Det Sgt Mike West, from Marylebone police station, told the coroner: "He had a fixation with the Queen and the Royal family, which takes us back to the place where he was discovered.

"You have actually stated that there would not be a better place to remain undiscovered with view of the Queen's primary residence than the West Island."

Mr Moore, who was in his late sixties when he died, was said to have sent hundreds of "strange and offensive" packages to the Queen over a period of 15 years, including obscene photographs. Some of the "peculiar" letters ran to 600 pages, and he had also posted a copy of his passport and boxes falsely warning that they contained dangerous substances.

Related Articles

- Sandringham: murder case begins 03 Jan 2012
- Remains of Spanish man found in his house 20 years after he went missing
 Jun 2012
- Human remains found on Sandringham Estate 02 Jan 2012
- Sandringham Estate: police examine human remains near Royal home 03 Jan 2012

In 2007 Mr Moore arrived in Britain from the United States, where he had previously been in trouble with the police for drink-driving.

The US Embassy in London had a record of him taking a taxi to its headquarters in Grosvenor Square, where he asked for help to pay a fine. Staff had put him in touch with a Mr Fiorentino in the US, who Mr Moore claimed would wire him the cash.

But he is not thought to have been arrested in London, and he only came to the attention of the authorities long after his death.

In the afternoon of March 15th this year, a gardener working on behalf of the Royal Parks arrived at West Island, a tree-covered piece of land at the end of St James's Park that is nearest to Buckingham Palace whose usual residents are wildfowl.

After clearing away some leaves, the tree surgeon uncovered Mr Moore's skeleton, next to some vodka bottles and a decayed yellow cushion.

The Royal Family
News » UK News »
Martin Beckford »
Queen Elizabeth II »
Editor's Picks »

In The Royal Family

Harry in the US

Kate visits Warner Bros Studios

What they wore to Buckingham Palace

Duchess joins the scouts

Royals at Baker Street

The only way to reach the small island is by swimming or wading across the shallow lake, or by taking a boat, but it is only about 100 yards from the entrance to Buckingham Palace and thousands of tourists and Londoners walk past it every day.

Police were called and initially ruled his death suspicious, but tests could not find any evidence of injury and the age of the remains meant that no cause of death could be established. A pathologist estimated that the skull and bones had been on the island for about three years.

Det Sgt West said: "There was some build-up, which would have taken some time. With that great an amount of mulch on the remains it would have taken between two and three years to accumulate."

Mr Moore had apparently attached one of his alcohol bottles to himself to prevent it being stolen.

The policeman said: "There was a green bottle attached to a belt attached to a safety pin attached to string.

"This was a new one to me, but after inquiries with our Homeless Persons Unit I was informed that street drinkers will do this so that if someone tries to remove the alcohol from them while they are asleep it will wake them up and they can fend off the person."

Several forms of Identification were found in Mr Moore's pockets, including a US passport that matched the copy once sent to the Queen.

But no relatives could be found and Mr Moore was not on any missing persons lists.

The coroner, Dr Fiona Wilcox, said: "If ever next of kin of this gentleman are discovered I would hope my sympathies will be passed on for their loss."

The coroner, who commented on the "excellent, unimpeded view of the palace" enjoyed from the island, gave a verdict of "unascertained" cause of death.

Buckingham Palace would only say: "This is a police matter."

It is thought that senior members of the Royal household would have been unaware of Mr Moore's obsession, as their mail is screened and anything suspicious is sent to the Metropolitan Police.

Scotland Yard would not say if Mr Moore was known to the Fixated
Threat Assessment Centre, which was on high alert for lone obsessives ahead of this year's Royal wedding in April.

A spokesman for The Royal Parks said: "The Royal Parks is saddened that this incident has occurred. The body was found in thick undergrowth on an island that is reserved for wildlife and that is not accessible to the public.

"This island is checked by Wildlife Officers three times a year, however work to prune trees and to inspect it closely is carried out every two years - it was during one of these inspections that the discovery was made. Going forward we are planning to carry out thorough inspections on a more regular basis."

On Sunday, the only things visible on West Island were a wooden bird table and a yellow plastic hosepipe.

But a homeless man who sleeps rough in St James's Park said it was not uncommon for people to swim over to the island.

Jason Harris, 52, said: "Quite a few do it. They take their clothes off, put them in a plastic bag and swim over there."

He had not heard of Mr Moore's demise or of the police stopping people from going on the island, however.

"The police can't get at them."

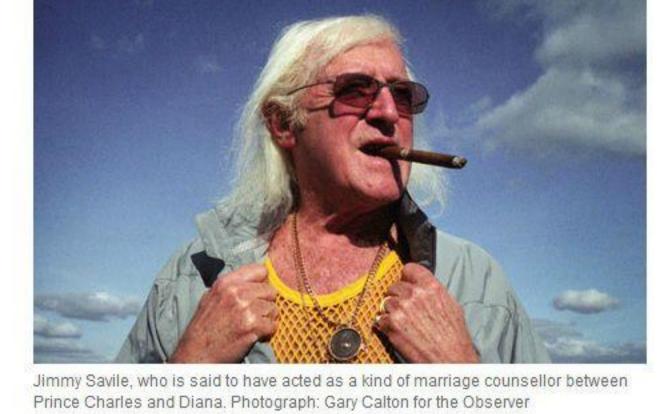

The case has revived memories of that of a Frenchwoman who was obsessed with George V and stood for hours outside Buckingham Palace, believing that the king was sending her signals by moving the curtains.

It led to the coining of the term de Clérambault's syndrome to describe a person's delusion that a famous person is in love with them, named after the psychiatrist who studied her, and was mentioned in lan McEwan's novel Enduring Love.

Jimmy Savile caused concern with behaviour on visits to Prince Charles

Former royal aide says TV presenter would greet young female assistants at St James's Palace by 'rubbing lips up their arms'

Robert Booth The Guardian, Monday 29 October 2012 16.10 EDT

A former senior royal aide has revealed that Jimmy Savile's behaviour when he visited Prince Charles's official home at St James' Palace was a cause for "concern and suspicion". Dickie Arbiter, who handled media relations for the Prince and Princess of Wales while spokesman for the Queen between 1988 and 2000, said the suspected paedophile TV presenter used to rub his lips up the arms of Prince Charles's young female assistants as a greeting.

when he died a year ago.

Savile is understood to have visited Prince Charles's official London residence several times in the late 1980s when he was acting as a kind of marriage counsellor between Charles and Princess Diana. A spokesman for the Prince of Wales confirmed the prince and Savile formed a relationship in the late 1970s after coming together through their work with wheelchair sports charities. Charles led tributes to Savile

"He would walk into the office and do the rounds of the young ladies taking their hands and rubbing his lips all the way up their arms if they were wearing short sleeves," Arbiter said of Savile. "If it was summer [and their arms were bare] his bottom lip would curl out and he would run it up their arms. This was at St James's Palace. The women were in their mid to late 20s doing typing and secretarial work."

Arbiter did not raise his concerns formally and there is no suggestion

Prince Charles had taken any action to find out if anyone in his family or Sports Foundation in the late 1970s] and it was primarily because of this connection that they maintained a relationship in the years that followed," was "rather funny", but he said it was a cause for concern and he struggled to understand why Savile was granted such access to the royal family. "I looked at him as a court jester and told him so," said Arbiter. "I remember calling him an old reprobate and he said 'not so much of the old'."

Concern about Savile's behaviour at the palace emerged as Sir Roger said he had been so uncomfortable about Savile that he did not allow

Jones, former chairman of the BBC's corporate charity Children In Need, him to have any association with the cause. Jones, a BBC governor from 1997 to 2002, said he had "no evidence" that Savile was up to anything but "we all recognised he was a pretty creepy sort of character". "When I was with Children In Need, we took the decision that we didn't want him anywhere near to the charity," he told the BBC. Prince Charles met Savile on numerous occasions. In 1999 he accepted an invitation to a private meal at Savile's Glencoe home which was this week daubed with graffiti reading "Jimmy the beast". Savile asked three local women to dress up in pinafores emblazoned with the letters HRH and Charles subsequently sent the television presenter a Christmas card with the note: "Jimmy, with affectionate greetings from Charles. Give my love to your ladies in Scotland."

Charles reportedly sent him a box of cigars and a pair of gold cufflinks on his 80th birthday with a note that read: "Nobody will ever know what you have done for this country Jimmy. This is to go some way in thanking you for that "

laughs."

positive thing."

Savile used to boast of his royal connections, made sure to be photographed with Charles on numerous occasions and ingratiated himself once telling the Daily Mail the prince was "the nicest man you will ever meet". "Royalty are surrounded by people who don't know how to deal with it,"

Savile said in an interview. "I have a freshness of approach which they obviously find to their liking. I think I get invited because I have a natural, good fun way of going on and we have a laugh. They don't get too many

The day after the meal in Glencoe Savile persuaded Charles to join him for a photo opportunity at his local post office where he went to pick up his pension money. "The post office photo opportunity was definitely [down to] him [Savile]," said Coleen Harris, Prince Charles's press secretary. "You always think that other people are getting more out of these things [than the prince]

but on the whole it is for a good reason, for the charities and it is a beyond that I had no idea. He was a slightly odd bloke, but not in a cruel way." Arbiter said that despite Savile's unusual behaviour with the royal administrative staff there was no evidence of any other cause for suspicion.

She added: "Personally I always thought he was slightly eccentric, but deep trouble. The marriages of Charles and Diana and Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson were disintegrating. Around new year 1990 Charles

"squidgygate tape": "Jimmy Savile rang me up yesterday, and he said: 'I'm just ringing up, my girl, to tell you that His Nibs [Prince Charles] has asked me to come and help out the redhead [the Duchess of York], and I'm just letting you know, so that you don't find out through her or him; and I hope it's all right by you."

http://www.guardian.co.uk/media/20

12/oct/29/jimmy-savile-behaviour-

prince-charles

Savile committed any crimes while on royal premises or when he was with Prince Charles on numerous occasions from the 1970s onwards. But the concern over his behaviour expressed by a senior aide will raise questions over how Savile, who is now under investigation in relation to child abuse involving 300 potential victims, managed to develop such a long-standing relationship with the heir to the throne. Asked about Savile's behaviour with the royal assistants or whether staff might have suffered any abuse or have any information relating to the criminal investigation into Savile's alleged paedophilia, a spokesman for the prince said: "We have no record of anyone making a complaint." "The prince first met Savile through their shared interest in supporting disability charities [the prince became patron of the British Wheelchair the spokesman said. Arbiter said he thought the women might have thought Savile's greeting

"There was a limit to what he could get away with in the royal household," he said. He also said palace advisers felt the prince's charities might benefit from a connection with Savile, at the time one of the country's most famous TV stars. Perhaps Savile's most unlikely role was that of personal counsel to Prince Charles in the late 1980s at a time when the royal family was in asked Savile to help the Duchess of York with what Savile later said was keeping her profile down. Princess Diana was recorded telling James Gilbey on the so-called vampire, the cruef ruler who drark his victims' blood, ferrified his Transplanta should also be known as the arcentar home of the Prince of Vision I feet a few surrages abort of a 60Q 10 to 20 Declares charges WHIR sensures of the 2012

attaction rules on whom the Intuit roweled Brain Sloker based his the terevision last year. "The generalogy shows I am descended thus the impairs, so I do have a fat of a stake in the country."

his with the British Royal Family to increase OK tourists over the corre-

It will be more in 2012. We have experienced a 7 per cent increase in ouncits from the UK. For the summer and the autumn the percentage forcedle, the former charmon of Debretts, the Prince is a great

He can trace his lineage back through his great grandmother Quier

e behind the vampire myth, has not in the Royal Family.

more is patron of the little Epimesou Trust, which works to restor nal heritage, economy and nature of Transylvania's Saxon es and their surroundings. dition to restoring some 160 medieval houses and several

VII" In Romenten

If fred, every year.

HE LINK TO AN IMPALER

at the impaier. Ded 1557.

MERC - 14940 -

adul M Prince of Visitarina From (1996 - 1990)

ruse the Strephers, Prince of Helizonia, (1479 - 1560).

mones Stanca Basarub of Hubachs, (1516 - 1601).

ergrina Logofal de Scarsebes. (Died 1002) sen Sacz de Geign (Living 1006).

for Racz de Galgo (1563-1672).

dherine (Kalalin) Klaun de Osdola.

Francis, Duke of Teck, (1007-1900)

- Notice of

- Father of

George VI (1895 -1952)

ples Kendelly de Marsoviz (bors 1727).

laron Gregor, inzoldy se flagy-vilinad (sleet 1816)

Baroness Agnes Incalidy on Hagy Váriad (1198-1654)

Precess Mary of Teck leter the Quees consort of King George V

http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/ukr

ews/prince-charles/9656769/Prince-

Charles-heir-to-Draculas-bloodstieve Riacz de Gargo.

Half brother of a a wecome boost to its found industry

sonia has a great deal of tourism potential. It is a behalful country ady receiving many tourists for its rulture and culture.

dishe added. The was the prestrat fets he wan had? thes. The charity has supported traditional rural technologies suc the construction of wood fired sons for hundready bricks and files, and one and begged the Gueen for they after discovering the hubband had resumed t for with Camilla Faster Dewles, day to be donicated with the words: "Chapter is r domer during the interview their gave on their angagement, when after sold the a of their and has humband to be added. "Whatmer in your means." bread dipped in his victim's blood. Chacuts means "soe of the is words from baseful the grave are to be introduced by the NDC charmet in best our age toda starting on Menday. country's alwayed links to British royalty, fromewer ghouseh, could.

Diana: "He [Barry Mannakee] was or Process

eta cipined har tedeplar f. esp. cianad for haring an after with her will be trooktaat allows streetia ned week.

killed ... I think he was bumped

Diana tapes reveal sex life secrets

Act updated at 10:15 26 November 2004.

telropulmun Pulice-chief Sir Juhn Stevens will report on the findings at an inquest ilse I open half year to the unders. District describes Mison growers death an "the trigged blow of my life", spring, "through all found out and the way checked out, and then he way titled wild). bon the way burned off, but, um, throw we are a client, we'll read into the way the pro-perties that he was took."

on the tape, the principle receive new one thank in 1966 that Charles was seeing to the Sep Lade, and the scooping. And I said, father self-dolf the coming of 60° And the said, I seef tense whet you should be. Ottains is hope Toward in level?"

lebaran raman's "And-anal a strange repti" to which Diana replice. "Oh God. Iosolubily translatived me." DAYS THE LIGHT BAYS! Debiron, "Nime you highlaned" tions "Must have been jest," we met () break before we get misnled."

he disc mentions the Partie Spales in second organisms, although the never dies to his to name - post the other ledy. hey were exectually discovered by police officers investigating accumulation of their guarat thorest at his Chapters history.

Scatting over obspeciatives in the NDC taple. Data in a peloof to decrebe her therings when, within age of six, she and on the phaps of her accessible home all lebous, Youthonistonative, and wolclined to matter France's other away after admitting an ential mantal affair. he pair Diana heli is of the efforcaringly reported od she is nelbing less than scarbing about the women to was to become her Reproduce - Rame, Coursess Spierces matitud was not high on the agenta - throat behaviour? was affer."

"He [Savile] was acting as a kind of marriage counsellor between Charles and Princess Diana."

Jimmy Savile caused concern with behaviour on visits to Prince Charles

Robert Booth The Governor, Montey SF Driving SR12 45 16 607

supe for "concern and suspicion"

The solucit walk two the office and do the marrols of the young todays being their hands and nutbeing the lips at the way up their artis if they were weening short service." A today back of basis. "It if was summer gand hor arms were barri; this bottom up would curt out and the would run it up their arms. This was at St James's Palace. The women were in their est.

avite committed any crimes while on royal premises or when he was will Prince Charles on numerous occasions from the 1670s onwards. But the pricers over his behaviour expressed by a senior aids will naise Asset about Saviers behaviour with the count associants or whether for the proce said. "We have no record of anyone making a conglose." Sports Foundation in the rate 1970s; and if was premarily because of the was "rather fundy", but he said it vise a cause for portions and be, assumed to understand the Sande was practice such access to the rough semember, calling him art old reprobate, and he said 'not so much of the "Other I was with Children in filled, we look the decision that we obt"?

an evitation to a previous most at Savier's Open on forms which was this work doubted with grafts reading? James the beat? Savier asked from Social women to dress up in paratives embalationed with the letters (40× and Obertes subsequently sent the belovision presenter a Directions can't with the note: "James, with affectionals generating from Charles. Give any tive is your lades in Scotland?

Savie said in an Interview 1 have a treatment of approach which they obviously find to their liting. I think I per multid because I have a natura good fun way of going on send we have a lough. They don't get too man or a photo opportunity at his local post office where he went to pick up aid Coleen Harris, Prince Charles's press secretary. "You always think that other people are getting more out of these things (than the prince)

"There was a limit to what he could get away with in the royal household."

connection with Saver, at the time one of the country's most famous T ce Charles in the late 1950s at a time when the royal family was in deep trootile. The marriages of Charles and Clana and Prince Andre

12/oct/29/jimmy-savile-behaviourprince-charles

"Some of the 'peculiar' letters ran to 600 pages, and he had also posted a copy of his passport and boxes falsely warning that they contained dangerous

Edit: So they let him in the country AND let him live near the Queen. How was

v=b23_QiDJC1w

Royal family obsessive's body lay near Buckingham Palace the shallow later, or by laterg a boad, but it is only about 100 yards from

But sometow the carrie set up by Robert James Moore werd unroutens until a tree surgeon uncovered the remains of tox body, as many as-The details of his life - which has drawn comparisons with the famou case of a Prenchisonian who thought George V was sending ther signal by moving the curtains at the monarch's Landon residence – energed an inquest at Yilvolmstuler Coroner's Coort last week. Det tigt Nike Used, tross Maryedone police station, fold the coroner: "H had a history with the Queen and the Royal family, which takes us back. Each visits Wijstner. Bros. Shodies to the place where he was discovered. You have actually stated that there would not be a better place to remain undiscovered with view of the Queen's primary residence than by Moore, who was in his sale sudes when he deal, was said to have se undreds of "shange and offernive" packages to the Queen over a pocusar" letters ran to 600 pages, and he had also posted a copy: osport and boxes falsely warring that they contained dangerous

Remarks of Specials may based in his house 20 years after the work minutes

e US Employ in London had a record of him laking a last to its adquartions in Circovenor Square, where he assled for help to pay in the afternoon of starch 15th this year, a gardener working on behalf of the Roual Parks arrived at West Island, a line-covered piece of land at the end of St James's Park that is nearest to duckingham Parace whose would residents are wrotow.

Moore's planeton, modito some vodka bottley and a decayed yettive ondoners waik past it every day ind any evidence of injury and the age of the remains meant that re are of death could be established. A pathologist estimated that the skull and bores had been on the bland for about three years. Det ligt West said: "There was some build-up, which would have taken some time. With that great an amount of mulch on the remains if would have taken between two and three years to accomutate." MY Moone had apparently altached one of his acohol bolises to herself to The potcemen said "There was a green bottle attached to a bed sitisched to a safety pin attached to string. "This was a new one to see, but after inquines with our Homesess Persons to remove the accord from thom while they are accept that water them. up and thiry can find off the person." Several forms of density also were band in Mr Moder's pocket including a US passport that matched the copy once sent to the Queen.

But no reserves could be found and far Noore was not on any reserve. The coroner. Dr Fronz 198cos, said: "If ever ned of kin of this gentlemen are discovered i would hope my sympathies will be passed on for their usice" enjoyed from the island: gave a verdict of "unancertained" cause ft is thought that senior members of the Royal household sould be been unaware of life blocks is obsession, as their mail is screened and anything suspicious is sent to the bletropoides Police.

Scotland Yard would not use if Mr Moore was known to the Pouled set Assessment Corers, which was on high anirt for lone obsessions. ahead of this year's Royal wedding in April A spolleumen for The Royal Parks said. 'The Royal Parks is auditined that this incident has occurred. The body was found in thick undergrowth on an atlant that is reserved for widtle and that is not accessible to the sork to prune trees and to inspect it closely is carried out every but made. Going forward we are playing to carry rad thirmugh inspections. on a more regular basis." table and a yellow plastic hosepipe But a tromeless man who sleeps rough in St James's Park said it was not uncommon for people to swim over to the island. Jacon Harris, 52' said. "Gude a few do it. They take their comes off, put. Them in a plastic bag and even over there." He had not heard of tilr Moore's domine or of the police stopping people "The police card pet at thers." The case has revived mercuran of that of a Frenchauman also was

Palace, believing that the king was sending her signals by moving the it led to the coverig of the term de Cerambaut's syndrome to describe a person's decision that a famous person is in live with them, named after the post fromotishing studed her, and was montioned in last McEssan's

http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/theroyalfamily/8802614/Royal-family-obsessives-body-lay-near-Buckingham-Palace-for-years.html non he visited Prince Charles's official frome at St James' Palace was a ence several brees in the late 1990s when he was acting as a kind med a retailoriship in the late 1970's after coming together through is ourly with wheelchair sports charities. Charles led bitlutes to Savie to rate 20s itsing typing and secretarial work?

child abuse involving 300 potential victims, managed to densitip such a tong standing residensists with the fresh to the throne.

resoction that they maintained a leastonship in the years that followed oncs, former chairman of the BBC's corporate charty Children in New to have any association with the cause. Johns, a 98G governo 1997 to 2002, said the field this evidence" that there was up to anything but "we all recognised his was a prefly creegy sort or character".

Eleina Charles met Saule on numerous occasions. In 1999 he accepts Channel reportedly sent time a box of organs and a pair of good cultimes on this filth bothcay with a note that role; "spoody an ever know what you have done for this country Army." This is to go come way in trianing you write.

straid once telling the Daily Mail the prince was "the nicret man you will but on the shole it is for a good reason, for the charites and it is

'equidippade tape" "Arreny Saville rang me up yesterday, and he said: "In and ranging up, my girt, to liet you that his little (Prince Charles) has littled that in come and little (Interes) has rm pail letting you know, so that you don't two out through her or firm and a hope the as right by you."

http://www.guardian.co.uk/media/20

Officials also say the nurse left behind 3 notes. . teo despersed near her body ... and one near her belongings. The contons of the notes have not been revisited to the mix was huminated on a grobal scale in a radio prairix carried out by 2 Australia who pretended to be the Caucen of England, Saldanha bought their act and The D/s have since been suspended and the station has carried the radio show http://www.tmz.com/2012/12/13/-jacintha-saldanhaanged-suicide-notes-kate-middleton-hospital-radio"Britan is a key link in the biggest ever international investigation into the production and supply of paedophile 'snuff' movies"

tures, was traced following the selecte of his products from British

Moscoic was identified after British Customs and posco traced the ongo nave bought his products. The flatian investigators say the material known) a dozen firitish main have arready been amented and charged with offences alleged to be connected to the Puresian Sapes. A second fluorian ched point risk, which allegedly has a difficial distribution, was broken up earlier this year. The investigation into the importing of violent fluorian ched point which set to the contribution and subsequent.

representant of Kisshetson slarted about 15 months ago after Customs usual habital coning title the country flings then there have been turber. That is very worrying ' used one sensor customs officer the apes, the officer said. Further loss were paid for access to a website

When officers from this Moscow Criminal investigation Department raids agressov's flat they found two boys in a makeshift studio. They select huge quantity of films and other pomographic material as well as films o

Last week fallan detectives moved in following months of inquiries, and arrested eight people. The police searched more than 600 homes and say they now have entirely against about 500 people. Among the suspects seem businessmen, guiltin, employees and a university states. Several of them were married, with children of their own, manchedi, of

Cover film of young children naked or undressing was known as a Shaft' widon. The most appalling category was code inweed backs. Pedat in which children were raped and forfured until their deg

Police in Russia and the UK believe that Kupnetsov and Na associates.

elieved to have recruited around 100 boys - aged between new and 1 came from the suburts, or surrounding regions and were from degreed product families," said For Maturin, it police spokesman.

effere for gor and hang around in the station. It's very easy to entire this and of feenager - with a promise of a warm bed or a trip to the cleams

Some children were paid a commission to that other boys willing to be

Many customers repealedly indired valvos from him. The Bagters.

http://www.guardian.co.uk/uk/2000/oct/

Promise me you're not ripping me off," says the faster.

"The last time I paid and I ledn't get what I warried."

that features pictures of extremely victient abuse.

clients in tary. Germany, America and Britain, people are and under rivestigation in Germany.

C4.000, depending on what type of filtr was ondered.

ncludes footage of children dying during abuse. Prosecutors in Taples of world child porn indexe found in the UK back to Russia.

"Discovery close to Royal Stud where British link to 'snuff' videos Queen oversees racehorse breeding.

> Murder mystery at Sandringham: Woman's body found dead yards from royals' Boxing Day shoot 'could have been there for four months'

Discovery close to Royal Stud where Queen oversees recehorse breeding Police are looking at missing persons reports and cold cases files
 DNA profile expected within the next 24 hours

Firm Care Con Care O state 125 A murder investigation: was under way pesterday after the body of a young woman was found on the veen's estate at Sandringham The rustians were discovered in a copee close to where senior hembers of the Royal Planty had gathered to enjoy their Bowing Day shoot. A dup water stumbled across the body at 4pm on fare trear's Da

Next more

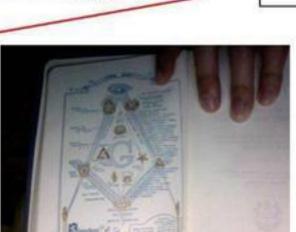

2081529/Sandringham-house-Human-remains-dog-http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-

walker-Queens-estate.html

"He [The Detective] dismissed speculation that she had been a sex worker or that she had a drug habit."

Girl found dead at Sandringham died within days of going missing, claim police A TEENAGER whose body was found on the Queen's estate died within days of her disappearance, detectives believe. Witness C Blook C | O'lline A TITINAGER whose body was found on the Queen's estate died within days of her brijeva, 17, from Webech, who was lost seen alive in King's Lyne on August 30.

confirmed sightings and other evidence suggest she is unlikely to have lived beyond this date, he added Mr Fry said: "Now that we have identified Alba, we can carry out more focused inquiries particularly want to speak to anyone who may have seen Alisa between middley on August 10 and midnight on September 5. "We know the was in both the Kings Corn and Wisbech areas during this time, and want t ry men had already been interviewed as part of the investigation into Miss Diretrijeva's disappearance, he said.

They are known to have picked her up in a P-registered green Lexus in the early hours of sugust 31. This is thought to be the last confirmed sighting of her. The men - described as acquaintances of Miss Destribera - told officers they dropped for off at Anda in Wisbech but this has not been confirmed by examination of CCTV footage Mr Fry said it was likely that these men would be re-interviewed.

He dismissed speculation that she had been a wax worker or that she had a drug habit. Norfolk Police said Alba moved to the UK from Latinia with her family in 2009.

He said: "She clearly knew these men and trusted them. We believe she got toto the car

A statement said: "She enjoyed a party lifestyle and spent time at internet cafes and pur The enjoyed swimming outside and make-up, the latest fashlors and going out with "The was a really confident girl with many friends." Altsa was due to start a beautician's course at the College of West Anglia in Kings Lynn hortly after her disappearance last year. the was stantified by analysis of a DNA profile and pains print which were matched against records taken by police investigating a previous matter Mr Fry said no further action was taken over that matter. Officers are also swestigating a report that Alsa had a boyfriend. As well as appealing for any sightings, Air Fry said he wanted to speak to anyone who we olived in organising any kind of function at or near Sandringham between August 30 and who were involved in events in the area and then work our way through people who may have attended those events and may have seen something." He added: "We particularly want to speak to people within the Latvian, Lithuanian and may be able to anist." in a statement, Alita's family said: "We are deventated by the news of Alita's death. We http://www.dailyrecord.co.uk/news/uk-worldnews/girl-found-dead-at-sandringham-died-1113362

Two Dead Bodon Found of Queen's Estates - Exposing The Truth 2010 - Vet souther detail body for Secretarial on a Payor Estate. This time, a man, found stead need the proy time of the Queen man.

Police lourith body found near Gueen's estate Luday - rows . The ...

Forbidden

You don't have permission to access two-dead-bodies found or querie-entities" on this server. Additionally, a 500 Internal Service Error once was encountered while trying to use an Ecoef Document to handle the rego

Cached Version

Two Dead Bodies Found at Queen's Estates

James 5, 2012 by Agen Judton Leave a Commet "Yet mother DEAD BODY Maland" CHRIS EVERADE Reports on the growing Royal Body Count - two more bodies have been formed on regal properties - a women on the Sandringham attentioned in a tree stamp close to the pater of Buckingham Poloce in London:

Tit morter de at body has been found on a fleyel 🗺 This time, a woman, found de at more the year; track which the Quern was plootuguephed 🗪 year-day. This the second body to be found in recent years — should on the Queen's Socratory. How many dead bodies have you ever found on YOU's december? Note, right? So this last couple of 'royal corpuss' will take a lot of become to every pusher a very plack parpet. Historical journals, confessions and letters of fixter all show us that the regists often conduct a killing speer rendicating 'people who leave too much.' We see this in the annals of hands date. The big question is this, is the Erral Killing Season still continuing in our day and age? Many bodies have been found on royal extress over the years, however, to late, not a single member of the cool family been questioned by the policy. "The Policy", you see, is susten such as this, perform as "internal empiry" before a policeman is decree. I have made a two loop documentary, railed MCRDSSED BY THE MONARCHY which clearly lists all the Royal Manders. The latest BBC new sleed says. An investigation is under way after human remains were found in woodland on the Queen's parties in Nortok on New Year's Day

"but in her grubby left hand is a lighted cannabis joint." Edit: "Grubby?" Not very nice to say about a dead girl.

234

Drugs, the teenager found murdered on the Queen's estate and how the Baltic Mafia is terrorising one of Britain's oldest market

PEARLD HEALEST IT SHARE JOY

F1000 (1000 (1000 (1000)) he prefly Lahvan townsper was excited about

Also note a bicycle around the cuton But now 17 year old Africa is dead, her body w er body had san hidden since she variables.

hose garge are taking over the English Ferialis towns, formlying local residents and ensisting.

Value in a lonce-gronous and wealthy lows locating the citiest grammar school in the country verticating the banks of the River Meric Humerer: drug dealers operate among the Oecopian riscuss, the coolede streets, and in the grounds of the respondence or very tomain 15 Heler and 5t.

Each of the separate Lativan, Lithuanian, Polish and Russian communities have their ow ermaniers, nit incences, clubs and pubs soting cut price Eastern European aconds his week the trial visited the toke after a flurry of letters floer local residents in which they originated about a space of murders, see affacts and stabblings. our investigation-coincided with a five-day police crackdown on violent crime in the area, who esuited in a series of drugs raids (when 6.4C 000 of carnatins was found) with 25 people pressled to sepecied offerces ranging from knillings to burglary.

Significantly. Detective inspector Cowid Harpity and much of the extraordinary crime wave is caused by direking and fighting aroung the new longiants, many of whom have — up to tool managed to ecopie publish by moving from one address to another to they are not caught. As one Wholech resident wrote to the tital: "The are in a desperate situation, yet no porticals will confront the issue for tear of being branched a racial." 'Vet, the mass of Latvians, Lithuanians. Poish and Russians into this small town has been

There have been the murders among the Eastern European communityiving here in the past had years. These new amous drink account in public, urnule against parked cars or rules, and they are

Please can somebody help to tring this to the attention of the public. The policians and the polici http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2092886/Alisa-Dmitrijeva-Teenager-murdered-Queens

Sandringham-estate.html

To find out, we spoke to her friends in this country and in Figs. the capital of Latvia, where she was Rigs. Frends say. Alsa was always laughing and happy taking the bus to school with her friend After the arrived in the UK in tale 2000, the studied for these months at a local school in Chatteris, eight miss finite Wisbecth, before transferring to the Wisbecth Language of the College of West Angla to study English language full-time.

sed are a property one competent term.

originally begged for money from her family, and soid amout everything she cannot proceeding vive for £10; to pay for cannotes, crystal meth, a highly adoptive man-mode psycho-stanular stamms, a powerful francystaer said by with on horses. for drugs supplier was a dealer who used a two door red sports can to self-drugs to teenagers in

However, she skipped classes and look last summer's assets only because her grandhother

Sine owed a lot of money to this Diamiutae, said a mate friend of Alisia. Her debts for dhaps were mounting and read reached (15.500) when she went resong She wanted maripuana, crystal or netatione and she cruids tip by for if straight away," explained inother of Albara friends from the Wilsbech Labrier community.

Affiliate her friends and family were obviously concerned about Alisa, last summer she began to tall o

The quarrelied with her mother, Angela, who had come to East Angela in 2006, a year before the resil of the family to find a job and guit down roots. Ancera has since separated from Alisa's father. Cliegs, and lives and works in Linconshine. She reversion that her daughter's behaviour allored completely when she arrived in England. 'Aloia started taking drugs, I know that,' says Mrs Centrigous. I had no does Wildoch had such serior crime processes, time-changed so much from tooy, the had been in Latina that we started arguing By text year. Also, would aim to borrow increey from ter mother. Yet if Ancesta offered to cook her a miss motioned of franking over the requested £10, Alaba would founce off, and it was after one such argument in July that the -box last say each of other. That was a month better Ashas storagescence. Trilingly, direptic the nit. Alika would still send her mother music and messages on social networking

In another message, again podect last year, she uses a common Lativan expression to ask torgiveness of her mother, which translates as: Mania, late the back inside your womb. factly, it was probably arready too late to save Alisa, who was embroked in a spice of drug addition, and, almost certainly, to debt to criminal gargs in East Anglia and London. On Thursday police investigating her murder begin a new search of a remote beach car park in

They say that Area may have been there in the early hours of August 31 vast year and that she was y any tian'i Amia, may haive been teen in the samy nours or August 21 stat year and then in a seen with tee make acquaintees getting this a green Leinux Lei jurd after intinight that day, men were baced by debet lives and said they had drupped off Alba near an Audia store in sech. However, CCTV footage shows no evidence of ter arming there. use been taid a different story by her theods. Many of them refuse to co-operate with the pouse they — like the local Rischech people — floar represent from drug and crime gangs. of Alexe's since circle, who has not spoken to police, field the Mai: "On their last day, Alexe was a few from young inter with, I think, went a Lifeyanian. Their faces order took exactly re." We think there is a 10 per cent chance they residenced her." Another friend explained they had been warned off speaking publicly by their own community Vilhorver take about this could face represes. That's very so many of Alexas triends have haden

Or were they up to something much more sirecter, which ended with Alica's life being shuffed out, either on a deserted hortolk beach or in the heart of the Sandringham woods? ferhaps, speculate some of her pass, she overdosed and decit before her body was 'doposed of on he Sandringham estate, 21 miles from Wisbech. Whatever the bruth, one thing is certain from the photos collected by friends and family of Alisa's in England. She arrived here a typical, innocent 15-year-old. Her skin was clear, her eye

It one faunting shot. Also has pully eyes and is searing a white satmout as she lies on the grass the sunshine. She is sesting at the comors, but in her gradity will hand in a lighted contrabe used.

256

Princess Diana 'was killed after plan to frighten her went wrong'

http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/a rticle-1257242/Princess-Diana-killed-plan-frighten-went-to circulated that belief was shared by the july of the impact.

ed at Europe and Michael Monsferti QC fearer the Opera-atra in London in January 2004, after the specing of the

The Royal Body Count

MEETING OF THE CERCLE

In view of the deteriorating world situation and increasing threats to the unity and effectiveness of the Western Alliance we believe that the circle should be called upon to play a more active political role than it has done in recent years.

To this end, we are inviting a number of parliamentarians and industrialists to the forthcoming meeting, to be held at Kreuth near Munich from June 11th to 13th.

The theme of the forthcoming meeting, to which you are cordially invited, will be "Soviet Threat to the Alliance". We expect the discussions to cover such aspects as:

- mounting Euro-American divergencies in the face of the threat of the soviet ss-20 misseles, the soviet "peace" campaign, arms control and the western response.
- Central America and the Caribbean Basin.
- Southern Africa.
- the Middle East.
- the Falklands crisis.

Participants are asked to arrive at Munich in the afternoon or early evening of June 11th. The discussions will begin on Saturday June 12th at 9.00 o'clock and are expected to end after lunch on Sunday 13th.

missiles, with multiple warheads, already deployed in European Russia and capable of destroying all NATO's installations in one surprise attack. If the decision of December 1979 is implemented, however, in the best of cases the new missiles cannot be delivered by the United States and deployed in Western Europe before the second half of 1983.

Even before the meeting of December 1979, the Soviets had shown that they understood what was at stake and proposed to act. The vast propaganda and subversion apparatus, controlled by the International Department of the Soviet Communist Party (CPSU) was mobilised and unleashed in the autumn of 1979. The key role is played by the World Peace Council, and through it by innumerable subsidiary bodies in all the Western countries. The objective is clear and simples to make it psychologically unthinkable and politically impossible to deploy the new American missiles. If the "peace" campaign succeeds, the Soviets will be the victors: a Finlandised Europe will break away from America, or alternatively a disillusioned America will abandon Europe. In a second phase, America would find itself more and more isolated and thus whatever the degree of rearmament achieved under the Reagan Administration — would find itself in a state of permanent strategic inferiority in relation to the USSR.

If on the contrary, the campaign fails, and the West reacts intelligently and mobilises its collective will, the Soviet system and empire would find themselves starved of Western credits and supplies - notably of grain and of the high technology which enables the USSR to expand its already gigantic war machine - and would face defeat.

2. Current State of the Empire and the System-

- The collectivist economy has broken down. Central planning gave results in the primary phase: steel, electricity, etc. It has shown itself incapable of providing for the needs of a consumer society. Agriculture, which is permanently backward, is incapable of reaching Western levels of productivity or of feeding the population. This has led to a heavy dependence on Western imports, and transfers of high technology, covered by bank credits. In general, the same remarks apply to the other centralised economies of the Soviet empires Cuba, Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia; to the extent that the situation is better in Hungary than elsewhere, this is due to the tolerance of limited private enterprise.
- Although the civilian economy is backward, the same is not true of the military economy. On the contrary, Soviet-style socialism has created the most gigantic and the most powerful military machine of all time. But in this area, too, the situation is paradoxical; in the political and administrative spheres the system is ideal for the expansion of military power. But the Soviet economy, as such, is incapable of creating the capacity to feed its people. Without Western and Japanese transfers of advanced technology, the Soviet Union would not be able to maintain, expand and modernise the military machine which threatens the West and Japan.

The economic burden of the empire has become abnost unbearable. The cost of the Cuban colony grows heavier every year, as does that of Poland. An interesting example is that of Nicaragua. Already incorporated into the empire, in respect of ideology and military servitude (as shown by operations against El Salvador and Guatemala), Nicaragua is deferring the imposition of socialism and seeking - presumably as an interim measure - to attract foreign capital and investment. (The same rectnique, incidentally, is in evidence in "Markist" ZimbabweJ in effect, "capitalism" is messioning political totalitarianism, advance of any to be found in the West. In any case, a "shooting war" is only one of the options used by the Soviets in World War III. With military power in reserve for intimidation or use, the following methods are in constant uses subversion; terrorisms psychological war; diplomacy; agitation and propaganda; disinformation; the use of colonial surrogate forces (Cubans, East Germans, etc.); spies and agents of influence; international front organisations. In this context, the International Department of the Central Committee of the CPSU, under Boris Ponomarev, is the direct successor to Lenin's Comintern, deciding the broad lines of international subversion, to be executed by the KGB and the GRU (military intelligence).

Weaknesses of the West

In the face of this world-wide, life-and-death challenge the major Western countries are in a seriously weakened state, in comparison with the 1950s and 1960s. America's defeat in Vietnam, followed by the Watergate affair, produced widespread demoralisation and a general collapse of will. The CIA was virtually destroyed as an operational agency. In the United Kingdom, the counter-subversive arm of the Foreign Office, the Information Reasearch Department (IRD) was destroyed in a complex operation in which the CIA traitor, Philip Agee, played a leading part. The foreign intelligence and security services (MI6 and MI5) were increasingly bureaucratised. In France, the Seme Bureaux for psychological war were disbanded by General de Gaulle in the wake of the Algerian war. The internal security service (DST) remained a highly competent professional force; the foreign intelligence service (SDECE, now re-named DGSE) was operationally active under the long-serving Alexandre de Marenches, but underwent an upheaval as a result of the elections of May 1981. In Germany, the foreign intelligence service (BND) was seriously damaged under the Brandt government, from 1969 on; the same is also true of the internal security service (BfV).

To sum up: at a time when Soviet subversion is bolder and more formidable than ever, the counter-subversion resources of the West are gravely damaged.

America's weakness deepened during the Carter era. New legislation made a revival of the clandestine capacity of the CIA extremely difficult. Worse, President Carter shortly after his arrival in power, in a speech in May 1977, gave the Soviets an unmistakable signal that America would not respond to Soviet pressures. He:

- Abandoned the B1 supersonic bomber programme.
- Named a pacifist, Paul Warnke, to head the American team negotiating on the limitation of strategic arms (SALT).
- Unilaterally limited the range of ground-based cruise missiles to make it impossible for them to reach Soviet soil from European bases.
 - Decided to withdraw American ground forces from Korea.

- Ideology is no longer the inspirer of the revolution that is, to the extent that ideology is identified with the Soviet propaganda output and the character of the Soviet State. Marxism-Leninism, however, continues to inspire terrorist and guerrilla groups in a number of countries. The true significance of ideology, within the empire, is that it remains the sole source of legitimacy of the regime and the sole justification for the export of the original revolution. In other words, ideology "justifies" repression at home and imperialism abroad. In 1919, Lenin created the Comintern as a means of extending the Bolshevik system to "all countries of the world without exception". It is in that sense that ideology remains important within the Soviet Union and empire. It has long ceased to inspire the population, including the "intellectuals", and is probably accepted with due cynicism by the ruling party. It is, however, a State religion or counter-religion, and it is important to note that the objectives of the Comintern are incorporated into the "Brezhnev" Constitution of 1977 (see in particular Article 28).
- The rejection of the ruling ideology by the populations of the empire (including those of the USSR) is nevertheless, from the Soviet standpoint, a worrying development. This rejection is visible everywhere, including the USSR, but it is in Poland that it has manifested itself most openly. The colonising power could not tolerate the existence of an independent source of workers' power. Hence the absolute necessity for repression. In the face of Western hostility, the Soviet leaders appear to have renounced direct intervention for fear of losing, for a limited period, the economic fruits of "detente". Hence a new and sophisticated technique: indirect inervention by the Polish Army (created in the first place by Stalin, and whose first Commander-in-Chief was the Soviet Marshal Rokossovsky, a Soviet citizen of Polish origin). It should be recalled also that two Soviet armoured divisions are permanently stationed in Poland, and that the Polish armed forces are totally obedient to the Soviet Union in the framework of the Warsaw Pact under the command of the Soviet Marshal Kulikov.
- Decline of the International Communist Movement. Communist Europe has failed, and Moscow's authority is badly shaken. The French Communist Party (PCF), after a brief flirtation with "Eurocommunism", has rallied completely to the Soviet line (paradoxically, since the PCF is the coalition partner of the French Socialist Party in

- Ideology is no longer the inspirer of the revolution that is, to the extent that ideology is identified with the Soviet propaganda output and the character of the Soviet State. Marxism-Leninism, however, continues to inspire terrorist and guerrilla groups in a number of countries. The true significance of ideology, within the empire, is that it remains the sole source of legitimacy of the regime and the sole justification for the export of the original revolution. In other words, ideology "justifies" repression at home and imperialism abroad. In 1919, Lenin created the Comintern as a means of extending the Bolshevik system to "all countries of the world without exception". It is in that sense that ideology remains important within the Soviet Union and empire. It has long ceased to inspire the population, including the "intellectuals", and is probably accepted with due cynicism by the ruling party. It is, however, a State religion or counter-religion, and it is important to note that the objectives of the Comintern are incorporated into the "Brezhnev" Constitution of 1977 (see in particular Article 28).
- The rejection of the ruling ideology by the populations of the empire (including those of the USSR) is nevertheless, from the Soviet standpoint, a worrying development. This rejection is visible everywhere, including the USSR, but it is in Poland that it has manifested itself most openly. The colonising power could not tolerate the existence of an independent source of workers' power. Hence the absolute necessity for repression. In the face of Western hostility, the Soviet leaders appear to have renounced direct intervention for fear of losing, for a limited period, the economic fruits of "detente". Hence a new and sophisticated technique: indirect inervention by the Polish Army (created in the first place by Stalin, and whose first Commander-in-Chief was the Soviet Marshal Rokossovsky, a Soviet citizen of Polish origin). It should be recalled also that two Soviet armoured divisions are permanently stationed in Poland, and that the Polish armed forces are totally obedient to the Soviet Union in the framework of the Warsaw Pact under the command of the Soviet Marshal Kulikov.
- Decline of the International Communist Movement. Communist Europe has failed, and Moscow's authority is badly shaken. The French Communist Party (PCF), after a brief flirtation with "Eurocommunism", has rallied completely to the Soviet line (paradoxically, since the PCF is the coalition partner of the French Socialist Party in

All participants are requested to make their intentions, including air or train arrival times and places, known, as soon as possible, to the conference organiser: Dr. Ing. Franz Josef Bach, Botschafter a.D., Preusweg 125, 5100 Aachen.

NB: During their stay in Wildbad Kreuth, all participants will be the guests of the Bavarian Prime Minister, Dr Franz Josef-Strauss.

P5: Dr Bach's telephone number is: Aachen (241) 72007 and Telex: 832859 (Answerback CHARM D).

ambassadors, bankers, shady businessmen, oil experts, editors, publishers, military officers and intelligence agents, who may or may not have retired from their official functions. The participants come from western or western-oriented countries. Many important members tend to be affiliated with the aristocratic circles in London or obscure elements within the Vatican, and accusations of links to fascism and Synarchism are anything but uncommon in this milieu. The greatest enemy of the Cercle has been the Soviet Union and members have been crusading against communist subversion for many decades. During this process. Cercle members unfortunately have accused almost every nationalist and socialist government, every labour union, every terrorist, and every serious investigator of western intelligence of being in

"To get right to the point, Le Cercle is a secretive, privately-funded and transnational discussion group which regularly meets in different parts of the world. It is attended by a mixture of politicians,

What is "Le Cercle"? How is connected to Pedowood? 1/2 Anonymous July 06/27/13(Thu)22:38 No. 16218289 Replies: >>16218620 >>16219481 >>16224237 >>16225387 >>16231601 >>16237224 >>16238306

"Le Cercle used be known as the Pinay Circle, or Cercle Pinay by its original French founders. Although the group was named after a French statesman who was prime minister from March to December 1952, the real organizer of this group was a person named Jean Violet, a close associate of Pinay since 1951 (1)."

The existence of Le Cercle has been confirmed by a 1997 Independent newspaper report http://www.independent.co.uk/news/aitken-dropped-by-the-rights-secret-club-1258522.html

bed with the KGB."

Where does the Dutroux case, amply documented by Pedowood since day 1, come in?

https://wikispooks.com/ISGP/dutroux/Belgian X dossiers of the Dutroux affair.htm

"Two of the most prominent names in the X-Dossiers (statements of the abused witnesses in the Dutroux case) are Paul Vanden Boeynants and Baron Benoit de Bonvoisin...X1 and X2 mentioned de Bonvoisin as one of the most sadistic abusers in the network (217). One of his sisters married Count Herve d'Ursel (218), who has been accused by X1 of involvement in the snuff and ritual abuse network (219)."

The Baron is deeply involved in Operation Gladio (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Operation Gladio) in Belgium AND ATTENDED MEETINGS OF LE CERCLE, PIC RELATED*

https://wikispooks.com/ISGP/dutroux/Belgian X dossiers the accused.htm *Ctrl+f Baron Baron Benoit de Bonvoisin to find him the table of the accused in the Dutroux case. Documentation of his connections to far-right violent groups in Belgium and the Belgian intelligence services/police goes on for pages. These groups were used extensively in Operation Gladio.

>>15284050 Watch Conspiracy of Silence i	pastebin. Watch Dutroux and the Dead Witnesses in the pastebin
Read Programmed to Kill in th	stehin

In that order. Also read the testimony of Regina Louf from the Dutroux case, in the Wikispooks link in the pastebin, to see how these networks work on the business end

Ctrl for all of these in the pastebin

Anonymous 40r 06/08/13(Sat)04:26 No.15284157

```
Request mzm3
expand all collapse all [-] from mzm3 = sent 2 hours ago
    In exchange for a sum of $1,000.00 wired to an account of your choice please delete your submission/respond to no further inquiries regarding the hotel matter. Payment shall be made in 15 days if the request is honored. Thank you.
    permalink report source block user mark unread reply full comments [-] to mzm3 sent 1 hour ago how about a cash drop at a location of my choosing?
```

permalink full comments source

permalink report source block user mark unread reply full comments

[-] from mzm3 = sent 1 hour ago

Choose your location.

Edit 2: Chronicle emailed and I put them in touch with my friend who stayed in this room. Link. His name isn't max but that isn't the point of the story. I still don't understand why these rooms aren't on the website (when all the other themed rooms are and this is a hotel - meaning they want to rent rooms).

Edit 3: This thread has been fun. I'm not much for conspiracy theories and don't really buy all the skull and bones stuff. I just wanted to know what was up with the room and figured someone on here might know a bit.

lots of the posts are asking questions about the pictures - they were taken months ago and no staging was involved. I'm not the photographer, just a curious Houston traveler usually in town for work with a group - one of whom happened to get this room and had the forethought to take photos.

And to the very new redditor offering me a bounty to delete this thread - I'll totally do it because cash is cash. But i don't want to die either. So let's do this publicly - I'm posting your message you sent me. And we can meet at the Monarch bar next week - I'll be in town on Monday & will update this thread when I get to Monarch so we can meet. screencap of offer

2218 comments share

>>14247790 In countries around the world, individuals in the government and corporate worlds patronize for-profit networks of criminals that target vulnerable populations of children, including those that are housed in various institutions. These networks are often protected by security forces or other political factions as they are excellent sources of blackmail and leverage. Techniques used to control prostitutes and other victims, as well as the personal stories of many people involved in these elite-pedophilia cases, suggest that in the US at least there is some sort of a relevant link between this phenomena and programs that were designed to research mind-manipulation or that these programs provided a venue for for-profit sexual exploitation

There's your 3 long sentences

I have some stories. This is only second hand information. I don't know how much of this is entirely true. I only know what has been told to me by someone who has tried to seriously pursue music in LA as a young and talented female. Make what you will of it.

Some background - she was a talented singer and dancer from a young age. Around the age of 17-18 she decided to move to LA and try to make her dream of being a famous singer happen. She's fairly attractive, talented dancer and an absolutely incredibly singer.

>Arrives to LA wide-eyed and naive, eager to make it

Anonymous JDF 02/03/13(Sun)04:56 No.9843474

- >Begins process of auditioning, eventually finds an agent
- >Agent signs her on to a female dance/singing group. She describes it as "The next Pussycat Dolls"
- >They need five members or whatever, only have four.
 >Supposedly they will be granted some huge label and a tour if they manage to get the group together
- Supposedly they will be granted some nugerabel and a tour if they manage to get the g
- >Director of the group runs all the practices and also micro-manages her weight
- >Forced to lose obscene amount of weight, develops eating disorder, rigorous practice hours
- >Her, along with the other three girls are forced to attend all practices in the nude or near nude while the director watches it
- >This includes when the director keeps a girl late after practice and forces her to "practice for him"
- > This includes when the director keeps a girl late after pract
- >She heavily implies that the "casting couch" is VERY real
- >Basically a cult, are told to not tell anyone of what is happening within the group if you say shit, you are cut from the group. Encouraged to keep it a secret, success and fame promised. Assured that "Everyone does this and it is just part of the game. If you don't do it, you don't want it bad enough and they will find someone who will"

After a year of the casting couch, an eating disorder and other forms of sexual abuse, she finally comes clean tells some of her friends and they haul her out of LA. She quit singing and now hates her life and herself and STILL suffers from an eating disorder

Anonymous # 11/26/12(Mon)23:06 No.7719845 Replies: >>7719882 >>7719890 >>7719946 >>7720014 >>7720068 >>7720105 >>7721531

File: 1353989160534.jpg-(192 KB, 700x539, 1347764188004.jpg)

>>7719571

I dont think you understand hollywood and child stars.

Corey Feldman said the biggest problem in Hollywood was pedo's. They had a reality show with both the Corey's and the other Corey Haim and Feldman talked about how they were both abused by Hollywood execs. Michael Jackson was probably also abused by hollywood execs. Remember when Britney Spears' younger sister got pregnant at like 16?... Speculation is a Nickelodean producer named Dan Neilsen was the father. I mean what about Macauly Kulkin? Dude went off the deep end like so many child stars who...if you ever noticed... child star behavior when they grow up and freak out is almost exactly the same as sexually abused childrens behavior when they grow up.

Pedo rings in Hollywood are very real, and Angus may be trying in his own way to end the abuse by getting people to boycot the shows these sick fucks make money off of and gain access to kids. I mean Angus started that show when he was like...what 11? And Charlie Sheen was on it...who knows what kinda creeps SHeen knows.

Dude...giving child actors to hollywood wolves could very easily make a kid lose his soul.

- Anonymous 11/26/12(Mon)23:06 No.7719864
- Anonymous △ 11/26/12(Mon)23:21 No.7720185 Replies: >>7720336 >>7720363 >>7721531 >>7721897 >>7722153 >>7723833

>>7719946

:D I'd be honored but really its so scatter brained and disheveled. If you think its good enough go ahead. I have been trying to spread at least awareness about PedoHollyWood for a while now. But on a very serious note...those pedos are dangerous. Like....Seriously extremely dangerous.

Yall remeber the Jerry Sandusky investigation for pedophilia right? Their was a guy named Ray Gricar who was investigating allegations in 2005. Gricar was a district attorney. After he began investigating the scandal...he DISAPPEARED. Even weirder he has never been found and his brother went missing in 1990's in a similar way and has also never been found.

Their was also some boys home up in the northern midwest that got busted for being a child brothel...diplomats, judges, attorneys, and governors were implicated as Johns but were never brought to justice...and instead the kids were sued for libel and one kid went to jail for like 15 years...this shit is satanic dude.

And then their is Jeff Ganon. Ganon is HORRIFYING the sickest shit from /b/'s worst nightmares is more palatable than what happened to that kid.

Dude...pedos never act alone...and they are well connected. It is not out of the realm of possiblity they will KILL you. Be very careful about where and who you talk to and who knows what you know. Im serious man.

■ Anonymous # 11/26/12(Mon)23:28 No.7720363 Replies: >>7720406 >>7720948 >>7721531 >>7721729

>>7720185

Continued...look up how Chapelle threw away so much money and how he acted and what he said on the Actors studio about why he left hollywood and a successful show.

Look up Patrice O'neal talking about Tracy Morgans big scandal when he said something like faggot or retarded...O'Neal talks about how hollywood has cartel (jew cartel, gay cartel, and black cartel are mentioned) and if you want to be successful you have to join the cartel and do what they tell you.

SHits real. Hollywood and LA is a toilet bowl full of shit.

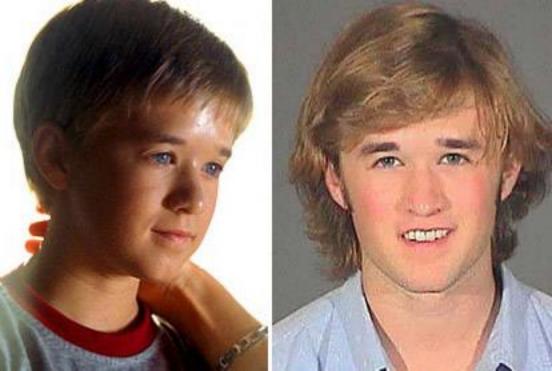

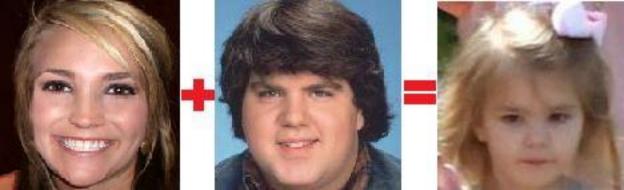

Anonymous 04/01/13(Mon)22:00 No.12328775 [▼] >>12328785 image.jpg (54 KB, 500x333) igdb google

>>12326174 (OP)

Hayden is not the only one to appear in the 'art' book room 23. Notice the mirror symbolism which ties into the alter/split personality theme. If you want to see the split personality break in action, check out the Britney Spears interview some other anon posted earlier

#1. Lindsay Lohan (who'd have guessed, she's pretty normal, amirite?)

>>12328775
#2 Marissa Miller (fuck look at her expression)

Robert Downey Jr. allegedly wrote the following statement about Dan Schneider on Crazy Days and Nights under the screen name Himmmm:

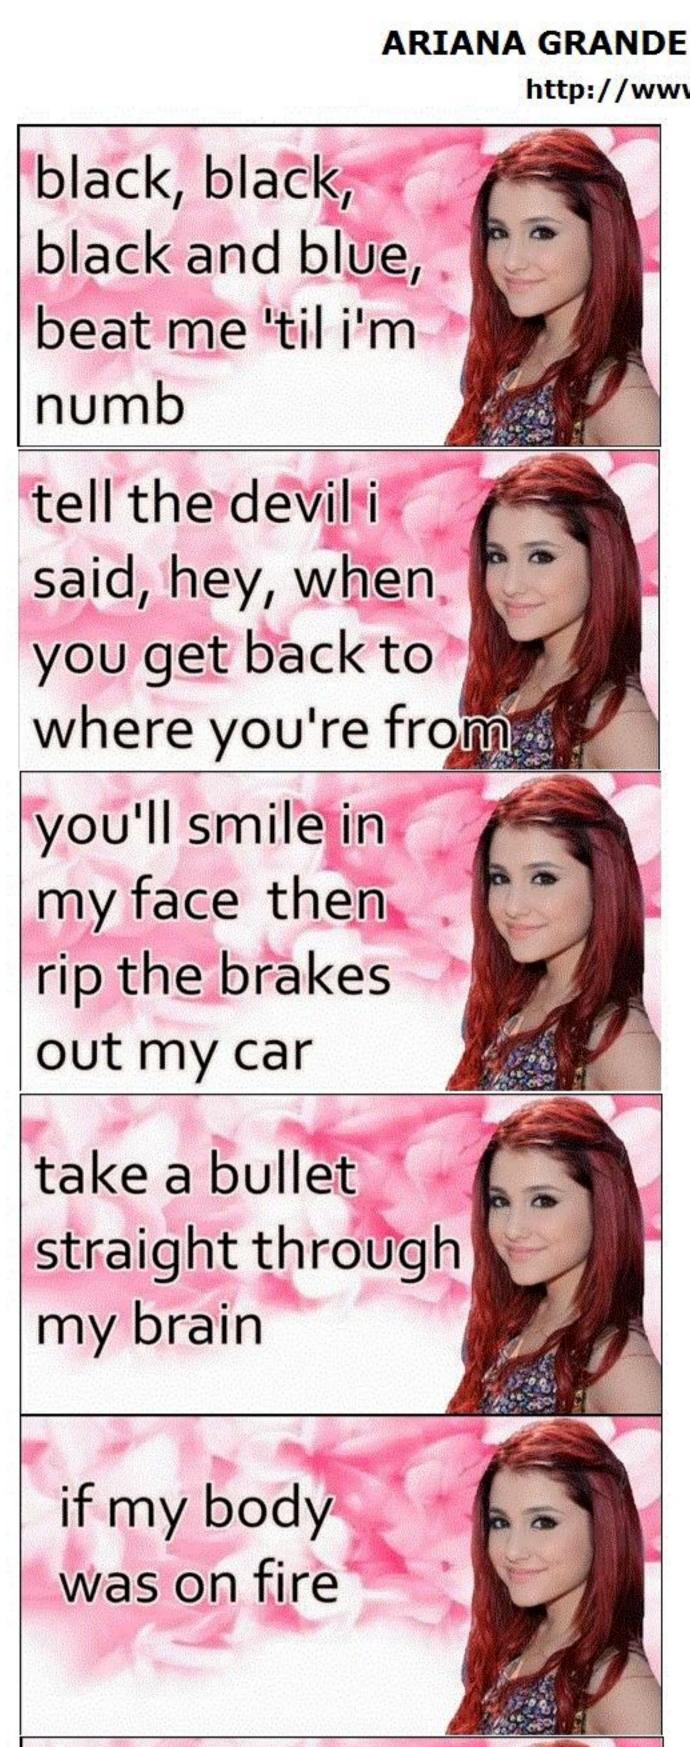

Hes a monster. The WORST predator alive. And if you wonder why nobody will confront or charge him? Hes in charge of multiple HIT SHOWS for Nick which rakes in oceans of money. Tens of millions of dollars multiplied by many years and many shows (not to mention his merchandising royalties). So Viacom-Nick warn him to cool it - then pay for his damn lawyers.

What about the parents? No tweener parent who shoved their kid into the limelight from birth is going to cross him either, and risk career suicide and loss of revenue (and residuals and future career). No matter how bad it *s up the kids. Especially if theres MULTIPLE kid actors in the family. And the kids agents are complicit too. Just ask the Spears family. A LOT of settlements get paid out of Viacoms accounts.

ARIANA GRANDE - Grenade "Pedo" Relationship LYRICS

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KE13IW2PBYw

Ooh, you'd watch me burn down in flames

you said you loved me,

you're a liar

on a blade

for ya

throw my hand

"Grenade"

Easy come, easy go, that's just how you live Oh, take, take, take it all but you never give Should've known you was trouble from the first kiss Had your eyes wide open, why were they open?

Gave you all I had and you tossed it in the trash You tossed it in the trash, you did To give me all your love is all I ever asked 'Cause what you don't understand is

I'd catch a grenade for ya Throw my hand on a blade for ya I'd jump in front of a train for ya You know I'd do anything for ya

I would go through all this pain Take a bullet straight through my brain Yes, I would die for you, baby But you won't do the same No, no, no, no

Black, black, black and blue, beat me 'til I'm numb Tell the devil I said hey, when you get back to where you're from Mad boy, bad boy, that's just what you are, yeah You'll smile in my face then rip the brakes out my car surprise butt sex

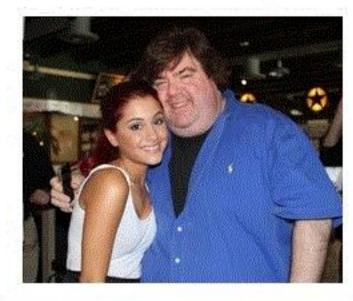

Gave you all I had and you tossed it in the trash You tossed it in the trash, yes, you did To give me all your love is all I ever asked 'Cause what you don't understand is

I'd catch a grenade for ya Throw my hand on a blade for ya I'd jump in front of a train for ya You know I'd do anything for ya

I would go through all this pain Take a bullet straight through my brain Yes, I would die for ya, baby But you won't do the same

If my body was on fire Ooh, you'd watch me burn down in flames You said you loved me, you're a liar 'Cause you never, ever, ever did, baby

But darling, I'd still catch a grenade for ya Throw my hand on a blade for ya I'd jump in front of a train for ya You know I'd do anything for ya I would go through all this pain Take a bullet straight through my brain Yes, I would die for you, baby But you won't do the same No, you won't do the same You wouldn't do the same Ooh, you never do the same No, no, no, no

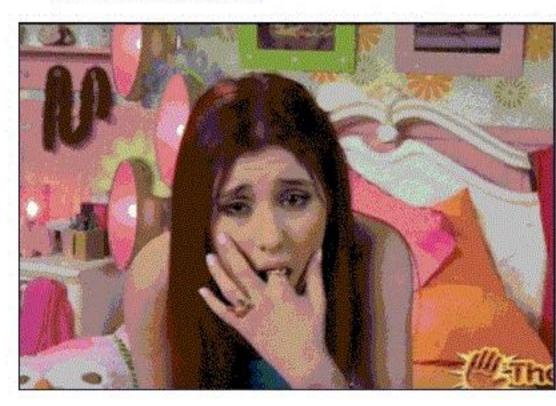

https://www.youtube.com/watc h?v=0PQhk Kwvrs

Ariana Grande @ @ArianaGrande Some things are better left unsaid. Details

Following

@ArianaGrande #pedowood pic.twitter.com/v3HyOfoq4c

Reply Retweet * Favorite ••• More

Times of the state of the state

The Mashington Times

THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1989 .

WASHINGTON, D.C.

SUBSCRIBER SERVICE: (202) 636-3000 25 cents

Homosexual prostitution inquiry ensnares VIPs with Reagan, Bush

By Paul M. Rodriguez and George Archibald

A homosexual prostitution ring is under investigation by federal and District authorities and includes among its clients key officials of the Reagan and Bush administrations, military officers, congressional aides and U.S. and foreign businessmen with close social ties to Washington's political elite, documents obtained by The Washington Times reveal.

One of the ring's high-profile clients was so well-connected, in fact, that he could arrange a middle-ofthe-night tour of the White House for his friends on Sunday, July 3, of last year. Among the six persons on the extraordinary 1 a.m. tour were two male prostitutes.

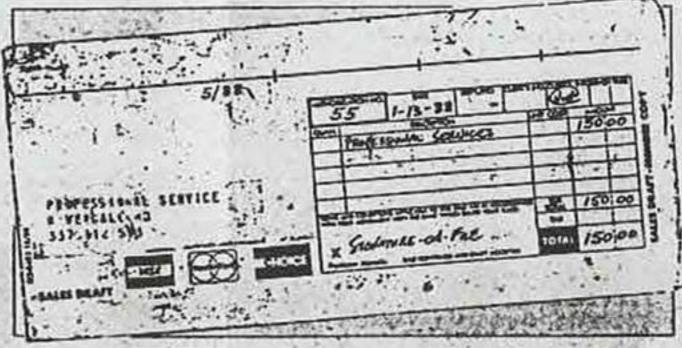

Federal authorities, including the Secret Service, are investigating

'Call boys' took midnight tour of White House criminal aspects of the ring and have told male prostitutes and their homosexual clients that a grand jury will deliberate over the evidence throughout the summer, The Times learned.

Reporters for this newspaper examined hundreds of credit-card vouchers, drawn on both corporate and personal cards and made payable to the escort service operated by the homosexual ring. Many of the vouchers were run through a socalled "sub-merchant" account of the Chambers Funeral Home by a son of the owner, without the company's knowledge.

Among the client names contained in the vouchers—and identified by prostitutes and escort operators—are government officials, locally based U.S. military officers, businessmen, lawyers, bankers, congressional aides and other professionals.

Editors of The Times said the newspaper would print only the names of those found to be in sensitive government posts or positions of influence. "There is no intention of publishing names or facts about the operation merely for titillation," said Wesley Pruden, managing editor of The Times.

The office of U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens, former deputy White House counsel to President Reagan, is coordinating federal aspects of the inquiry but refused to discuss the investigation or grand jury action.

Several former White House colleagues of Mr. Stephens are listed among clients of the homosexual prostitution ring, according to the credit-card records, and those persons have confirmed that the charges were theirs.

Mr. Stephens' office, after first saying it would cooperate with The Times' inquiry, withdrew the offer late yesterday and also declined to say whether Mr. Stephens would recuse himself from the case because of possible conflict of interest.

At least one highly placed Bush administration official and a wealthy businessman who procured homosexual prostitutes from the escort services operated by the ring are cooperating with the investigation, several sources said.

Among clients who charged homosexual prostitute services on major credit cards over the past 18 months are Charles K. Dutcher, former associate director of presidential personnel in the Reagan administration, and Paul R. Balach, Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole's political personnel liaison to the White House.

In the 1970s, Mr. Dutcher was a congressional aide to former Rep. Robert Bauman, Maryland Republican, who resigned from the House after he admitted having engaged in sexual liaisons with teen-age male

see PROBE, page A7

□ Anonymous © 05/21/13(Tue)16:56 No.14504028 Replies: >>14504159
	>>14499303 (You) VICTOR SALVA - VICT
	>While directing Clownhouse, Salva, then 29, molested one of the film's actors, 12-year-old Nathan Forrest Winters. The sexual acts were videotaped by Salva, who pleaded guilty to one count of lewd and lascivious conduct, one count of oral copulation with a person under 14, and three counts of procuring child pornography.[1] Salva was sentenced to three years in prison. He served 15 months of the sentence before being paroled,[2] and is registered as a sex offender.
	>After being released from prison, Salva had a series of odd jobs, while trying to get hired as a film director, living off some financial support given to him by Coppola.[2] >living off some financial support given to him by Coppola >financial support given to him by Coppola

>by Coppola

>Coppola

7 Reasons Child Stars Go Crazy (An Insider's Perspective)

By: Mara Wilson | May 28, 2013 | 1,590,179 views

Add to Favorites

4 Send

When I was a kid, I acted in a few movies.

20th Century Fo

#4. They Have Been Sexually Exploited

Pixland/Pixland/Getty Images

Speaking of which, you know that one lucky asshole you grew up with who never seemed to go through an awkward age, at all? The child stars who make the most successful transitions tend to be those kinds of assholes: They were adorable kids, and now they're beautiful adults. The rest typically disappear.

But it's not always a smooth transition: To be a teen idol is to be vulnerable. Brooke Shields has said that being a sex object led her to feel like she wasn't in control of her own body, and is one of the reasons she didn't have sex until she was 22. Natalie Portman has said similar things.

And sometimes it gets violent: Former child stars Corey Feldman, Corey Haim, and Todd Bridges all went on record saying that they had been sexually assaulted by adult men when they were young, and that there were likely many more child molesters in Hollywood. Actress Rebecca Schaeffer was killed by a stalker after he saw her in bed with a male character in a film and denounced her as "another Hollywood whore."

But even when it's not violent, it's not pleasant. When I was 12 years old, I made the mistake of looking myself up on the Internet. (I know not to do that now, unless I want to stay up all night imagining the kind of person who would replace my Wikipedia article with nothing but the word "poo.") One of the things I found was a foot fetish website dedicated to child actresses.

Now, at the time, I thought this was hilarious. I was in seventh grade and couldn't say the word "sex" with a straight face; fetishes were beyond me. I never told my parents because it seemed like too much of a joke, not a threat.

Then, two or three years ago, I was talking to a friend and casually mentioned the foot fetish thing. Her eyes went wide. "So, basically, you were on a child porn site?"

"Uh ... I guess so." I hadn't thought about it like that. Suddenly it wasn't as funny as I had once thought.

There was worse, both for me and for others. Like the Coogan Law, there are too many loopholes. If you ever need to convince someone not to get their kid into show business, inform them that it's still legal in several places to Photoshop a child's head onto a nude adult body. Sexual exploitation is just part of the package.

http://www.cracked.com/blog/7-reasonschild-stars-go-crazy-an-insiders-

perspective/

Franklin addition included bedroo Franklin may include I of homicide, Satar Fredrick

Franklin

Child Abuse, Satanism, and Murder in Nebraska

by John W. DeCamp

aradori's Airplane troke Up in Flight

Omaha World Herald Grand Jury Says Abuse Stories

Were a Carefully Crafted Hoax

```
Anonymous JIDF 06/11/13(Tue)20:08 No.15443454 Replies: >>15443470
        >>15443421
        [SWITCH TACTICS]
```

>> 15443454 (You)
why?

Deprogrammers

Gives a +4 to any attempt to destroy a Weed or Fanatic group, or +8 if the target is both Weled and Fanatic. Discordars immunity to Straight groups does not extend to the Deprogrammen.

POTER.

RESIANCE

Straight

Anonymous JDF 06/25/13(Tue)18:38 No.16062313 Replies: >>16062350 >>16062426 >>16063123 >>16061602 what what?

The film is often portrayed as Kubrick wasting his time or talent by portraying a facile middle class middle life crisis, and the not very outrageous orgies and laughable rituals of the elite.

But a girl dies, and the explanation given to Cruise at the end is obvious bullshit, although Kubrick is too good to make this completely clear.

So Cruise is an accomplice to elite murder, and can perhaps go back to his complacency. The last lines are from Kidman - 'we really need to fuck'. Sex will re-establish order, and everybody can carry on as usual.

Kubrick was accused of wasting his time with all this. But Kubrick didn't waste his time, or even a shot.

Kubrick was a genuine genius, who knew everything worth knowing. His last film is not a harmless plaything.

Anonymous 06/25/13(Tue)18:53 No.16063123

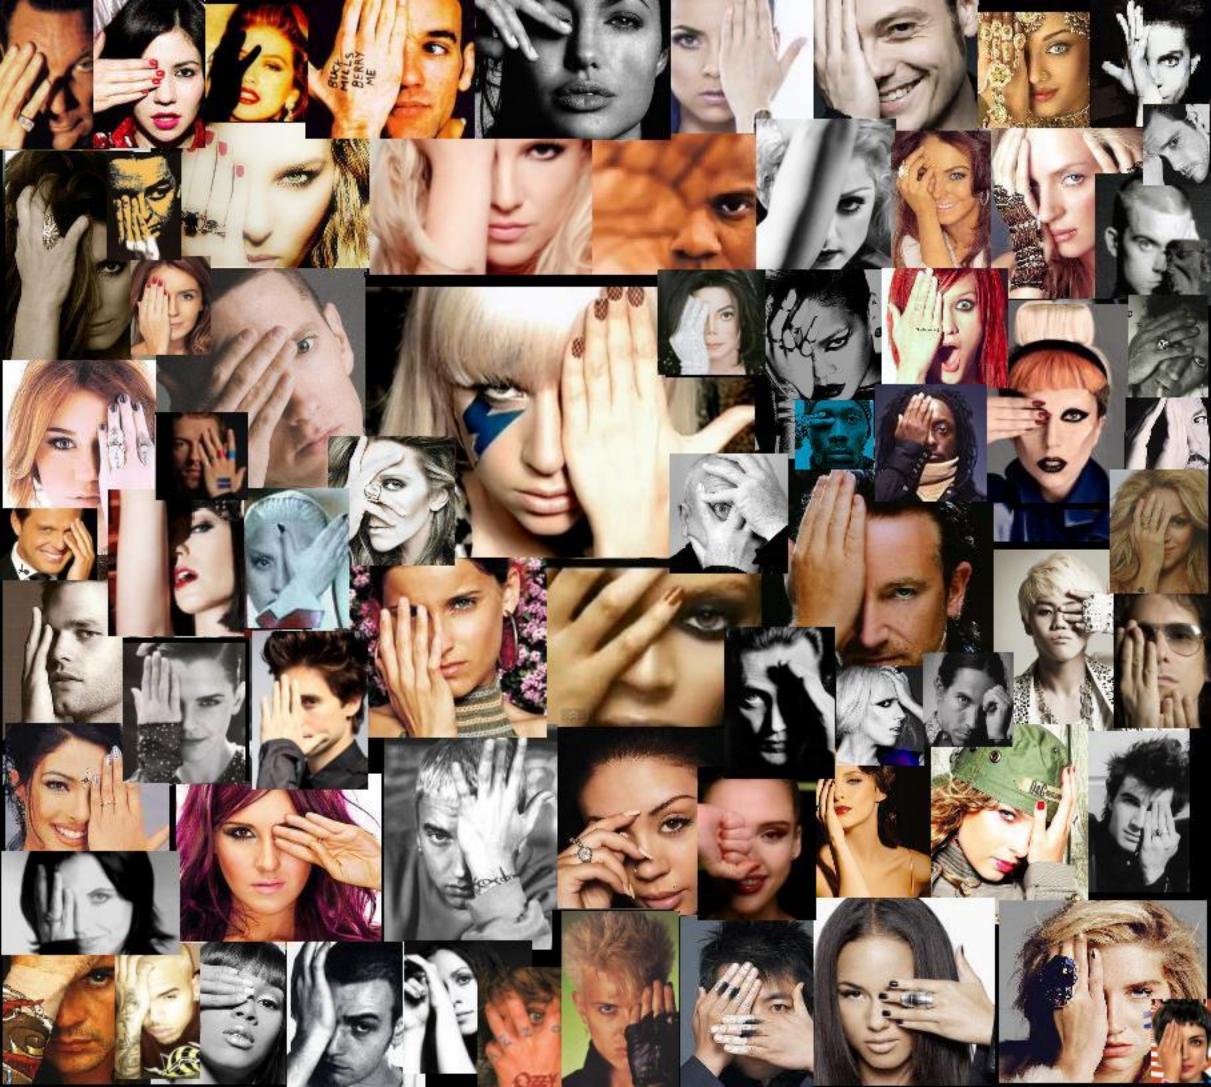

>>16062313

Oh, and the costume shopkeeper is pimping out his own underage daughter in an obvious Kafkaesque nightmare/dream world.

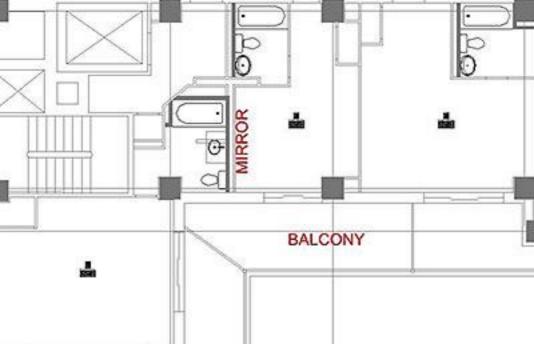

This is the place where the rainbow ends.

The film is also colour coded to fuck, jammed with symbolism as usual with Kubrick, and probably bears watching a lot more than I have, which is three times.

Maybe this should be /tv/, I don't know.

>>14603826

happy to submit to a DNA test.

> All over the media for a few years
What are you talking about? All that we are told is that he used to run a gay military escort service before somehow getting a press pass into the white house to give Bush easy question after only a two week journalism course.

It was first other journalists that decided to find out who this guys was and it snowballed from there. It wasn't until months later when it stared to go mainstream that he was Gosh that he went and did only a handful of interviews saying he'd be

After this he disappeared and never did give that DNA test or do any other interviews.

i understand. I had my very own issue with "die young" for this reason. I did NOT want to sing those lyrics and I was FORCED TO.

/pol/: operation pedowood

Premise: Pedophilia is rampant within hollywood and has been and is covered up by prominent figures in the various industries (music, film). Many of the perpetrators remain active within these industries, and continue to to commit their crimes.

Evidence

Arrested:

Martin Weiss (47), arrested 2012: talent agent involved in the iCarly/Good Luck Charlie series.

Source: http://www.deadline.com/2012/06/youth-talent-manager-martin-weiss-pleads-no-contest-sentenced-in-molestation-case/

Fernando Rivas (59), arrested 2011: composer involved with Sesame Street and singers such as Cyndi Lauper

Source: http://www.spinner.com/2011/11/21/fernando-rivas-sesame-street-composer-child-porn/

Jason James Murphy (35), arrested 2011: casting agent involved with School of Rock, Super 8, Pink Panther

Source: http://articles.latimes.com/2011/dec/10/entertainment/la-et-1210-casting-director-20111210

Lou Pearlman (58), arrested (2007): producer, manage involved with many boy bands including NSYNC, Backstreet Boys, LFO, Innosense Source: http://www.crushable.com/2007/10/03/entertainment/legendary-lou-pearlman-a-confirmed-pedophile-who-traded-sexual-favors-for-fame-and-fortune/

Thomas Lowery (47), arrested 2008: Former actor-turned talent scout and advisor to young actors involved with actor Cole Weiss among others Source: http://www.insideedition.com/investigative/5086-inside-edition-investigates-hollywood-pedophiles

Bob Villard (57), arrested 2005: Publicist and manager involved with the careers of Leonard DiCaprio and Tobey Maguire
Source: http://www.lapdonline.org/van_nuys_news/news_view/19911

Alan Hedgecock, arrested 2007: special-effects makeup artist, involved with 28 Days Later, Black Hawk Down and Kingdom of Heaven

Source: http://blog.moviefone.com/2007/02/05/hollywood-special-effects-artist-convicted-on-pedophile-charges/

Jason Michael Handy (39), arrested 2004: Production assistant involved with Nickelodeon

Source: http://articles.latimes.com/2012/jan/08/business/la-fi-ct-hollywood-molesters-20120109

Ezel Ethan Channel (44), arrested 2005: Production assistant involved with Nickelodeon

Source: http://da.lacounty.gov/mr/archive/2005/121905a.htm

Victor Salva (55), arrested circa 2000: Director involved with Jeepers Creepers, Powder and Walt Disney Studios
Source: http://www.vachss.com/mission/disney.html

Patrick J. Naughton (47), arrested 2000: Former executive vice president of Walt Disney's Go.com website Source: http://articles.latimes.com/2000/jan/06/business/fi-51219

Hollywood "insider" here >inb4 jew Lets play a game, just to see how much /pol/ really knows. 1. Who was the first person to sexually molest Macaulay Culkin, and at what age? 2. Miranda Cosgrove attempted to testify in court last year on the grounds of sexual assault. Which Hollywood executive(s) convinced her not to. HINT:dan wasnt alone. 3. Apart from Nickelodeon & Disney, name a third network famous for its string of child abuse cases (its a "three letter" network) 4. Victoria Justice was forced to perform sexual favors on which disney exec in order to get a part on "the suite life of zac and cody"? 5. Ariana Grande's parents received death threats from which hollywood network after they found out what their daughter was forced to do? (Hint: not nick) BONUS: Tell us what happened to the real Miley Cyrus. Anonymous JIDF 05/02/13(Thu)08:17 No.13622431 Replies: >>13622580 >>13624267 >>13619348 1.) Daniel Stern and Joe Pesci at 10 years old 2.) Jayson Thiessen and Daniel Ingram 3.)CNN 4.)Rich Ross 5.)Hasbro Bonus: She went the way of the Dodo Anonymous JIDF 05/02/13(Thu)09:33 No.13624267 Replies: >>13624587 >>13624642 >>13624720 >>13624767 >>13624797 >>13624800 >>13624917 Hi /pol/ Its me again >>13619348 Only one of you even came close, and it was this guy.

Anonymous 505/02/13(Thu)05:52 No. 13619348 Replies: >>13619503 >>13619544 >>13620028 >>13622431 >>13622469 >>13622703 >>13624267 >>13624789 >>13624874

>>13622431

- 1. while you are right on the money, these were not the first. It was a trick question, as mr.culkin was first molested by his grandfather at 4
- 2.bingo, right on the money
- 3.Also correct (PBS would have also been acceptable)
- 4.im surprised you knew this, well done.
- 5. Hasbro did indeed make these threats. Not officially, of course, but anyone who does a little bit of digging will know that hasbro higher ups tend to threaten force to keep people quiet.

Bonus: its better if you guys find out on your own. Ill spare the "tinfoil" story but i will point you in the right direction.

Larry Rudolph and Billy Ray Cyrus have a very close relationship, look into it. Also, look into the property that KCAL9 news station owns, all the property. Finally....theres a lot of desert east of L.A.

Ke$ha: 'Die Young' - The X Factor Australia 2012 - Live Decider 8 - TOP 5

>>13625402 Couple years back (shortly after "Can't be tamed" was released), there were reports that someone had found Miley Cyrus' body wayy out in East LA, with signs of dehydration, along bruises on her

wrists & neck

It was all over KCAL for like, a day, and then the very next day KCAL apologized for promoting "blatantly untrue slander"

If anyone can find the video clip, it would be much appreciated.

So MJ looks in the mirror and he still sees that little black boy who was abused.

>http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=F9Nh84lfvW0

SO what does he do? He changes the man in the mirror.

Anonymous 05/03/13(Fri)15:20 No.13688027 Replies: >>13688155 >>13691480

These two movies are pretty much required watching Dutroux and the Dead Witnesses from German Public TV
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=fuPkoGGm_xQ

Conspiracy of Silence from Discovery Channel http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=asvl6kO1Vo8

Contemporary ABC News in-depth report on the MKULTRA program http://vimeo.com/58514098

2004 - 2005 Updates and Developments since the First Edition

In late 2003, Troy Boner walked into a hospital in New Mexico screaming "They're after me! They're after me because of this book!" whilst waving around a book.

The book in question was this one. Boner was mildly sedated and calmed down, and put in a private room for "observation". When the nurses came to check up on him the morning of the next day, he was sitting on a chair, bleeding from the mouth and undoubtedly dead. Former FBI LA Bureau Chief Ted Gundersno tried to get an autopsy and other information that was promised to him around his death, but Gunderson – and apparently any other entity – was entirely cut from all information. No news stories of his death were published in the news, despite his previous front page fame and "notoriety" in the Franklin Case.

Stormpheus WiBKKj/hsk → 03/10/13(Sun)01:07 No.11068836 [▼] >>11068955 POLANSKI-WITH-LITTLE-GIRL.jpg (123 KB, 650x481) iqdb google

>>11068802

- >rapes a minor
- >defended completely by Hollywood
- >Mel Gibson says some things about Jews whilst drunk
- >shunned like the plague and hated by everyone

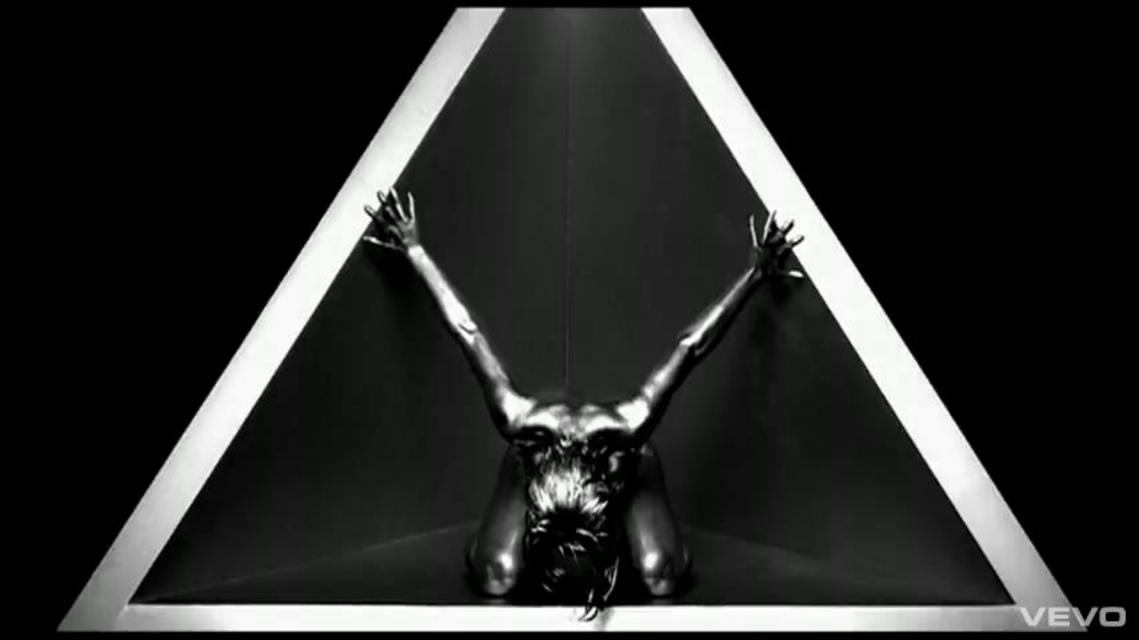

Conspiracy of Silence read Franklin Cover up here if you can then the Dutroux witnesses document

>>15533174

then the Dutroux witnesses documentery then read the Dutroux witness dossiers

After this then seen the pastable and get as much as you want to know about the Elite and Dedarbilia, brushing up on MVIII

After this then scan the pastebin and get as much as you want to know about the Elite and Pedophilia, brushing up on MKULTRA if you want to then read Programmed to Kill, which has a ton of direct material from MKULTRA documents in it.

uci OFF Tos SER

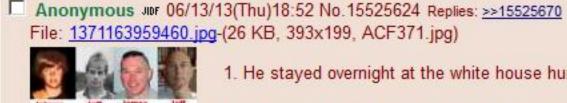

1. He stayed overnight at the white house hundreds of times during GWB's presidency.

5. I saw an interview for some video blog on youtube a few years ago (since taken down) where he is asked about his childhood. You can tell he's lying and it sounds fake.

- 2. He had a secret service approved pseudonym
- 3. His hair is shaved so no one can get his DNA
- 4. He won't take a DNA test even though Noreen Gosch requested one.

- 6. George H Bush was in office during the Franklin scandal
- 7. Where is he now??

