

DECLARATION OF FANDOM: BINDING CONTRACT OF LOYALTY & ETERNAL SUFFERING

I, _____, of sound mind (and questionable judgment), do hereby declare myself a loyal fan of the Miami Dolphins, effective immediately and binding for all eternity (or until they relocate to London).

ARTICLE I – COMMITMENT

I pledge to wear teal and orange proudly, even when they clash with literally every outfit I own.

ARTICLE II – SUFFERING

I acknowledge that being a Dolphins fan means heartbreak, false hope, and occasional delusions of "this is our year." I will not complain, for I have chosen this life.

ARTICLE III – RIVALRY

I vow never to cheer for the New England Patriots, the Buffalo Bills, or the New York Jets, even if the fate of humanity depends on it.

ARTICLE IV – HERITAGE

I accept the sacred duty of explaining to future generations what a "perfect season" was, despite it happening decades before I was born.

ARTICLE V – LOYALTY

I agree that switching teams is forbidden. Blood in, blood out. I will remain a Dolphins fan until the day I ascend to football heaven (where Dan Marino throws touchdowns forever).
