

To my beloved.

“I must not mention your name”

Far ago, that was the oath I took

In my descent, by madness I'll be tuck

I've invested my mind and can't be sane

Sure I am there will be great search

Your presence is enough reason to move

To try and ship far away from this Earth

Looking for the unknown, for something new

You live on a place unknown for mankind

A world of your own that obeys your will

A place where danger for you is not real

That was created by the power of your mind

Several champions have reached your home

And they enjoy the benefits of your friendship

But trying to reach the drug that makes them thirsty

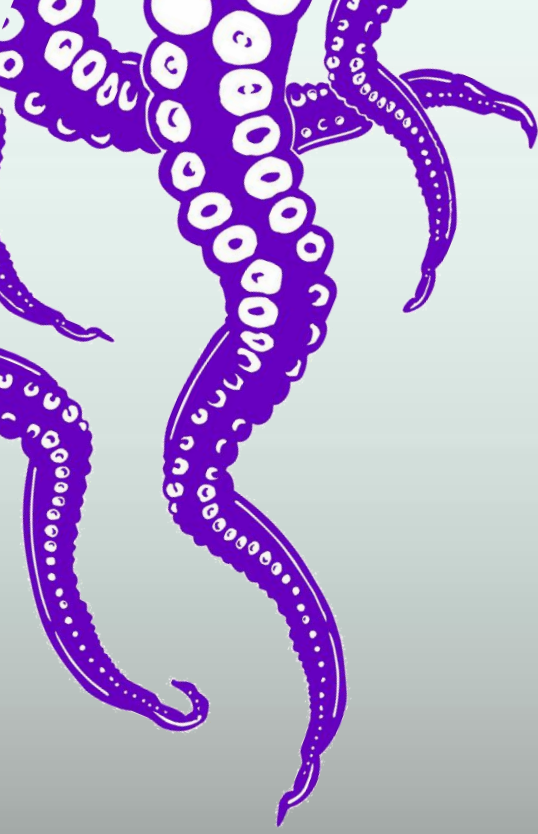

Several died hurt, blind, and alone

I can't get away from this sensation
Abstinence has reached a new level for me
I know a home where there's what I need
The only home I need is your imagination

While pain is big, and riddles were failed
And you hid long enough to avoid being seen
For reaching the vastness of your mind I'm keen
Even if the price is facing up death

With these verses, I say goodbye and ship
Don't close the doors and let me in your land
I beg you allow me to feel in my toes the sand
And I beg for praising you with bloody lips

*My feet can't keep going anymore
Maybe if I just sit down and scream
Someone will find me and die with me
And I won't part alone*

*Slimy tentacles are grasping my arms
A childish laughter echoes on the walls
There are two purple eyes looking through the mask
They are empty like black holes*

*I can't understand what she is saying
But she is saying something I must hear
Is this the entity I've been searching?
My beloved... I'm finally here*

I am finally here.

