

THE FETUS

Today I signed up to die, I can't live this way anymore, I'm so tired of existing. As a child I always believed that I had worms in my brain, little larvae that moved through my brains, through my thoughts. But now I understand, everything is so clear, I can feel it. That thing kicking inside my brain, that thing who doesn't let me sleep at night, that thing is a fetus. And I'm ready to give birth, I'm ready to die, ready to start from zero. If this is what I'm meant to be, I will be.

My head then opens, splits in two, explodes. And instead of dripping blood, a hundred butterflies have flown away. And instead of pain I have felt happiness. Because I finally feel love. Because I finally feel peace. Because I am finally me.

And my new name will be _____.

"The Fetus"
