

No one has to read this really, it's just that I LOVE infodumping about my OCs, but this is just for anyone who actually wants to know more.

Some context: My OC universe primarily centers around a touristic nightclub in Iquitos, Peru. The owner, Juan Matsuo-Paredes, a former chemist, now business man, is an antique/oddities collector, and stores his collection on the top floor of his club. He is fiercely protective of this collection, so he alongside three of his employees reside in the club to watch over it.

Joel Quispe

Stealth trans male that works as a bartender at the nightclub. He's very charming and sociable, the sort of guy that can be friends with (almost) anyone. Despite his laid back demeanor, he's actually very hardworking, reliable, and nurturing, like an older brother in a shoujo manga. He tries to keep most people an arm's length away from him, however, since he suffers from a crippling sense of inferiority in relation to his masculinity. To compensate for this, he partakes in a sort of machismo that he doesn't even fully believe in. He's a bit of a compulsive liar like that, and frequently cooks up tall tales to tell his patrons and sometimes his friends, not out of malice, but purely for the love of the game.

He lives in the club and helps watch over Juaneco's collection alongside a few of his coworkers/friends, and like them his entire existence almost entirely takes place within the club's walls. He wants to eventually achieve greater things, however.

Notes:

- He's originally from Cuzco
- He LOVES trashy entertainment; tabloid news, reality TV, conspiracy theory/pseudo science-history type shit, etc
- Runs a Rosalía fanpage/updates page on Twitter where he just blatantly lies about her
- Can also speak English, German, and Quechua
- Uses way too much cologne

Julio Chau-Chávez, or just Juli

27 y/o

Closeted trans woman working as a custodian at the nightclub. Extremely hedonistic, misanthropic, and immature in part because of her repressed home life, but mostly because she's just like that. Is incredibly unpleasant to be around, and being close to her in any capacity should be considered a form of self harm. She is aware of this and indulges in it, making a conceited effort to be as offputting and annoying to be around as possible. Partakes in incredibly reckless anti-social, sadomasochistic behavior, like public intoxication, self-harm, showing her coworkers footage of industrial workplace incidents, killing small animals, throwing ice cubes into deep fryers, that sort of stuff.

Spent her teen years as a b-tier lolcow in an accelerationist internet cult, which led to her getting doxxed and outed to her family. She has been desperately trying to repair her relationship with her father ever since.

- Is a total sinophile, but not in the tankie way.
- On a similar note: Is a third-gen Chinese-Peruvian, but can only speak very basic, domestic Chinese.
- No longer allowed to access the internet as much, so she watches tons of tabloid news to try to fill the void.
- Also likes to draw and journal
- Has a girlfriend somehow???
- Smells bad
